SECRET GOV'T FORECASTS GLOOMY

Controls Won't Help

TORONTO (CP) — Confidential forecasts of the federal finance department show that the federal selective wage and price controls will make little change in the inflation rate in 1976 and that unemployment will remain about the same, the CBC says.

In an Ottawa story on The National television newscast, Monday night the CBC said the finance department expects the consumer price index will go up 9.2 per cent next year, about the same as it has for the last six months.

Government spending is expected to go up 3½ per cent and forecasts show wages will increase 11.1 per cent, compared with 18 per cent this year, the CBC says.

It says the figures are based on full compliance with the controls.

Meanwhile the Consumers' Association of Canada gave the new anti-inflation board a sharp rap on the knuckles Monday, calling it a less effective inflation fighting organization than the now-defunct food prices review board.

CAC president Michael O'Grady told the Commons finance committee the food prices review board should be put back into operation and given more authority.

"They had an outspoken, quite intelligent group of researchers," he said. "And they were really letting conumers know what was going on in this very important food business."

The Canadian Labor Congress today carried its campaign against the federal anti-inflation program to the Commons committee studying the authorizing bill.

"The labor movement is not prepared to accept Bill C-73, either in principle or practice," the congress said in a terse, critical brief presented to the finance committee.

"The government at no time has given the congress any assurance that prices and profits can or will be controlled to the same degree as wages.

"Furthermore, by controlling wages the bill will be successful only in reducing purchasing power, which in turn will led to greater unemployment."

However, elsewhere in Ottawa, some civil service members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada are starting to oppose the union executive's decision to use members' money to fight the anti-inflation program.

A petition currently circulating in the consumer and corporate affairs department objects to the PSAC executive committee decision to contribute financially to a CLC national fight against the selected wage and price controls.

OAP Cheques Wednesday

Old age security cheques will be delivered to homes in the Victoria area Wednesday, one week earlier than usual, regional director of family allowances and pensions Harry Kenmare said today.

As a result of the pension cheque delivery, there will be a delay in the family allowance payment until about Dec. 1, he said.

Normally family allowances go out on the 19th of the month. Delivery of all cheques has been hampered by the mail strike.

Postmen have agreed to deliver the pension cheques Wednesday and are studying a request to deliver the family allowance cheques on Dec. 1.

Kenmare said the family allowance cheques will be for both November and December when they are delivered at month's end.

He said Ottawa has ruled that the pension cheques must take priority over family allowances because in a large number of cases the pension is the only source of income while family allowances are supplementary income.

The regional office could not handle both deliveries at once because it must print, envelope and deliver pension and family allowance cheques to the whole province from Victoria. In the case of family allowances, a total of 365,000 cheques must be handled for the province from the Victoria office.

They would be ready for delivery by month's end and would go out Dec. 1 if postmen co-operate. If not, some alternative means of delivery would have to be found for early December.

The delay in the November family allowance brought protests from low income groups.

Henriette Pilon, worker with the Victoria Low Income Group, says welfare mothers and other low income people desperately need the family allowance cheques.

"Because they are on fixed incomes, these people have budgeted their welfare and family allowance cheques for food, sundries, heating and rent," Pilon said.

"It is causing a tremendous strain on them."

Mackasey Vetoes Mediator

Times News Services

Postmaster-General Mackasey Monday rejected appointment of a mediator as a possible solution to the postal strike as the Canadian Union of Postal Workers announced latest plans for $40-a-week strike pay to members.

Quebec CUPW directer Clement Morel said today the union has enough money to give out strike pay for five to six weeks.

"The cost of giving strike pay of $40 a week to our members is $800,000 a week," he said at a news conference. "We have $1.5 million in our own strike fund and we have loans from some unions affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress."

Mackasey continued his hard-nosed approach to the bitter strike as the Commons in Ottawa held an emergency debate on the walkout, which began Oct 20.

As union negotiators watched from the galleries, Mackasey said the postal workers are "dreaming in technicolor" if they think they can get more than the latest government offer — $1.70 an hour over a 30-month contract.

"The trouble with this union negotiating team is that they don't know when they've got a good bargain," he said.

Jean-Claude Parrot, chief negotiator for the 22,000-member union, said in an interview he has no doubt a mediator will help.

In Vancouver, meanwhile, a British Columbia Supreme Court Judge adjourned until today an application for an injunction against pickets filed by federal postal officials.

Postal officials told the court that violence and obstruction on the picket line at the main downtown post office began on the first day of the strike and have increased since then.

Crown Firm Share Plan

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Social Credit leader Bill Bennett said Monday that employees of companies set up or purchased by the New Democratic Party government would be offered preferential stock options under a Social Credit government.

Bennett made the statement on an open-line radio show during his campaign for the Dec. 11 provincial election.

He had said earlier that his party would guarantee the jobs, and would sell the government-owned operations after full financial studies.

Bennett also said in an interview Monday that none of the NDP-acquired forest firms would be sold to major companies now in British Columbia.

He said employees would have first option to buy shares under a low-interest employee participation program; the firms would become public; and the province would back out "when the economic climate improves."

Bennett said companies would be sold only to buyers which would guarantee to maintain the firms so they "contribute to the economic well-being of the communities" in which they are located.

He also said a Social Credit government would not do away with mincome and pharmacare, adding that mincome was just an extension of a scheme started by the B.C. coalition government in 1942 and revamped by the former Social Credit government.

In nominations, New Democratic Party defector Frank Calder was acclaimed Monday to contest the Atlin riding for the Social Credit Party in the provincial general election Dec. 11. (Other provincial election nominations on Page 9.)

A master transportation plan for northwestern B.C. will be announced Thursday in Terrace by Premier Barrett.

Discussions with Ottawa on joint federal-provincial financing of new transportation routes in the northwest have been going on for months and Barrett said today he would have an announcement to make Thursday.

The plan is expected to involve highways, railways and port development and include the extension of Canadian National Railway line from Terrace to link up with the B.C. Railway Dease Lake extension.

In Vancouver Agnes Kripps, former Social Credit MLA said today that she has resigned as president of the Vancouver South Social Credit constituency association.

Alcan Lockout Postponed

KITIMAT (CP) — A scheduled lockout at the Aluminum Co. of Canada was postponed Monday night until at least midnight tonight.

An Alcan spokesman said the company and Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers representatives were to meet today with Labor Minister Bill King in Victoria.

The lockout, affecting 1,800 workers, was originally to start at midnight Monday night after the apparent failure of talks earlier with King.

The union rejected the company's last offer on Wednesday in their contract dispute. The offer fell within the federal guidelines and would have given the 1,700 workers an 8.9 per cent increase this year and 6.5 per cent in the second year of a new contract.

The previous contract expired Oct. 22.

Present base rate is $5.38 an hour. The company said the average wage increase over the two-year period would be $1.04 an hour plus cost-of-living protection in the second year.

The company said that its hydroelectric generating facilities at Kemano will not be affected by the shutdown.

Just 'Cordial Discussions', Pollen Hedges on Charge

Mayor Peter Pollen today neither confirmed nor denied charges by Tory leader Scott Wallace that he had broken a firm commitment to run as a Conservative in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Asked by a reporter to comment on Wallace's statement made Monday, after Pollen had announced he would seek the Social Credit nomination, Pollen merely said he had "explored very thoroughly all political parties wth the exception of the NDP."

Pollen said he and Sam Bawlf had had "extremely cordial discussions" with the Conservative leader on the possibility of running as candidates for the party in Victoria.

"But obviously if we were going to run we would have a card in our name," he added.

Wallace had accused the two of lack of principle for breaking faith with him to join the Socred cause. He claimed that commitment was made Nov. 5, yet 12 hours later Bawlf announced he would run as a Socred.

Bawlf had never contacted him since that move, Wallace said. The city alderman could not be reached for comment on the matter today.

Pollen's reaction came as Lea Jameson, president of the Oak Bay Liberal Association, announced today she will seek nomination as the Oak Bay Liberal candidate in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The nomination convention will take place Wednesday, 8:30 p.m. at the Windsor Park pavilion, and Jameson said she did not know of any other candidates.

One nominating meeting was already held and no candidates came forward. Jameson said many people feel the Liberals are "running against the tide" this election, and have offered to run next time around.

Among Pollen's other comments on Wallace today:

"He is the true fanatic who has lost his objective and redoubled his effort.

COMMIT SUICIDE FBI TOLD KING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shortly before he was awarded the 1964 Nobel Prize, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. received an anonymous letter written by the FBI suggesting that he commit suicide or be publicly discredited.

The partial contents of the letter to King were released today by the senate intelligence committee as it began two days of open hearings on 50 years of FBI domestic intelligence operations.

"There is one thing left for you to do," the letter to King said. "You have just 34 days to do it. You are done. There is but one way out for you and you know it."

Committee counsel Fred Scwartz was interrupted at this point by chairman Frank Church, Dem-Idaho.

"This was suggesting suicide?" Church asked.

"Yes, sir," Scwartz replied.

Gov't Suing Mortgage Firms

A class action on behalf of 52 B.C. residents has been launched by the provincial government against two Lower Mainland mortgage and loan companies.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald is planning to take civil action against Modern Mortgage and Loan Ltd. and Safeco Mortgage and Loan Ltd. and their respective principals H. L. McCallum and Stanley Wright.

Macdonald alleges the two firms wrongfully collected interest money from 52 mortgagees.

Safeco allegedly violated the Interest Act of Canada, Modern is alleged to have violated the Consumer Protection Act and both are accused of conspiring to violate provisions of the Interest Act.

A department official explained that the government is charging that the companies figured out the per diem interest rate for mortgages by dividing the yearly rate by 360 instead of 365 days. That rate was then charged for each day of the year, he said.

Officials were uncertain how much money is involved but said it could be up to $50 a year for each mortgage which could be amortized over 25 years.

"It's not that much but when you multiply it by 52 and then over 25 years it's quite a bit," said Macdonald.

Sky Shops 'Gave Christmas Gifts'

TORONTO (CP) — Sky Shops Export Ltd., which holds the duty-free concessions at three federal airports, gave Christmas gifts yearly between 1964 and 1973 to the federal and civil servants with whom it regularly dealt, according to the Globe and Mail.

The newspaper says several government officials at first denied accepting gifts but later admitted they had after they were told The Globe and Mail had the company's gift lists.

Andy Anton, president of Sky Shops from 1964 to 1971, is quoted as saying in an interview that small favors had been asked of the persons involved and that the gifts were minimal.

The included liquor, radios, watches, clocks, free meals, electric razors, a camera, umbrellas, perfume, and gold-plated pen and pencil sets, the newspaper says.

Anton was not avilable for further comment Monday night.

The newspaper says persons on the gift lists included employees of the transport minister and Canada Customs at Montreal's Dorval airport and the airport at Saint John, N.B., post office employees and United States customs and immigration inspectors at Dorval, several airlines such as Air Canada, the Quebec Liquor Board and the New Brunswick liquor control commission.

Elmer MacKay, Progressive Conservative MP for Central Nova, recently asked for a judicial inquiry into the activities of Sky Shops, which holds shop concessions at the Dorval and Mirabel airports and at Saint John.

City Police Unhappy with Pay Award

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

An arbitration award handed down Monday finally settles the wages and other contract conditions for Victoria policemen — about six weeks before the 1975 contract year expires.

The award by arbitrator Guy Barclay, which follows a five-day hearing last month, gives a first-class constable a salary of $1,360 per month.

That's $256 a month more than he now makes, $10 a month more but $16 a month less than his counterparts in Saanich and Vancouver respectively and puts him in line for back-pay totalling at least $2,500 gross.

But the policemen's union apparently isn't overwhelmed with joy over the binding award.

Not only has the arbitrator denied the union's request for parity with Vancouver rates in all ranks, but his report places all ranks higher than a 10-year constable substantially behind their opposite numbers in Saanich.

In Saanich, for example, a corporal now receives $1,553 per month. In Victoria the new rate for a corporal will be $125 less — $1,428. A Saanich sergeant gets $1,620; a Victoria sergeant will receive $56 less — $1,564.

Union president Sgt. Patrick Braiden said Monday night he was "totally amazed" by the report, adding that the arbitrator did not accept an agreement already reached by the city and the union with regard to the indexing relationship between ranks.

Braiden said the city had agreed to follow the index system used by Saanich in fixing rates for corporals and sergeants, but the arbitrator had ordered that the Victoria 1974 index should apply in 1975.

Said Barclay's report: "Regarding the Saanich index, I note it is the same as the 1974 Victoria index for ranks below that of first-class constable but above the Victoria index for ranks higher than the first-class constable.

"It is my view this is a poor concept and is generally contrary to accepted practice."

Barclay's report also includes improvements in vacations, boot and clothing allowances, shift differential and other fringe areas, but regarding the union's request for a shared-cost dental plan

she made earlier that the Social Credit party executive tampered with a nominating convention Sunday which rejected her bid to run again in the Vancouver South riding.

"I'm a good loser but a poor shaftee, you can put it that way," said Mrs. Kripps.

Kripps said that she has been urged by constituents to seek a Conservative nomination, but said she has not spoken to Conservative leader Scott Wallace.

Meanwhile. Conservative candidates will be few in quantity, high in quality, and found only in ridings where they have a chance of winning, Tory Saunders, the president of the British Columbia conservative party said Monday.

He told a nominating meeting in West Vancouver-Howe Sound that the party should be concerned mainly with building a solid base by "running excellent candidates in the areas where we know we have some support.

"We should be looking at (Premier) Peter Lougheed's experience in Alberta where he got a small group of dedicated Conservatives together," said Saunders. "He made a good showing in 1967 and eventually formed the government in 1971."

Wait for Wedding Urged by Barrett

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

If the state is involved in the break-up of marriages it should also be involved in the start of marriages, through a six-week waiting period with mandatory counselling, Premier Barrett said today.

Speaking to the provincial conference on the family, Barrett said he become frustrated in his early days as a social worker trying to deal with marriage problems because it was obvious in so many cases the couple should never have married.

The problem is that the state only becomes involved in the marriage when it breaks up when it should instead have a stake in the survival of the marriage through "even just four or five hours of counselling," he said.

It would be impossible, and a denial of freedom, to prevent people from getting married, he said, but a few hours of rational discussion about marriage with people who have some experience or understanding would help immensely.

But Barrett drew laughter from the 200 delegates when he said both his wife's religious counsellor and his counsellors told them not to get married and they went ahead anyway.

Although they were angry with the advice, said Barrett, it made them sit down and discuss some of the problems which might face them, problems they had never considered.

The premier was warmly received by the crowd at Centennial United Church as he talked about his own family life and marriage which he said was a good one, mostly due to his wife, Shirley "a good Christian woman who took in this wayward Jew."

Barrett said he was there as a social worker, not a politician, and apologized for the presence of so many press representatives.

The conference was set up before he knew there would be an election, he said, and he did not intend his speech to be part of the election campaign.

The conference began Monday night and runs for three days. It was set up jointly by the provincial government and various religious organizations. Following the Victoria meeting, the 200 delegates will go back to their local areas for further community discussions and then return for a final wrap-up next year.

One out of three marriages fail today, said Barrett, and much of the failure is due to unreal expectations built up by fairy tale myths of life.

The state and the community has a stake in marriages and they impose conditions on how people can be divorced so they should impose the same kind of screening and conditions on people wishing to marry.

But Barrett said it is a difficult notion to get across to governments and it is a problem which crosses political party lines. He said he and others in the caucus have slowly been making other peole in the NDP aware of the situation.

Many people feel, however, that such rules about marriage would constitute an interference in the private lives of individuals, he said, adding that newspapers have made fun of him when he has suggested the idea previously.

But a mandatory six-week waiting period before marriage with a few hours of warm, open discussion of marriage would probably stop some people from rushing into disaster, Barrett said.

The premier spoke on a more personal level than he does on the political platform, talking about his married life and the cases he handled as a social worker before entering politics.

Asked his opinion on the growing trend to common-law or trial marriages, Barrett said he couldn't make any generalized statements because every case is different.

"I can't make those kinds of judgments about people unless they're politicians," he said, adding that if he was faced with the problem in his own family he might react emotionally but he didn't know what he would do.

PENSION CHEQUES

for the Community Action Group, said many welfare recipients rely upon the family allowance cheques to pay their food bills.

"The fact there will be a double payment in December is no help," she said.

"How do you tell a hungry child in the last week of November to be patient and go without food for one more week because he can look forward to double helpings in December?"

She has asked provincial human resources officials for interim assistance to those on welfare and for other low income people until the family allowance cheques arrive.

Stan Darlington, president of the Victoria local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the union has offered to sort family allowance cheques without cost but there is a dispute with local post office offcials about where the sorting should take place.

The postmen insist it must be outside the struck premises of the post office while post office spokesman Buzz Sawyer says federal government postal activities must be carried out inside the post office.

Sawyer said it would be difficult to maintain the high security arrangements normal for handling cheques if the work was done outside the post office building.

Darlington said the postmen are willing to do the work outside the post office but so far postal officials here have rejected the offer.

POLLEN SIDESTEPS

"I think his statements are somewhat irrelevant in the context that he refuses to recognize the reason why people of substance are not joining him — because he stands primarily for Hate Social Credit.

"I think it would be more appropriate with his evangelical fervor if he joined the NDP."

Liberal MLA David Anderson said today Pollen had tried to convince him on either Nov. 3 or 4 to run as an independent with him.

"In the first week of November he told me he just couldn't stand the Socreds," Anderson said. "He asked me to run as an independent with him (in the city) because he didn't like the Ottawa Liberals and wasn't sure he could win as a Liberal."

The Social Credit nomination meeting will be held tonight at the McPherson Playhouse.

Meanwhile Saanich NDP today denied that association had ever requested Pollen to run under that banner.

Pollen was quoted in the Colonist today as saying the group had asked that he run in that riding.

But Molly Phillips, president of the NDP riding association, catergorically denied a request was made. "We never did any such thing."

Bawlf said today that Wallace is misleading the public and playing "cheap politics."

Bawlf said he had told Wallace from the start that he would never be anything else but a candidate for the Social Credit party.

Bawlf said Wallace had visited city hall the day after Premier Dave Barrett had announced there would be an election on Dec. 11.

"Both the mayor and I saw him. We had a frank discussion. We received him, at least I did, out of courtesy. He is a sitting member of the legislature and worthy of a hearing," Bawlf explained.

Bawlf said Liberal leader Gordon Gibson had also contacted him, asking him to run as a Liberal. He had given Gibson a hearing for the same reason as he had Scott Wallace and Gibson had received the same answer.

City Police Unhappy

he notes it is "now too late in the year" to set up a plan within the contract period.

He recommends the police board and union set up a committee to choose a dental plan, thrash out the financing details and submit it for the 1976 contract. Failing agreement, the matter should be referred to an arbitration board.

Barclay observes that during the hearing the union "devoted a great deal of time and effort to establish that the department was seriously undermanned."

He adds: "The arbitrator is sympathetic to the Victoria police's desire to provide the best possible service to the citizen. Nevertheless he considers it is not within his jurisdiction to rule on this question."

Priorities are involved, he says, and the responsibility for determining the department's strength must rest with the B.C. Police Commission, the Victoria police board and city council.

Mayor Peter Pollen said today he generally considers Barclay's report "sound in its judgment," but he expressed concern that the higher ranking officers' wage disparity between Victoria and Saanich "will constitute the basis for continuing disenchantment by our police force."

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith told council Monday night that the municipality has committed itself to matching the city award as far as wages are concerned, but not the fringe benefits of the award.

He added that the firefighters award in the city, which Oak Bay would also follow, is not yet known.

Oak Bay has historically followed city agreements for firefighters and policemen.

TOP UIC PAYMENT TO INCREASE $10

OTTAWA (UPI) — Maximum unemployment insurance payments will increase Jan. 4 by $10 to $133 a week, Manpower Minister Robert Andras said today.

The ceiling on insurable earnings will be raised from $185 to $200 a week and since the maximum benefit payable is two-thirds of weekly earnings, top level payments will rise to $133, he said.

Minimum insurable earnings will be increased to $40 from $37 a week, raising the new minimum unemployment payments to $27 from $23 a week.

Law Distorted: Top Time Executive

OTTAWA (CP) — A prolonged Commons debate on the future of Time magazine and Reader's Digest ended under closure Monday amid charges by a Time executive that the government distorted the law to upset plans for keeping the Canadian edition of the magazine alive.

Telegrams containing the accusation were delivered to all 263 MPs shortly before government-imposed closure abruptly ended second reading debate on tax legislation denying Canadian advertisers in Time, Reader's Digest and several smaller foreign-owned publications 100 per cent tax deductions for advertising costs.

The bill would place similar restrictions on Canadian advertisers who now spend about $20 million a year to advertise on border U.S. television stations.

The telegram signed by Stephen LaRue of Toronto, Time (Canada) Ltd. president pleaded for a delay in the Jan. 1 implementation date of the legislation.

It also charged that the government's editorial content quota has added "a dangerous and destructive new dimension" to its magazine policy.

LaRue said a requirement that magazines be at least 80 per cent different in content from foreign publications to be classed as Canadian for tax purposes apparently was aimed at thwarting Time's plans to continue publishing its 550,000-circulation weekly Canadian edition.

"It seems to us to distort the meaning of the law to serve an essentially political and discriminatory end — namely to put beyond reach our ability to turn Time Canada into a quality Canadian magazine," the telegram stated.

Acting under closure, a controversial procedural tactic to limit debate, the Commons gave the bill second reading — approval in principle — and sent it to the broadcasting committee.

The committee is expected to begin Wednesday or Thursday when Progressive Conservative opponents and possibly some disgruntled Liberals will suggest reductions in the 80 per cent content requirement.

CLIQUE BLAMED

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's move to end special tax privileges for Time and Reader's Digest will alienate the United States at a time when the world is threatened with world Communist domination, a Liberal MP says.

Simma Holt (L—Vancouver-Kingsway) said in a letter to MPs last spring that she would oppose the government bill, being debated in the Commons.

Excerpts of Mrs. Holt's letter were read in the Commons Monday by Allan McKinnon (PC—Victoria).

Mrs. Holt wrote:

"At the very time when free societies are being swallowed up in the Communist thrust to achieve its proclaimed aim — world domination — this action is symbolic of a concerted effort to alienate an old and strong ally and Canada's oldest friend, the United States.

"One wonders if we are not being used by the small but vocal Toronto-based anti-American clique."

2 Groups Protest Ottawa Secrecy

OTTAWA (CP) — The government systematically is withholding information from the public to protect itself against criticism, a parliamentary committee was told They were testifying before Monday.

A consumer activist and witnesses from a civil liberties group urged passage of a freedom of information act to force government departments to make public secret documents.

They were testifying before the Senate-Commons committee on statutory instruments, which is studying government policy towards secrecy and the public's right to know.

Ken Rubin, a frequent intervenor in government hearings and an organizer of Action Bell Canada, said that among civil servants "there is a disease in hiding information particularly when it is used to benefit a few."

"Civil servants take an oath to be secretive, not to serve the public effectively," his brief said.

The national capital region branch of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association said public access to information "is almost entirely at the whim of the government of the day."

Both civil servants and the government have vested interests in keeping information secret, the association brief said.

Trudeau Confident Labor Sensible

OTTAWA (FP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday he was confident that "good sense" would block the efforts of Quebec union leaders to launch massive strikes to protest federal wage controls.

Trudeau told the Commons his government was ready to be "patient" and to meet any union leaders to discuss their objections to the wage and price controls.

He said he agreed with Social Credit Leader Real Caouette that general labor walkouts in Quebec or throughout Canada would mean "an incredible economic catastrophy."

The Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions Sunday called for a 24-hour Canada-wide protest strike in co-operation with the Canadian Labor Congress.

Failing that, delegates to a weekend convention urged a province-wide strike.

However, Trudeau told Caouette that "the government still has confidence in the good sense of Quebec citizens."

Sex Criminals Free ... Despite Courts

OTTAWA (CP) — A directive from Penitentiaries Commissioner Andre Therrien states that inmates declared to be dangerous sexual offenders by the courts shall not be granted "temporary absences" by prison officials.

However, at least a dozen dangerous sexual offenders have been given such passes in the last year, a random sampling of a long list supplied to police by penitentiary officials shows.

The list was given to John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Delta-Richmond) by police after he was told by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand Nov. 7 that dangerous sexual offenders are not given temporary absences.

Reynolds said in the Commons Monday that the computer print-out lists a number of dangerous sexual offenders and habitual criminals.

He asked Allmand whether disciplinary action will be taken against prison officials for violating the commissioner's directive, which was issued more than a year ago after a number of crimes by sexual offenders out on passes.

"If certain people are being let out contrary to the directive, he (Reynolds) should give me names," Allmand said.

"He has given me one already and we are checking on that. If he has any others, he should give them all to me and we will check on those as well."

Reynolds said later that he had turned up six dangerous sexual offenders in the first inch of the "six-inch thick" print-out.

Besides DSO's as the print-out lists dangerous sexual offenders, who are imprisoned for indefinite periods under the Criminal Code, there are numerous habs (men convicted as hibitual criminals), "viols" (violent offenders), and rapists.

Two men given temporary absences from Agassiz Correctional Camp in British Columbia are listed as dangerous sexual offenders and a third as a VSO, an abbreviation Reynolds said meant "vicious sexual offender."

One of the three was given 21 "temporary absences" between July 27, 1974, and June 22, 1975.

All-Day Chore Facing Tories

By PETER THOMSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The large number of entries in the Progressive Conservative leadership race is creating possible problems for voting at the convention here Feb. 18-22.

Convention organizers fear that elimination voting could go on-and-on.

With the entry of Montreal lawyer Brian Mulroney into the race last week there are already nine contestants and at least two more expected.

Under usual convention rules only the candidate with the fewest votes is eliminated after each ballot. Unless there were voluntary withdrawals that would mean 10 ballots — an all day proposition.

Don Mazankowski, deputy chairman of the convention, confirmed Monday that organizers had considered a run-off on Feb. 21, Saturday, with voting on finalists carried over to Feb. 22.

"That idea has been discarded," Majankowski said.

He indicated, however, that organizers are trying to come up with a formula whereby candidates receiving less than a certain number of votes, or less than a certain percentage of votes cast on the first ballot, would be eliminated from the race.

No final solution has been reached yet.

Relatively few members of the Parliamentary caucus have yet indicated their support for one candidate or another.

Present plans call for nomination speeches on Feb. 21 and the voting Feb. 22.

Organizers had originally thought of holding the vote on the Saturday.

However, in view of the number of entries in the leadership race it is feared balloting would continue late into the evening and would conflict with the hockey telecast.

Although there is a danger that some delegates will have to leave Sunday to get back to their jobs, the voting is likely to be all confined to that day.

That is why it has become imperative to find a way to reduce the number of ballots.

Another consideration for holding the voting on Sunday is that there is likely to be a much larger television audience that day.

Pollen Takes the Cake

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen has finally announced that he will seek the city's Social Credit nomination in the forthcoming provincial election. It would be convenient to say the mayor is showing his true colors at last, but the man is such a kaleidoscope we are hesitant to say Social Credit will be the mayor's final resting place. Pollen has had flirtations with the Liberals in the past and has even run as an Oak Bay Social Credit candidate. If the mayor wins the Victoria nomination and Social Credit forms the next government Bill Bennett will have inherited a whirling dervish who is difficult to encompass in any party philosophy, especially a party that appears to be all tail and no head.

It is also interesting to know that Pollen sought a Social Credit membership about one year ago on a confidential basis. Is this our non partisan mayor who doesn't like party politics on the municipal level? Is this the non partisan mayor who only a few days ago criticized NDP candidates as being "overwhelmingly unqualified?" It is indeed. And it is the same man who has said all kinds of nasty things about the Social Credit Party, including bawling out the party in no uncertain terms when he addressed the Saanich and the Islands Social Credit Association last June 23.

Peter Pollen, the man who once called Bill Bennett's Socreds a party to the right of Genghis Khan, now refers to them as a generator of hope for the renaissance of the middle right. Who or what has changed? The Socreds or Peter Pollen? Only a week ago Pollen called a press conference to say he would not run for any party in the next provincial election. Now Conservative Party Leader Scott Wallace surfaces with the news that both Bawlf and Pollen promised to run for the Tories in the forthcoming election — a statement that is backed by Esquimalt-Saanich MP Donald Munro. Meanwhile, Pollen, blithe spirit that he is, announces Monday morning that he will seek the Socred blessing.

Victoria Social Credit incumbent Newell Morrison should view the antics of Bawlf and Pollen with interest. Are they trying to take over his organization? The nominating meeting tonight will be fascinating. If Pollen is successful in getting the Victoria nomination he could win the seat, taking Bawlf along with him, on the basis of his four popular years as mayor. This will undoubtedly be a factor when the Socreds vote tonight on nominations. In a sense, this is becoming a habit at Social Credit nominating meetings. The Johnny-come-latelies are parachuted in at the last moment and the party faithful pushed aside. It says little for the so-called new style Social Credit party's ethics.

If Pollen is eventually elected he could be a deskmate of former Saanich mayor Hugh Curtis. They should have interesting conversations considering past arguments. And of course there will be those two former Liberal lawyers Garde Gardom and Allan Williams. The mayor once said he left the provincial Liberals "because they are absolutely lawyer ridden." This mayor of ours is as changeable as the winds on Juan de Fuca strait.

As for the Social Credit party, it seems ready to embrace its erstwhile critics with an enthusiasm that would embarrass any political party with a cogent philosophy. As we have said before, this isn't a party, it's a cake mix, and Peter Pollen appears to be the cherry on some very strange icing.

New Arabs of Saskatchewan

OTTAWA — Allan Blakeney looks and acts exactly like the kind of lawyer you'd want to have represent you in court, the kind that judges feel at ease with. Hair short, but flecked with premature grey. Soft-spoken. Brainy, as you'd expect from a Rhodes scholar. Meticulous in speech and contained in his movements, except for an occasional involuntary bob of the head and a crinkling of the eyes when he plots a bit of repartee. All in a forgettable, and safe, blue suit.

Respectability oozes out of every pore — except for one thing. With his dark blue suit the New Democratic premier of Saskatchewan wears a bright red tie.

Potash Blunder

The ties serves as a clue to character by its don't-give-a-damn boldness. It's easy to overlook Blakeney in a crowd, but that tie would warn you you'd be making a blunder.

The owners of Saskatchewan's $1 billion potash mining industry have made that mistake. For over two years, they have fought Blakeney's new mining tax legislation by every means from court actions to a freeze of all potash mining expansion. Last week Blakeney raised his voice. The province, he announced in the throne speech, will nationalize half the province's potash mines. As likely as not, he'll eventually take over all the mines.

The motives for Blakeney's decision all were strictly local. He was determined not to become "a spectator to the development of our own resource." The new Crown corporation will bring to Saskatchewan about 400 managerial and research jobs now located in the U.S. and Toronto. The province gains total authority over its own resource — and, as a side benefit, will escape paying corporation taxes to Ottawa.

The implications of what Blakeney has done are not only staggering for Canada. Since most of the potash (after nitrogen and phosphate it is the third essential fertilizer) is exported, they are international.

In sheer scale, for a province with a population of less than one million, Blakeney's intervention in the private sector has few precedents. He estimates the cost to the province at $500 million to $1 billion. Comparisons are difficult because the effect of inflation has to be discounted, but Quebec's dramatic nationalization of provincial power companies in 1962 cost only $600 million. Newfoundland's recent takeover of Brinco's power project in Labrador is the direction Blakeney has pointed for others to follow.

"The political pressure on other governments to do the same thing is going to be tremendous," says Eric Kierans, former Liberal cabinet minister who in a 1973 report to Manitoba's NDP government was the first major public figure to propose nationalization of the mining industry.

The closest equivalents to Saskatchewan's potash in terms of the concentration of a resource industry within a single province, Kierans points out, are the asbestos mines of Quebec and the oil and gas industry of Alberta.

By this bold act, Blakeney has "tilted" decisively the relationship between all governments and the mining industry. Opposition to government, he has shown, can be met by a response to which there can be no reply — a total takeover of the industry.

"Arbitrary and unprecedented," said John Carpenter, president of the Canadian Potash Producers' Association.

True, but also irrevocable.

Still, Blakeney also is a lawyer. He's marshalled his brief, and he's picked his case. The potash companies, most of them U.S.-owned, can count on little public support. Despite the size of its sales — some $500 million this year — the industry only directly employs 3,500 people.

Difficulties Mastered

Now that the technical difficulties of drilling through the water-sodden Blairmore formation have been mastered, potash mining itself is relatively straightforward and can be done as readily by government as by private industry.

Lastly, Blakeney knows full well that the case in the end will be settled out of court — on his terms.

Was he not afraid, I asked, that U.S. buyers, who take 75 per cent of Saskatchewan's potash production, would be reluctant to deal with a government agency.

"We have 40 per cent of the world's supply of potash," answered Blakeney. "Think of comparisons. I haven't noticed the oil companies being reluctant to buy from the Arabs."

MAURICE WESTERN

Discriminate? Good Gracious!

OTTAWA — It now appears that the public interest suffered no irreparable damage from recent newspaper articles based on a draft report of the joint Senate-House of Commons committee on immigration policy, material which was somehow leaked to reporters. Nothing in the finished report, which appeared late last week suggests that the country was misled by the unrefined version.

The corollary is that polishing and refining have worked very little improvement.

In opting for a partly open door, the committee has been impressed by two arguments; the first demographic, the second economic. With the fall in fertility rates and the emigration drain, we are going to need immigration to maintain a population estimated at about 28 million in the first half of the coming century. We can also expect an abrupt decline in the rate of entry into the labor force. The Economic Council of Canada has warned that his change, occurring at the end of the decade, may mean labor shortages, threatening future development.

Floor of 100,000

Accordingly, the committee favors an immigration floor of 100,000 persons annually. It proposes no ceiling but recommends yearly targets to be set by the minister and approved by parliament. It favors a more managed system, capable of regulating the total flow in a fair, nondiscriminatory and efficient manner.

In this new system there would be only two categories of immigrants, the sponsored and the independents. The present nominated class would disappear, although independents might claim five points for a relative in Canada, 10 if that relative was a Canadian citizen.

The number of admissible independents would be determined by subtracting from the target figure an estimate of sponsored newcomers. How would the limited places be allotted? The committee, after considering various options, endorses the principle of first come, first served. Each approved immigrant would receive a listing. He would take his place in a queue.

It has been the burden of a good deal of criticism that the exercise which began with the Green Paper is designed, in reality, to justify a more restrictive policy. The committee is obviously aware of this. On page seven of the report, it endorses the view of Dr. Harvey Lithwick that it is "disastrous" to tie immigration policy to short-term economic developments.

After discussing the points system, which is to govern the admissibility of independents, and offering various suggestions for improvements, the committee, however, takes a very sharp turn on page 32. It "further recommends that, in times of high unemployment in Canada, it should automatically become mandatory that an independent immigrant have either an arranged job or the skills required in a designated occupation."

There is a difference between "occupational demand," a means of allotting points from zero to 15 to skills in accordance with national demand; and "designated occupation." Applying the latter criterion, the department identifies occupations in very high demand in specific localities and matches these documented requirements with the qualifications of applicants. What is offered is practically the same as the arranged job.

Presumably, this is a time of high unemployment and what the committee proposes is a short-term policy aberration which could scarcely be more restrictive. Never mind points for education, training, language, youth or relatives. Never mind adaptability. There is one simple test — the round peg must fit the round hole.

IMMIGRATION PAMPHLETS
. . . establishing two kinds

Having established the queue, the committee is in a position to satisfy the planning aspirations of the manpower department in more normal periods. The idea is to direct immigrants to "designated areas" and to keep them there. A designated area is described as one "where people are needed," Canadians as well as immigrants. It would be determined in consultation with provincial authorities to ensure that immigrants were in fact desired and jobs available.

Why not simply award points to persons willing to go to such areas. The committee fears that this would attract only marginally desirable immigrants who might not adapt. Rather than take this risk, it proposes to exploit its creation by permitting those who sign the equivalent of contracts of indenture to jump the queue.

If the people are needed and jobs are available, what is the virtue of a queue? Non-signatories, the committee insists, will not be excluded. They are admissible people but they will have to wait. So will the communities or industries which require their skills. What purpose will delay serve? It would be more reasonable to offer points for refusal, which ought to be reassuring evidence to the immigration officer of the intelligence of the applicants.

Indenture Racket

The committee, doubtless anticipating criticism, insists that the proposed contracts would be "entirely voluntary." Immigration racketeers could have said the same about contracts of indenture. No one forced people to accept them. They signed in ignorance and were exploited later.

It is arguable that, if an applicant expresses willingness to go to a designated area, formal landing should not be completed until he has taken a job there or reported to the local manpower office that work is not available in that district. But the immigrant bound by contract will be tied to the spot for two years even if better opportunities appear elsewhere. In effect, he will be denied freedom of movement and freedom of occupation. Over his head will be a Damocletian sword. If he yields to temptation, in a country distinguished for the high mobility of its work force, he will not be deported but "required to depart." It is to be hoped he appreciates the distinction.

Meanwhile other immigrants will move as they please. There will be the free and the unfree but no discrimination. Perish the thought.

Say That Again . . .

"In his policy commitment, political sense, grasp of contemporary issues and high-spirited public performance, David Barrett is the kind of provincial leader Canada needs. Let's hope British Columbia feels it needs him too." — Montreal Gazette, in an editorial supporting the NDP in the Dec. 11 B.C. election.

And just saying these things, you know, I hear that fellow saying: 'Oh, here is that petty dictator.' Well, you can ask for leadership and you can't ask for controls and not realize that the government is going to have to exercise more power." — Prime Minister Trudeau.

"In the whole history of the world, whenever a meat-eating race has gone to war against a non meat-eating race, the meat eaters won." — U.S. Senator Carl Curtis, a Republican from Nebraska, in a senate debate on cattle feed additives.

Vital Election

This provincial election, vital to B.C.'s life is honing the intellect of youth, satiating the skepticism of the middle-aged and rejuvenating the old.

Youth, pondering capitalism charisma, fear being led into economic depression, wherein people laugh to live and cry for sustenance. Laughter and tears wasted on old-line party promises.

The middle-aged, floundering in the economic quicksand of capitalism, seek solid ground for family proviso, Grabbing at "free enterprise" straws to solidify security is demoralizing.

The old are ill at heart, yet fighting mad as they sit ringside and hear capitalism strutting as champions of the people. Oldsters have long refereed capitalism's self-centred champions. The old know 10th round disgust.

B.C. oldsters want B.C.'s youth to speak up as rightful heirs to this bountiful province, and to its perpetuity. The old want the middle-aged to find solidarity and reward for its labor, and to preserve it for its children.

The oldsters want B.C. to vote. Not for petty, political charade, but for the party fighting to perpetuate B.C.'s total resources for all people for all time. — Ernie R. Smith, 3968 Bear Street.

Crosswalk Praised

The Doncaster school auxiliary wishes to indicate its gratitude for the presence of the adult crosswalk guard at the Shelbourne-Cedar crosswalk.

The traffic conditions in this portion of Shelbourne Street have become even worse since our survey of a year ago, with almost no breaks in the traffic flow during crosswalk-use hours. Even adults are now experiencing hair-raising conditions when using this crosswalk. As there is an increase in the number of kindergarten students from the east side of Shelbourne Street, the presence of the crosswalk guard has not only relieved much parental anxiety, but has probably prevented a tragedy.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to the minister and department of education; to the school board and superintendent of district 61; to the Saanich police and traffic engineers for their co-operation; to the people of the community for their support; and most especially to those parents who assisted in all the various aspects of the November, 1974 survey of the traffic conditions at the Shelbourne-Cedar crosswalk.

We thank you. — I. E. Camp, Doncaster School Auxiliary.

Cable Input

For the past five years, we at Cable Ten have been criticized by community activists, the press, and by well-meaning citizens who simply do not realize that a community channel only reflects the aims and ideas of the local population in which it serves.

Amateurs and professionals have contributed greatly to the programming design over the past years and we are most pleased to be associated with these dedicated individuals who have given many hours of their time to provide this community with additional knowledge in various fields.

If anyone feels that some of the programs could be improved, he or she has simply to pick up the phone, have an idea and express their views "on the air" on a first come, first served basis.

All of us at Cable Ten work long hours to help various citizen groups, students, religious organizations, politicians etc., but without the support and help of this community the whole idea behind "cablecasting" becomes an exercise in futility. We need input, constructive criticism, not inflammatory remarks and takeovers by groups of individuals who, in the past, may not have made proper use of the facilities available to them.

This channel has an open door policy. We can advise, participate, complement other forms of media, sometimes produce and direct our own programs, but we cannot do it all. Give us your proposals, accept some of our directives and you may be pleasantly surprised. — Gil St. Denis, Cable Ten, 3690 Shelbourne Street.

Waffles and Such

In your editorial of Nov. 12 entitled, Who's in Centre, the writer of the editorial downgrades a statement made by Rev. William Mundy.

Rev. Mundy is quoted to have said that "The NDP is being dominated by 'totalitarism Marxist theorists'."

The writer of the editorial has obviously never read the NDP Waffle manifesto, nor has he noticed how it is being implemented by the NDP.

If the writer, of the editorial, has read the NDP Waffle manifesto, and contradicts the above statement, made by Rev. Mundy, it is obvious where his political affiliations are, and, may I point out, the lifeline of any newspaper is free enterprise advertising. Only a university paper can afford to back socialism or communism. — C. S. Vickery, 3772 Tillicum Road.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 18, 1915

LONDON — The Right Honorable Winston Churchill, in the uniform of his regiment, left for the front this morning. His wife bade him farewell at the railroad station, where he passed unrecognized on the platform as he waited to enter a special car. He became widely known as a soldier before he began his political career. He entered the army in 1895 after graduating from Sandhurst. He served with the Malakand field force in 1907, was present at the battle of Khartoum and also saw service in the Boer war.

OVER TO YOU, MR. MALONEY

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The consecration of Arthur Maloney as first ombudsman of Ontario took place in the Ontario Legislature. Skeptics could see in the ceremony — one columnist labelled it a "coronation" — a "jump-up" ritual which exaggerated the role that the ombudsman may play or should play.

The Scandinavian concept of the ombudsman as a free, neutral entertainer and investigator of any citizen's grievance with the way administrative persons and offices of government have treated him, was first floated in parliamentary circles in Ottawa in the early 1960s. A Carleton University professor, Donald Rowat, did much to popularize the idea. The conception was debated and eventually examined by a House of Commons committee under the initial auspices of, firstly a Calgary Tory MP, Arthur Smith, secondly, Robert Thompson, then the leader of the Social Credit party.

Some Liberal MPs, including John Turner, thought the office and role incompatible with the legal traditions and system of courts in Canada and with parliamentary practices. Consequently, the federal government did nothing with the conception.

It was the Alberta government of Ernest Manning which legislated, created and appointed the first ombudsman in Canada. Now, with Ontario's acceptance, half the provinces have ombudsmen. One may hope that in the next decade all will have them, and also the federal jurisdiction.

MALONEY
. . . ombudsman

Ten years ago in the Ontario legislature, Vernon Singer, now the Liberal MPP from Toronto Downsview, set out to popularize the ombudsman concept by means of a private bill, based largely on legislation of the dominion of New Zealand.

In the speech from the throne last March the intention to create the office in Ontario was announced. On May 22 Premier Davis told the legislature that a bill would be brought in shortly and that he had obtained the agreement of the distinguished lawyer and ex-Conservative MP, Arthur Maloney, to serve as the first ombudsman.

Maloney's selection and acceptance brought praise from all sides. It ended speculation as to whether the post would be offered to an earlier, controversial personification of grievance handling, Dr. Morton Shulman, or to Arthur Wishart, a former attorney-general who had once brought to cabinet a draft bill for an ombudsman.

The debate on the bill began on June 10. Anyone perusing its stretch in Hansard over half a dozen sittings in the next fortnight would agree with the following: Maloney was an inspired and inspiring choice; the long gestation of the idea in Canada and the models in place, as in Alberta, had brought all parties and members around to support of the principle; a few of the thoughtful MPPs, particularly the NDP's Jim Renwick, and Singer, the original sponsor, had thought out the role and problems of the ombudsman-to-be rather thoroughly.

It is already clear from Maloney's staffing of his office and the fields he intends to operate in, that he is going to throw a very wide loop.

Further, the consecration with its august ceremonies was certainly staged to give the office a majesty and an authority that would make it immediately recognizable as important and very distinct from the government, the legislature as a partisan place, and from the courts.

At the ceremony Mr. Maloney made a most felicitous address. It was a personal and rather romantic one — very Irish and very Tory.

Premier Davis spoke in friendly, low-key terms, so did the opposition party leaders, Stephen Lewis and Bob Nixon.

It was somewhat unfortunate that neither the leaders nor Mr. Maloney took the occasion to distinguish that the ombudsman's office is not a court, that he may not deal with general grievances but only with those arising from the operations, and actions (or failure to act) of Ontario departments or agencies.

No one bothered to spell out the unique relationships which must be developed between the ombudsman, the legislature and individual MPPs, particularly to make the point that the ombudsman is not a super-MPP but an agent of the legislature who has been given a unique writ to intervene through the mantel of ministerial responsibility and the traditional anonymity of the public servant to find out whether a decision or action or an evasion or a failure to act has been done fairly, thoroughly and in line with the powers and rights given by law and regulations to the bureaucracy and to the citizen.

To accept the concept of the ombudsman is to accept that big government can be unfair or dilatory or insensitive in its work and that the "fail-safe" for the citizen available though his elected representative is no longer adequate.

The act empowers the ombudsman to investigate the complaint of any person affected by "any decision or recommendation made or any act done or omitted in the course of the administration" of the government. He can initiate his own investigation or he can investigate any complaint by an MPP. It's an enormous, pervasive but rather unobtrusive writ. Now we'll see if Mr. Maloney can do it well and as a complement to the elected representatives of the people.

A Gathering of Dull Little Darlings

By JUDY BACHRACH

HELLMAN

ONASSIS

FONDA
. . . salutes champ

NEW YORK — "No," said Lillian Hellman, who suffered through the McCarthy era and prevailed, "No, I wouldn't describe it as bitterness. It was a state of shock for many years. I was very angry — angry with myself for having been dope enough to believe anything else. Living became a day-to-day affair! Did one have enough to live through that month, that week?"

She is Lillian Hellman at 70, a fine playwright, a woman whose published reminiscences betray a delicate and consistent evasiveness about herself ("Thank you," she is pleased and beaming, "I'm glad you noticed that") and who, at long last, after four tries, has managed now to write about her own experiences during her worst of times. It's called "Scoundrel Time" — to be published in April.

"I think you learn certain lessons you never get over. I think you learn there's no such thing as security." The leonine face twists into a frown. "Silly word. You should never have had it in the first place."

Lillian Hellman is in her Park Avenue apartment, a tiny woman diminished further by the large airy rooms filled with plants and sunlight and old furniture. "Yes," she says, "I was luckier than most."

Luckier, for instance, than detective novelist Dashiell Hammett, the man she loved and lived with, who went to jail during Scoundrel Time. Five years back Lillian Hellman founded The Committee for Public Justice, a civil liberties organization that has, among other things, investigated the FBI. The committee threw a party for her Sunday night, the kind of affair that included a dinner at Gallagher's steak house preceded by extracts from her plays and books at Circle in the Square. ($150 if one attended both). Mike Nichols helped direct; Jane Fonda, Christopher Plummer, Maureen Stapleton did some of the acting.

"I think I'll have a pleasant time, but I'll be nervous," she says decisively. "I'm always nervous when I hear my own plays."

It was to be, finally, the kind of affair to which all the gossamer names insisted on coming. And so, to quote one organizer, "Success can be as agonizing as failure." Where does one seat Lennie and Felicia (Bernstein)? What to do with Mrs. Onassis?"

"Evidently," Lillian Hellman says drily, "This party is fashionable. I get calls from people I haven't seen in 20 years asking for tickets. I'm appalled. I'm appalled that anyone would think I'm handling the tickets." She bursts out laughing.

Jacqueline Onassis, around whom Leonard Bernstein danced attendance, Warren Beatty on his way to Paris, Candice Bergen who came with Mike Nichols, Dick Tuck, Jane Fonda, Nora Ephron and Carl Bernstein, Sidney Lumet, Ryan and Tatum O'Neal who dashed madly into the theatre ducking masses of fierce photographers that inclued Ron Galella who wanted to be quoted, Jean and Stephen Smith . . . All these people paid homage to Lillian Hellman.

"I've known her 10, 12 years," said Mrs. Onassis, seated between Leonard Bernstein and Oliver Smith, the set designer who was her escort. "I don't know where I met her. Here, the Cape . . ." She was wearing a black blouse, black trousers and a laconic gaze. Yes, Caroline was going to spend "the rest of the year" in England. Asked about reports that she asked her daughter to come back after the bombing incident, she replied sharply, "Well, I didn't."

Gone was the dreamy smile. The eyes flashed. "Look, let's not talk about Caroline any more, okay? There's been enough about her."

And so we move on to Jane Fonda whose husband, Tom Hayden, running in a primary against Sen. John Tunney (D—Calif.) asked if a victory for her husband would signal an era of Fonda rolling bandages, she said she didn't think so.

"Who's the most famous person in the world?" Fonda demanded.

"Jacqueline Onassis," came the answer from a chorus of reporters.

Fonda demurred. "No," she said, 'Muhammad Ali." Who, she claimed, was going to stump for Tom. And as for herself, she's going to play the part of Lillian Hellman in "Julie" (an extract from Hellman's "Pentimento") which will be released next year.

Around Warren Beatty, effusive compliments and importunate questions rained like diamonds. In all of this, through all of this, Lillian Hellman remained quite still, concentrating on her close friends, on her rare steak. From all the brash questions assaulting the celebrities, she alone was exempt.

People are in awe of Lillian Hellman, and people — although she'd be the last to admit it — accord her a respect born as much out of fear as of deference.

"I've always had a theory that they aren't scared of me," she says with a small jerking motion of her head. "If they're frightened of me, it just shows what darlings they are. What dull little darlings . . ."

Dr. Jerome Wiesner, the president of NIT, rose to speak on behalf of the Committee, but the decibel level was so loud in the restaurant that Lillian Hellman felt outraged by their rudeness. Stalking to the mike, deploying what she calls her "fishwife scream" she cried, "Be still for a minute."

Then she moved back to her table, muttering, "drunken bastards" and sat throughout Dr. Wiesner's speech, silent and impassive — even when he called her "an institution."

"Did you see that?" Leonard Bernstein was delighted. "That for me was the greatest performance of the evening.

That was the old Lillian, the real Lillian. Au gratin."

It was a manifestation of the old anger, the old energy, but Lillian Hellman says some of that is gone. Years and years ago, she called Dashiell Hammett from New York and the phone was answered by a woman Hammett claimed was his secretary. It took a few hours, but Lillian Hellman at last remembered he had no secretary. So she took the next flight out to the Coast, marched into his house, wrecked his soda water bar, and flew back.

"Nah, I don't have that kind of energy any more," laughs Lillian Hellman. Now, I'd go to the airport and fall asleep."

A Middle Class Emerging From Social Turbulence in Russia

By RICHARD DAVY
The Times, London

From the outside the Soviet Union looks a fairly alarming place, bristling with weapons and propagating ideas about itself and the world that bode nobody much good. From inside it does not look wholly reassuring but it does look different. It is not a tightly controlled system run by master chess players. It is a huge and barely manageable collection of 108 nationalities stretching nearly halfway around the globe. It is run by conservative and sometimes corrupt bureaucrats who spend a lot of time trying to solve problems which they themselves create. It is far more disorganized, pluralistic, improvised and human than it looks from outside.

Most members of the small group of very hard-working men at the top are struggling to modernize the country, but even they may not always be sure that the system is ready for the implications. Their policy of detente with the West creates almost as many problems as it solves. It arouses expectations which are difficult to satisfy. It requires new priorities and new methods of decision-making which threaten powerful interests in the apparatus. It demands adjustments to Western interests that go against centuries of tradition.

The years since the Revolution have been short and turbulent and the post-Stalinist system is only just coming of age.

People who have lived in the Soviet Union say that everyday life is less normal than it seems, that there are deep currents of frustration and tension, and that everything is degraded and distorted by the miasma of untruth that pervades the system.

A visitor must make more limited judgments, and even then it is difficult to know what standards to apply. More than a quarter of Americans are said to be worried about losing their jobs. Russians have different worries and probably different joys. Comparisons are difficult between different cultures. By Asian standards, or measured against their own recent past, the Russians are well off. But it is true that the manipulation of information is a serious problem that ought to be cooly analyzed by the leadership.

The better side of the coin is that higher priority is now being given to meeting the material needs of the people.

The private motor-car is becoming a fairly common sight. Flats built under license are coming off the assembly line at about 660,000 a year. They cost more than three years' average wages but older people have amassed huge savings through years of shortages and younger families with working wives in good jobs can save a lot if they put their minds to it.

Basic necessities are cheap, including transport and cultural events. Rents of state flats are about 3 to 5 per cent of family income, unless one goes to the black market. About 63 per cent of households now have television sets, 73 per cent have radios, 57 per cent have washing machines and 43 per cent have refrigerators. What people now want is quality and service, and until they get it they pour huge sums into savings while stocks of the shoddier goods pile up.

In many ways it is a slow and cramped society, better for the weak and the average than for innovators. There is little incentive to take risks and responsibility and it is usually safer to take no decision than the wrong one.

But there is movement. Under constant pressure from the top and grumbling from below, the system is having to adapt to more affluence, to the more complex needs of the population, and to the unpredictable demands of the consumer market.

The result is that something like a middle class is emerging. It does not have the entrepreneurial interests that fostered democracy in the West but it does want stability, prosperity, rationality, legality, better information, good education for its children and promotion by merit rather than by party loyalty. It is not particularly ideological but it probably would not want the system destabilized or provoked into reaction.

Teaching by Example?

harry bruce

Robert Stanfield says it's obvious the federal government intends to tough out these tough times in "pretty sumptuous bunkers"; and the failure of MPs to understand the public psychology with regard to inflation astonished Senator Eugene Forsey.

Forsey wants MPs to "redeem" themselves by rejecting the $2,000 raises they're supposed to get January 1, and that's one of the best ideas out of Ottawa since somebody first handed Russ Jackson a football.

Forsey has another good idea. Nearly 1,400 senior public service functionaries — when you're talking in hundreds the word "mandarin" no longer applies — got raises up to $6,000 just before Trudeau declared that everyone else in the country would have to settle for relatively miniscule increases. Forsty thinks they, too, should eschew their raises.

I'd like to see a draft-Forsey movement in the Conservative Party. Well, why not? Everyone else and his-her uncle is running for the Tory leadership. Perhaps he could at least bring about the open marriage of deep-down basic interests that Red Tories have always insisted the working class shares with them. Anyway, he knows the constitution and the way he's talking these days, he knows what's bugging the people. What Tory leadership candidate can say as much?

Those fat, pre-Thanksgiving raises for the cream of the public service confirmed once again that no matter what happens to the rest of us, the Ottawa Establishment will look after its own; that, no matter what differences may pop up among federal politicians and federal public servants, they have a profound and mutual understanding of the vital importance of their own income security.

This breeds public cynicism. This means it's difficult for us to generate in our hearts the "Dunkirk spirit" that the premier of Nova Scotia says we'll all need to defeat inflation.

This means that whenever our revered prime minister appears on our installment-bought TV sets and solemnly conscribes us for the death struggle against inflation, we are inclined to throw back at him his own historic rally cry: "So's your old man. Or was it, "Eat waste?"

Are we not entitled to question his suggestion that it's we who've created inflation when we know, for instance, that in the second quarter of 1975 the average wage increase in government was 23.9 per cent while in private industry it was a mere 14.7 per cent? (At what other time in our history, incidentally, has the word "mere" fitted so naturally before a 14.7 per cent wage increase?)

Are we to applaud a government that blows $20,000 on booze for an airport freeload and, nine days later, tells us we've all got to learn to live within our means? "Oriental lavishness" was the phrase Forsey used to describe the party at Mirabel. I hope everyone who helped drink up my money there suffered a hideous hangover.

Treasury Board President Jean Chretien conceded that well, heh heh, maybe the airport opening did cost "a little too much" but hastened to explain that, next year, the government would restrict public-service growth to only 1.5 per cent. This means, of course, that the government will hire at least 5,000 men and women in 1976. That's restraint?

Yes, Chretien said, the government won't even let its employees buy new office furniture or new cars at public expense next year. I guess a lot of them will just have to make do with their cheesy, old '75 models. That's hitting them where they live, Jean baby.

Moreover, public servants won't be allowed to travel first-class in '76. No more champagne, filet mignon and flannel socks for their tootsies as they whip around the country via Air Canada. Gosh, and here I'd thought they'd always traveled economy-class anyway. How naive can you get?

The prime minister adopts a professorial attitude towards his pupils, the people of Canada, and I don't mind that. Indeed, I wish he'd carry his classroom technique a step further than he has. We kids really dig teaching by example.

The war on inflation will go a whole lot better when members of cabinet ostentatiously take to salary freezes for themselves, small cars, fire-sale suits, home-made beer, backyard vegetable gardens and do-it-yourself plumbing.

The news I want is that, on Monday night, our prime minister's supper consisted of soup made by Margaret from the remains of Friday's supermarket special on chicken backs. You might object that Trudeau's publicizing unnecessary (for him) domestic economies would be hypocritical. I would reply, "So what else is new?"

Professor, heal thyself.

When you've got a great idea, two things happen...

1. The public responds enthusiastically.
2. The competition tries to copy the idea.

Hundreds of Victorians took advantage of our Prime 55 plan within the first few days it was offered. And it keeps on growing.

Because public acceptance is the measure of an innovative idea. So is imitation. Which they say is the sincerest form of flattery.

Well, we're flattered. But we invite you to compare Prime 55 with the plans other financial institutions offer people 55 and over.

Compare the 10 5/8% interest rates we give on Guaranteed Investment Certificates.

And the free Chequing/Savings account which earns 8.4% calculated and paid monthly.

And the many other no-cost financial services.

Then, if you haven't taken advantage of Prime 55 already, start considering our great idea.

It's better than money in the bank.

Calgary Scrap Dealers Open Aluminum Plant

CALGARY (CP) — Three city scrap dealers hope to turn scrap aluminum into money.

Calgary Metal Ltd., Ace Salvage Alberta Ltd. and ABC Scrap Iron and Metal Ltd. joined forces about 18 months ago to build and operate a plant to recycle scrap aluminum into raw aluminum ingots. The plant required a $500,000 investment in new equipment and facilities.

Vice-president Bill Cohen said the new company, Alberta Metal Processors Ltd., had to be a joint effort because the three participating scrap yards could not independently generate enough scrap aluminum products to make such an operation economic.

The new plant's objective is to stop the practice of gathering scrap aluminum in western Canada and shipping it to eastern Canada, Japan or the United States for resmelting.

The plan is to gather such aluminum products as old pistons, bumpers, house siding, pots and pans and turn them back into raw aluminum for sale to domestic and foreign manufacturers.

Key to the operation is a large furnace which operates at temperatures of more than 700 degrees centigrade.

Scrap is loaded into the furnace melting chamber, where the aluminum is separated from accompanying steel, copper and other metals contained in the scrap, and allowed to flow into a collecting chamber capable of holding up to four tons of liquid aluminum.

The liquid aluminum is molded into 1,000-pound ingots while the steel and copper left in the furnace is sold to mills and other manufacturing operations. At the end of the process, the only unsaleable product is a small amount of ash.

The plant also has a copper incinerator which takes copper wiring and melts away the insulating plastic or rubber covering.

Cohen said the plant, the first of its type in western Canada, has an annual capacity to process 2,000 tons of aluminum and 2,000 tons of copper.

A program has been developed to train the 20 workers needed for the plant and equipment.

"We still operate our own businesses and are competitive," said Cohen, who is president of ABC Scrap Iron.

"We simply joined forces to satisfy a common need."

The three members financed the plant "with no government funding or subsidies."

He said the recycling plant is the first phase of what the three partners hope will expandinto a broad business.

The partners plan to spend another $200,000 to begin manufacturing products, such as pulley wheels, from their own recycled aluminum.

"Why send it outside when we can work with it here," Cohen said.

Feeder cattle were in short supply, being mainly feeder heifers in the 700-pound range, selling steady. No feeder steers were sold early. Feeder cows were steady. No stock calves were on offer.

Good feeder steers 550 pounds and up: 24-30.85.

Granduc

Granduc Mines Ltd. reports a loss of $1.4 million for the first nine months of this year compared with net profits of $2.3 million or 63 cents a share for the same period last year.

The company said it is currently operating at 60 per cent capacity.

City Savings

The Edmonton-based City Savings and Trust Co. reports a 42-per-cent increase in gross revenue and a 68-per-cent increase in net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30.

The company reported in a news release gross revenue of $31.3 million compared with $15 million for the same period in 1974. It also reported net income of $1.1 million compared with $627,000 in 1974.

The earnings per share base was not comparable between 1975 and 1974 because of the issuance last year of about 252,000 additional shares, the company said.

Third quarter net income increased 127 per cent to $365,000 compared with $161,000 in 1974.

Neonex

Neonex International Ltd. reports a net loss for the third quarter ended Sept. 30 of $146,000 or two cents a share, compared with earnings for the same period in 1974 of $2.7 million of 37 cents a share.

Company sales for the period were $183.7 million compared with $167.8 million in 1974.

A company release blamed the losses on one of the company's consumer products companies Acme Merchandise Distributors Neonex closed 18 Acme stores and five warehouses since the beginning of the year.

Neonex has holding companies involved in consumer and shelter products and in service industries.

Western

VANCOUVER (CP) — Western Mines Ltd. reports that new earnings for the first nine months of 1975 were only one-tenth of the earnings for the corresponding 1974 period.

Earnings were $382,288 or seven cents a share this year compared with $3,662,930 or 70 cents a share in 1974.

The company attributed the decline to lower copper prices, increased operating costs, an effective tax rate of 85 per cent of profits and increased exploration expenditures.

The company statement said, however, that net corporate cash flow for the first nine months was $1,475,000 compared with $372,000 budgeted at the beginning of the year. Principal reason is the higher price of zinc, which represents 40 per cent of Western's revenues from mine production.

WESTERN MINES LIMITED

INTERIM REPORT NINE MONTHS ENDED SEPTEMBER 30, 1975

To The Shareholders

EARNINGS

Net earnings for the first nine months of 1975 were $382,288 or 7c per share versus $3,662,930 or 70c per share for the comparable perod in 1974. Lower copper prices, increased operating costs, an effective tax rate of 85% of profits and increased exploration expenditures were primarily responsible for the decline in earnings for the comparable period.

However, net corporate cash flow on a year-to-day basis for the first nine months is $1,475,000 compared to $372,000 budgeted at the beginning of the year. The principal reason for this improvement is the higher price of zinc, which represents 40% of Western's revenues from mine production.

PRODUCTION

64,456 tons were milled in the quarter, down from 76,978 tons milled in the previous quarter. The lower tonnage reflects the voluntary two-week July holiday shutdown, instituted for the first time this year and consistent with the emerging practice in the British Columbia mining industry. The daily operating rate continues at the maximum permitted by the Pollution Control Board.

Employees at our Buttle Lake mine, who are members of the United Steel Workers of America, have overwhelmingly voted in favour of a two-year agreement.

Lateral and vertical development of 1,654 feet and 1,011 feet respectively was completed during the quarter at the Buttle Lake property. Based on a new interpretation of a section of the Myra Creek Mine, a cross cut is presently being driven towards a block of ground where high grade ore has been indicated. Intersection of the projected position of this inferred high grade zone should take place in the latter part of December.

EXPLORATION

Metal Mining

Twelve exploratory holes totalling 3,367 feet, were drilled on the Mount Freegold prospect in the Yukon Territory between May and July. This examination indicated an extensive copper-molybdenite porphyry deposit of sub-economic grade and Western's interest in this prospect was terminated.

At the beginning of the year exploration targets, compatible with the skills and experience of the Company's geologists, were identified as lead zinc ores in carbonate environments and ores in volcanogenic environments similar to those at the Myra Creek property.

As part of the lead zinc program, 1,300 claims were staked in the Pine Point area on our Great Slave project and preliminary winter work has commenced there.

A reconnaissance of volcanogenic ores in the U.S.A. has led us to the detailed investigation of two metal mining properties in Northern California. Geochemical surveys have yielded encouraging anomalies on an adjacent rhyolite horizon. It is hoped that drill targets will be identified by mid-year 1976.

Coal

Total recoverable reserves on Pounding Mill Coal Company's leases in Kentucky were calculated at 8,057,000 tons, principally of metallurgical quality. A cash flow analysis of a 500,000 ton per year clean coal operation on the property indicated that the project would not yield an acceptable rate of return under the terms and conditions negotiated in the option agreement, which was therefore terminated at the end of August.

We are continuing our search for well located coal reserves which have the potential to yield cash flow and earnings to Western within a one to two-year framework.

Policy

In both the hard rock and the coal program, it is our intention to seek partners on all projects, thereby greatly enlarging our exploration exposure. The coal program is specifically directed towards improving your Company's earnings position within a two-year time frame whilst the hard rock program is directed towards those projects located in proximity to know mineralization.

DIVIDEND

The Board of Directors has declared a dividend of forty cents per share payable December 17, 1975 to shareholders of record as of December 10, 1975. If you are not a registered shareholder we urge you to register your shares at any office of our transfer agent, Canada Permanent Trust Company, in order to ensure prompt receipt of this dividend.

SPECIAL MEETING

An Extraordinary General Meeting of Shareholders has been called for January 13, 1976 to vote on certain shareholder proposals. Your Board of Directors and management unanimously recommend a vote against these proposals as not being in the best interest of the Company and all its shareholders.

CONCLUSION

The present industry-wide problems of stringent regulation, confiscatory taxation, soaring inflation and irreversibly rising costs of operation have impacted harshly on Western Mines as a single mine operator in one province of Canada. While undertaking all practical cost reducing measures, the existing conditions under which Western is forced to operate do not allow us to be optimistic about any improvement in operating results for the fourth quarter.

Fortunately, however, we are in a unique position to move forward. Western Mines, with your investment in it, can become a major company in the resource industry but only if its geographical and product diversification plans continue to proceed. We have set these goals for Western Mines and make them our commitment to you.

News Leak Sparks Aussie Row

CANBERRA (Reuter) — A new row erupted today in Australia's political crisis over a newspaper leak that Solicitor-General Maurice Byers had said, before the Whitlam government was dismissed, that such a move would be unconstitutional.

Gov.-Gen. Sir John Kerr, who fired the government last week, called in the solicitor-general and two other senior law officials and told them that the leak, to the influential Financial Review, seriously embarrassed him, informed sources said.

The newspaper said Byers, a civil servant, gave an opinion that Sir John would have no constitutional authority to dissolve Parliament on the advice of the Liberal minority side of the House of Representatives.

The opinion is understood to have been prepared by former attorney-general Kep Enderby and Byers, and given to Sir John on Nov. 6, five days before he dismissed the Labor government, led by Gough Whitlam.

Attorney-General Ivor Greenwood, one of the officials called in with Byers, said later the solicitor-general was "grossly maligned" and his opinion distorted by the newspaper report.

Venom Found in Garter Snake

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An 11-year-old boy's toxic reaction to the bite of a garter snake, normally thought to be harmless, may mean the common reptile has developed venom, doctors say.

Dr. Findlay Russell of County-USC medical centre said Monday this was the first case he had heard of in which a garter snake contained venom.

Garth Allman was biten by the garter snake Friday afternoon at the playground of El Rancho elementary school in Camarillo, Calif. The snake bit the child so forcefully that a custodian had to pry it loose.

The boy's arm was swollen from just above the elbow to his hand and he was considered seriously ill for a time, but doctors said Monday he was in good condition.

"We suspect, now following this bite, that we should take a closer look at some of the so-called nonvenomous snakes because in their chemical evolution they have perfected the same sort of toxin as the venomous snakes," Russell explained.

The snake may have injected a large quantity of poison due to its tight grip, he said.

"It had a chance to chew and make a wund," Russell said.

The physician said he believes most nonpoisonous snakes, including the garter snake, produce venom but lack the capability to deliver it. Since garter snakes feed on reptles such as toads, which have toxic skins, they may manufacture venom.

Face Slapping Nets Jail Term

TOKYO (AP) — A court has sentenced an ultra-rightist to two years at hard labor for slapping Prime Minister Takeo Miki during a funeral service last June for former prime minister Eisaku Sato. The presiding judge said Hiroshi Fudeyasu, 35, had "insulted Miki and the people and greatly impaired Japan's international prestige." Fudeyasu slapped Miki twice in the face and knocked him down but the prime minister was not injured.

Wage controls and you, the worker: the truth.
Wage and price controls are supposed to protect you from inflation.
But, in practice, wage controls will keep your income down, while price controls are virtually unworkable — even the Prime Minister concedes that.
You didn't cause inflation. You're the victim of it. But you'll end up paying for it.
"Why me?", you might ask.
Because it's easier for the government to crack down on wage claims. They're out in the open. But corporations will find all kinds of loopholes in the regulations. The government admits as much. Prices and profits are going to keep rising.
It's easy to see who causes inflation. Average incomes of working Canadians went up 25% from 1971 to 1974.
But corporate profits more than doubled — up 111%.
Someone's going to suffer for all this.
Ask yourself — and maybe you should ask your government — "Why me?"

NEW OFFICERS FOR ELECTION

Most of the 48 constituencies in the province will have new returning officers for the Dec. 11 election.

A list of officers for the election shows only eight held the post in the last election with 40 newcomers appointed by the government.

Chief electoral officer Ken Morton said the changes are due to people "who have moved or died, etc."

He said he doubted there will be any problems because other, experienced returning officers are travelling around B.C. training the new people.

Deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace said the government usually goes down the list of last returning officers and finds that many have moved or are sick or just don't care to take on the job again.

Returning officers, who are in charge of ensuring the elections act is followed during the course of each constituency election, are paid by the government.

Two Independents Run For Victoria Riding

An independent candidate who feels political parties are not dealing with the real issues will run in the provincial election in Victoria.

R. Owen Kavanagh, a 25-year-old nurse, at Victoria General Hospital, says the probelms facing Victoria are "so big" the solutions will take co-operation across party lines.

Victoria's lighthouse pholosopher Bill Scott, 77, has also said he will run as an independent.

Kavanagh said the real issues are inadequate hospitals, raw sewage "fouling our beaches," overburdened city taxpayers, traffic jamming downtown streets and polarized politicians.

It is the duty of provincial politicians to take on the adjudication role to deal with the concerns immediately, he said.

"At a time when grave issues are at stake we must look beyond personality contests and party labels for sincere candidates who will truly reflect our needs, said Kavanagh, who came to Victoria from Montreal five years ago.

Scott, who describes himself as "Victoria's outstanding veteran in stupidity" claims all parties have abandoned their original codes of moral ethics.

"They started out as ego-altriusts and ended up as egomaniacs."

He says the NDP government "is headed by the most wrong-thinking teachers in Canadian history." He does, however, hold a membership in that party.

Scott has run twice before in provincial elections as an independent.

Barrett Lauded By Duncan NDP

DUNCAN (CP) — About 600 New Democratic Party supporters packed a local community hall Monday and applauded Premier Dave Barrett's challenges to Social Credit and recital of his government's accomplishments.

Making his first appearance in the Cowichan-Malahat constituency since the Oct. 3 resignation of former transport minister Bob Strachan, Barrett drew two standing ovations and relatively few hecklers.

Strachan had represented the riding as a Canadian Commonwealth Federation and NDP MLA for 22 years.

Barrett said a Social Credit government, if elected in the Dec. 11 provincial election, would allow developers to carve up B.C.'s farm land to turn huge profits.

He described Opposition leader Bill Bennett as "wrong and dangerous" referring to a recent statement by Bennett that Social Credit would repeal the Land Commission Act.

The act, one of the most controversial introduced by the NDP government, prohibits commercial or residential development of designated farm land.

If re-elected, the NDP will not only maintain the act, Barrett said, but will also bring in stringent controls on foreign ownership of land in B.C.

He said Prince Edward Island fought "tooth and nail" against the influx of American land speculators into the province and provincial legislation prohibiting foreign land ownership in P.E.I. has been upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada.

One of the NDP's prime objectives, if returned to power, is to introduce similar legislation in B.C., Barrett said, adding a Social Credit government would make no moves to prohibit non-Canadian land ownership in B.C.

Barrett repeated earlier statements that B.C. doesn't need to rely on outside investment but the Social Credit Party encourages it.

He also criticized "poverty stricken" corporations such as Crown Zellerbach and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

He said Crown Zellerbach was prepared to sell the coastal mill town of Ocean Falls to American interests for $10 million but accepted a $1 million offer from the NDP government.

He said it is unlikely that the former Social Credit administration would have made any move to purchase the town site and pulp mill and save jobs.

Gordon Gibson Nominated

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Liberal candidates rallied Monday night in the North Vancouver-Capilano constituency to back party leader Gordon Gibson as he was nominated by acclamation for the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Thirteen nominated candidates were on hand as Gibson was nominated by Dave Brousson, whose resignation from the legislature in February, 1974, opened the way for Gibson's election. He won a byelection by 57 votes over Social Credit candidate Ron Andrews, mayor of North Vancouver District, and a challenger again for Social Credit.

Brousson criticized, without mentioning names, former Liberal MLAs Pat McGeer, Garde Gardom and Allan Williams, now members of the Social Credit Party.

Gibson, he said, "stuck with the party in the face of opportunism and an easy grab for power."

Gibson mentioned only briefly the issue of electoral reform, which two weeks ago he said would be the main Liberal plank, but castigated Social Credit, in particular Bill Bennett, whom he described as "that shadowy man."

"The Socreds are playing 'hide the leader,'" Gibson said, claiming that Bennett, unlike the other party leaders, was failing to stand up and be counted.

He criticized Bennett for his failure so far to agree to a proposal for a televised debate of all four party leaders.

Gibson called for financial incentives for northern development, a better break for native people in the matter of land claims, and government decentralization.

He said the Liberal position is "the politics of hope," and said the party is "an indispensable part of the solution to getting rid of the NDP."

In Coquitlam, George Kerster, a Surrey car dealership owner, led a field of five hopefuls and Monday won the right to represent the Social Credit party in the Dec. 11 provincial election in its bid to unseat Premier Barrett in his home riding of Coquitlam.

More than 800 people packed a hall to select Kerster, in three ballots.

He defeated Jan Merks, founder of the anti-socialist B.C. Disaster Prevention Fund, by 18 votes in the final ballot.

In Prince George Fred House, nominated to contest the Fort George riding for the Liberals, Monday announced his resignation as president of the British Columbia Association of Non-Status Indians.

He told a news conference his resignation was best for the association and only fair to the electors of Fort George.

Elsewhere in the province, the following candidates were nominated Monday for the Dec. 11 election: (x member of last legislature):

Social Credit: Burnaby North — Cliff Oswald, Atlin — x-Frank Calder, Burnaby-Edmonds — Ray Loewen, Langley — x-Bob McLelland, Rossland-Trail — Burt Campbell.

Liberal: New Westminster — Karl Frank, Burnaby North — Moshe Shillow, Burnaby-Willingdon — James Clark, Vancouver East (2 seats) — Norman Chamberlist; Flo Simatos.

Wage controls and you, the consumer: the truth.
The fact is, wage and price controls aren't going to help you cope with the cost of living.
Because controls won't work against the corporations who set prices.
For instance, the government says it's "not feasible" to control mortgage interest rates. So housing costs are going to keep going up.
They've also said they'll let the price of energy continue rising.
And food... how are they going to control an industry that increased its profits by nearly 50% during the worst inflationary years (1971 to 1974)?
The cost of living will keep going up because profits will keep going up. The corporations can find enough loopholes in the regulations to ensure that.
And, in the meantime, wage controls will keep your income down. That can be controlled.
Ask yourself—and maybe you should ask your government—"Why me?"

Hockey: Cameramen There 'As a Courtesy'

The weekend in review and the more things change the more they remain the same. It was back on Oct. 4 that Mayor Peter Pollen, invited to participate in the opening festivities of the Cougars Western Canada Hockey League season against Calgary Centennials, became incensed at the behaviour of the two clubs for a 20-minute brawl that occurred in the second period.

The good mayor, it was duly reported, engaged Cougar coach Pat Ginnell in a shouting match regarding the base behaviour of the Cougars, called the players "a pack of animals" and later said he was determined to stop the "mindless animal behaviour" in Memorial Arena. And, as the city's first citizen, Pollen figured to have some clout in this regard. Soon, all would be honey and spice.

That was seven weeks ago. Since then, of course, Pollen has received national publicity and much acclaim because of his stand, even though it was not entirely new; the WCHL, at Ginnell's behest, instituted a rule change which was designed to inhibit, if not prevent, a recurrence of such player brawls; and naturally there has been the continuing discussion on the subject of violence in hockey.

Meanwhile, the Victoria Cougars, although seemingly, playing well and coming close, aren't winning as many games as they should. And that significant point may be the key to the latest incident at Memorial, and another reason that little really has changed.

Because on Saturday, it wasn't the players who erupted, it was the coach himself, Ginnell, who blew his cool. Apparently incensed at the referee's ruling and penalty assessment following a fight between New Westminster's Harold Phillipoff and Victoria's Curt Fraser, Ginnell jumped on the ice and attempted to engage that official in discussion. Fortunately, his players thought it an inopportune time for such talk and Ginnell was dissuaded from his purpose.

Still riled, however, on his return to the bench he vented his spleen upon an innocent news photographer. Why? Cameramen don't call the penalties or cause a team to lose.

Maybe Ginnell likes to argue with mayors. It's possible. Perhaps he hates referees. That's his prerogative too. And if he wants to run out on the ice, that's up to him and a league matter. But why jump a news photographer who was there as the man said "as a courtesy to the Cougars"? That almost ranks as a cardinal sin. And surely Pat didn't really mean it when he said he didn't recognize the photographer. Sean Flynn of the Sportscaster was the man with the camera. And Ginnell probably already has apologized too. He would seem to be man enough for that.

As to the Cougars, it's not that they are imbedded so deeply in fourth place that they can't become unstuck. Rather it seems they are only lacking that indefinable something that produces victories and a cohesion the team enjoyed last season. Sunday night, for instance, listening to a radio broadcast from New Westminster, it was quite obvious the Cougars controlled the play, but couldn't put the puck in the net. Which is a problem. But when a team can outplay the Bruins on their home ice, win or lose, it's not a problem that should last too long. In time, success should come. And who knows — may even be pictured for posterity.

Otherwise, Cougar fans and NHL followers alike may be interested to know that the New York Times recently presented the ex-Cougar and now Philadelphia Flyer, Mel Bridgman, in a good light and also a rare comparison.

Bridgman was described as the image of his idol and teammate, Bobby Clarke. To which Bridgman replied:

"Comparisons are terrific, but thee is only one Bobby Clarke. People can say what they want, but I still have to prove it on the ice."

In the article, Fred Shero, coach of the two-time Stanley Cup champion Flyers, said of Bridgman: "I like his moves and he's so easy to teach. I'm sure he'll be a star some day."

Bridgman, for his part, was quoted: "Coming to a team like the Flyers actually puts less pressure on me. If I were drafted by a losing team, I'd be projected into a superstar and they'd try and build the entire team around me. That's what happened to the Islanders' Dennis Potvin. Now there's a lot of pressure."

Bridgman also repeated what he said here earlier this summer. "If Freddie (Shero) wants to send me to the minors, it's perfectly all right with me." And he admitted it was different in the NHL. "Everyone is so quick and strong," he said. And to the question of the Flyers' policy of brute strength, Bridgman said: "No one is going to push me around."

So it looks like he's doing all right.

Roy Smith Drives In NASCAR Race

Roy Smith, winner of just about everything in super modified open-wheeled racing last summer, will try his hand at open stock car competition this weekend at Ontario Motor Speedway in California.

Smith, who piloted the Daffodil Special owned by Geoff Vantreight to victories in the Washington Racing Association series, the International Drivers' Challenge series, the Billy Foster Memorial and the Daffodil Cup at Western Speedway, hopes to qualify Dick Midgley's 1975 Chevelle for the Los Angeles Times 500 Sunday.

It will mark the first time in three years the Victoria driver has competed in stock car racing. At Ontario, he will be up against NASCAR champion Richard Petty, last year's L.A. 500 winner Bobby Allison and NASCAR stars David Pearson and Cale Yarborough.

Qualifying runs for the $120,000 race begin Friday with the 10 fastest drivers over the 2½-mile course earning berths. The remaining 30 positions will be filled in Saturday trials.

See-Saw Battle To LBC Juniors

London Boxing Club Juniors eked out a 60-59 victory after a see-saw struggle with previously-unbeaten Oak Bay in one of the two Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League games Monday night at Royal Oak Junior High School.

In the other, London Boxing Club Seniors extended their lead to four points over Oak Bay and Boxing Club Juniors by mauling Independents 95-55.

Ken Christensen scored a basket for Oak Bay just before the final buzzer to close the gap to one point.

Thad Newman led Juniors with 12 points, all in the first half, while John McManaman fired 11 and Steve Rothwell 10.

Tom Hatcher and Corky Jossul each scored 14 points for Oak Bay, which trailed 29-28 at half time.

Dave Wirtanen led Boxing Club Seniors with 22 points and Jim MacKay added 20. Lance Shannon scored 20 points for Independents.

Anderson a Real Tiger

CINCINNATI (AP) — O.J. Simpson had one of the great games of his National Football League career Monday night— but when the game was over, he had to doff his helmet to someone who had an ever greater one.

"That Ken Anderson is unreal," O.J. said after the Cincinnati quarterback, overcoming Simpson's 197 yards rushing, riddled Buffalo's pass defence for 447 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Bengals to a 33-24 victory over the Bills.

"We knew we'd have problems with the pass, but he just picked us apart," added Simpson.

Anderson completed 30 of 46 passes, including touchdowns of five yards to Lenvil Elliott and 20 to Charlie Joiner. His passing also set up two short touchdown bursts by rookie running back Stan Fritts and a pair of Dave Green field goals.

That enabled the Bengals to raise their record to 8-1 and moved them back into a first-place tie with Pittsburgh in the American Conference Central Division. The Bills, suffering their fourth loss in the last five games, fell to 5-4 and remained two games back of front-running Miami in the AFC East.

Bengals coach Paul Brown said, "Anderson was superb." But he also said he had been concerned that it would take that kind of record performance to beat the Bills. "The game went the way we were afraid it would go," he said. "We couldn't stop them and they couldn't stop us. We threw a lot because seven points came so suddenly so often."

Simpson wound up three yards shy of breaking the NFL record of four career 200-yard games, which he shares with Jim Brown of Cleveland Browns.

"I didn't know I had 197 or was close to 200," he said. "I'd have liked to have gotten the record. But there'll be other games."

It was the seventh time this year and the 31st in his career that he has gained over 100 yards in a game. It gave him 1,325 yards for the year, well ahead of his 1973 pace when he crashed through another of Brown's records, amassing an incredible 2,003 yards in one season.

Except for Simpson, the Bills had virtually nothing going for them on offence. Jim Braxton was the only other Buffalo ground-gainer of note, picking up 40 yards on 10 carries. And Bills' quarterback Joe Ferguson was no match for Anderson. He completed only nine of 18 passes for 106 yards.

Anderson's 447-yard explosion shattered his personal single game high of 352 yards set a year ago against Houston Oilers. His favorite targets were Isaac Curtis, who caught seven passes for 139 yards before leaving with an injury in the third quarter, and Chip Myers, who hauled in seven for 108 yards.

Anderson's aerial show helped Cincinnati to a 549-335 edge over Buffalo in total yardage.

Fine, Suspension of Barkley Demanded by Hockey Writers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Professional Hockey Writers Association has formally protested the alleged Sunday attack on reporter Walter MacPeek with a telegram to National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell Monday.

The telegram, signed by Dan Stoneking, sports editor of the Minneapolis Star and president of the writers' group, said the association was "appalled, disgusted and angered over the incident."

The writers demanded a public apology from Doug Barkley, coach of the Detroit Red Wings, and asked that the NHL take disciplinary action against Barkley in the form of a fine and possible suspension.

Meanwhile, MacPeek, who works for the Newark Star-Ledger, said he would pursue legal action against the Detroit coach. He already has filed formal assault charges with the New York police department.

"I'm going to do whatever needs to be done to emphasize that this kind of behavior has to be stopped," the writer said. "I do my job and the coach does his. There's no need for anybody to be punched."

The incident occurred outside the Detroit dressing room after New York Rangers had blanked the Red Winds, 3-0. MacPeek said he sought to enter the dressing room and get some quotes for his story and to deliver some television tapes to ex-Ranger Ed Giacomin.

League rules permit reporters into dressing rooms 10 minutes after the completion of games.

Barkley asked MacPeek to wait for the club's bags to be cleared out of the small Madison Square Garden dressing room. When the writer asked to enter the room again a few minutes later, the two men exchanged angry words. MacPeek cited the media rule and Barkley was reported to have said "You can shove the rule. Do you want to settle this outside?"

MacPeek replied that he would settle it with the NHL office, and said that Barkley then hit him. The writer suffered a small bruise over one eye.

After writing his story, MacPeek entered a formal complaint with police. When police attempted to find Barkley Sunday night, they discovered that although the team stayed overnight, the coach already had left the city.

The Red Wings are not scheduled to play again in New York City this season, although they will return to the metropolitan are Jan. 13 to play New York Islanders at the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y. The complaint could be served on Barkley at that time.

Don Ruck, vice-president of the NHL, said the league would "continue to enforce to the best of our ability the rules governing access to the dressing rooms."

"But there are a lot of rules in this country and from time to time some of them will be broken."

Ruck said he believed Campbell would be in touch with Barkley "if the matter falls within his jurisdiction."

If it is a matter of litigation, however, it would be out of our hands."

Barkley refused comment on the affair.

Jenkins Goes to Boston; Dodgers, Braves Swap Six

Times News Services

Texas Rangers, trying for months to unload 17-game winner Ferguson Jenkins and his $195,000 salary, dealt the Canadian-born pitcher to Boston Red Sox Monday.

The trade was one of two announced by major league baseball teams. In the other, Los Angeles Dodgers of the National League sent veteran centre fielder Jimmy Wynn, 33, outfielder Tom Paciorek and infielder Lee Lacy and Jerry Royster to Atlanta Braves for centre fielder Dusty Baker and infielder Ed Goodson.

Jenkins, a resident of Chatham, Ont., goes to the American League champions in exchange for outfielder Juan Beniquez, pitcher Steve Barr, a minor league player to be named later and an undisclosed amount of cash estimated to be $250,000.

Jenkins, 33, was a 20-game winner seven times with the Rangers, Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies and won the Cy Young award as the top major league pitcher in 1971.

His best year was 1974 with the Rangers, when he won 25 and lost 12. His record was 17-18 last season with 157 strikeouts and only 56 walks. A durable righthander, Jenkins completed 22 of 37 starts.

The Red Sox, deep in outfield talent with rookie sensations Jim Rice and Fred Lynn and veterans Carl Yastrzemski, Dwight Evans, Bernie Carbo and Rick Miller, gave up Beniquez to strengthen an already impressive pitching staff.

Jenkins joins another Canadian-born pitcher, Reggie Cleveland from Swift Current, Sask., along with Luis Tiant, Rick Wise, Bill Lee and Roger Moret.

The Dodgers went for a long-ball hitter in Baker, 26, who led the Braves last season in homers with 19 and runs batted in with 72. He batted .261.

Wynn, 33, a 13-year veteran, had provided the Dodgers with power after coming from Houston Astros in 1974. But his home run production fell from 32 to 18 last season.

'Lack of Communication'

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence back Al Marcelin of Ottawa Rough Riders says a lack of communication with the team management and coaches caused an outburst about racism, head coach George Brancato said Monday.

Marcelin, who said in the dressing room after Ottawa's 20-10 loss to Montreal Alouettes Saturday that the coaches were inattentive to black players, was to make a statement later, Brancato said.

Marcelin singled out offensive coach George Dimitroff as creating a hostile attitude towards the black players.

Brancato said that Marcelin met with Riders' owner David Loeb and general-manager Frank Clair.

"They talked it over and Marcelin said there was a lack of communication but no racism."

Marcelin was upset by the release of receiver Rhome Nixon late in the season, Brancato said. It was an outburst caused by the frustration of the loss to the Alouettes who advanced to the Grey Cup Sunday in Calgary.

Brancato said Marcelin, who signed a contract late in the season after dropping plans to play out his option and retire, will be back next season.

Marcelin's charges came after defensive end Wayne Smith said for the second straight day that he wanted to be traded because he was not getting the attention he deserved.

Smith, who surprised Ottawa fans Friday with his announcement, said after the game, Saturday that the Riders take black players for granted.

Brancato said the Nixon cut was especially hard on Marcelin because they had played together in California. The release, one week before the end of the season, had ruined Nixon's chances of being picked up by another team, Marcelin said.

Dimitroff denied he was racist and said he treated white and black players the same to win.

Bruin Act Investigated By League

Victoria Cougar owner-coach Pat Ginnell may be in trouble with Mayor Peter Pollen and the press, but coach Ernie (Punch) McLean of New Westminster Bruins could be in trouble with the other governors of the Western Canada Hockey League.

League president Ed Chynowet polled governors Monday to request a meeting in Saskatoon, probably on Thursday, to deal with violence in games at New Westminster's Queen's Park Arena.

Latest outbreak at that rink was Sunday when the Bruins downed the Cougars 5-3 in a fight-filled game marked by 34 penalties totalling 192 minutes. Included were seven majors to each club, a 10-minute misconduct to Victoria and seven game misconducts, five to Victoria.

There was a similar outbreak Saturday night at Memorial Arena, where New Westminster beat the Cougars 8-3. Highlight of that one involved Ginnell, who went on the ice to confront referee Bruce Garside, took on a press photographer at the players' bench and was tossed from the game with a gross misconduct.

Several league owners have complained of injuries to their players in games at New Westminster. Lethbridge Broncos had four players hurt in a recent series with the Bruins, among them defenceman Darcy Regier who suffered a broken jaw.

Saskatoon Blades' manager Jackie McLeod complained that his top scoring line was beaten up early in his team's first game against the Bruins.

Ginnell said Monday he favors a meeting but isn't certain what action the governors can take.

"We're not scared of the Bruins," Ginnell said, "but I understand some of the Eastern Division clubs find it hard to play in New Westminster, particularly the teams with a lot of rookies."

Whether it's New Westminster, Victoria or elsewhere, penalty timekeepers have been overworked in the WCHL so far this season. Statistics released by Chynoeth's office today show that 10 players have exceed the 100-minute mark in penalties.

The penalty leader is Terry Ballingall of Flin Flon Bombers with 138 minutes while Kevin Schamrehorn of New Westminster is second with 127.

Cougars have been doing more than just scrapping, however. Jim Gustafson is closing in on a league record held by National Hockey League stars Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers and Danny Gare of Buffalo Sabres.

Gustafson, who leads WCHL scorers with 54 points, has picked up at least one point in each of the 21 games Cougars have played. He is two away from the consecutive-game mark set by Clarke when he was with Flin Flon Bombers in 1967-68 and Gare when he was with Calgary Centennials in 1973-74.

Rothman's Withdraws

LONDON (Reuter) — Rothman's, Britain's major tennis sponsor for the last 12 years, announced it is withdrawing from the sport. The cigarette company spent more than $100,000 on British tournaments in 1975, but a company spokesman said various problems encountered at recent tournaments, besides increasing costs, contributed to the decision to withdraw.

Racers Motivated By Toronto Coach

By The Canadian Press

Indianapolis Racers don't appreciate criticism of their playing capabilities, and proved it to Toronto Toros in a World Hockey Association game Monday night.

Indianapolis coach Jacques Demers said following his team's 6-2 win over the Toros that he had used the words of Toronto coach Bob Baun to motivate his team.

"Our scout Garry Moore saw in a newspaper where Baun had described our team as little more than a bunch of Senior A players and sent the clipping to me," said Demers.

"I showed it to the boys just after we got off the plane and on to the bus here in Toronto and it got them worked up.

"Athletes in general are all the same. They've all got a lot of pride. It was the motivating factor I could use."

Nick Harbaruk scored two goals to help the Racers defeat the Toros for the second time this season. Indianapolis beat Toronto 4-3 two weeks ago.

In the only other league game Monday night, Edmonton Oilers downed San Diego Mariners 6-3.

Baun blamed the ice conditions at Maple Leaf Gardens and the officiating for his team's loss.

"There's just no excuse to have to play on that kind of ice in this day and age," Baun said. The weather was unseasonably mild in Toronto on Monday, causing the ice to be extremely slow and resulting in a bouncing puck.

Bob Woytowich, Ted Scharf, Reg Thomas and Bill Prentice scored the other Indianapolis goals, while Jim Turkiewicz and Peter Marrin replied for the Toros.

Mike Rogers scored two third period goals to lead the Oilers past San Diego.

Rogers, recovering from a slow start in his sophomore season, broke a 3-3 tie by batting a rebound past San Diego goaltender Ernie Wakely, then drilled a 25-foot shot past Wakely with two minutes remaining for the clinching goal.

Norm Ullman, Tom Sheehy, Ken Baird and Blair MacDonald also scored for the Oilers. Gene Peacosh, Andre Lacroix and Dave Walter scored the San Diego goals.

Orr Mentioned In Trade Talks

BOSTON (AP) — Carol Vadnais, involved in the big trade between Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, said the name of Bruins superstar Bobby Orr was among those discussed in trade talks between the two National Hockey League clubs.

Vadnais and Phil Esposito went to the Rangers in exchange for Brad Park and Jean Ratelle and Joe Zanussi.

"I thought there was only one Bobby Orr and one Phil Esposito," Vadnais said. "I never dreamed either would be traded. But they apparently wanted Esposito for Park and Jean Ratelle."

Vadnais said he never considered not reporting to the Rangers.

"When I was told by coach Don Cherry I was stunned," he said. "I was 3,000 miles away and was told to report to the Rangers that Friday. My wife was facing major surgery the following Monday and I just couldn't think straight."

Vadnais said he called Bruins' managing director, Harry Sinden, and "told him I had the no-trade contract but he hung up on me. I don't know whether or not it was intentional, but he goofed and had to give me the money that I had let them cut (from his contract) for the no-trade agreement."

Vadnais reported to New York after missing three games.

"Some people got the impression I was trying to hold up both sides for more money,'' said Vadnais. "That's not true. All I wanted was what I had coming. There was no other problem. I had a point and it had to be fixed."

Third Win in Row By Basketball Nats

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Jamie Russell of Burlington, Ont., scored 22 points to lead the Canadian national basketball team to its third consecutive win on its seven-game tour of the United States, a 77-68 conquest of Hofstra University Monday night.

Two free throws with seven seconds left in the first half by Russell enabled the half dians to open a 39-32 lead at the intermission.

Canada took the lead for good at 25-23 with 6:45 left in the half on a jump shot by John Cassidy of Halifax.

The Canadian team's biggest margin was 17 points when a pair of free throws by Russell with 5:22 left in the game built the lead to 68-51.

Bob Town of Winnipeg added 19 points for Canada, Martin Riley of Winnipeg had 14, Cassidy finished with 12 and Bill Robinson of Chemainus had 10.

Richie Laurel was high for Holfstra with 23 points.

Tennis Clowns Stung With Strong Criticism

LONDON (AP) — Clowning on court by tennis stars Jimmy Connors of the United States and Ilie Nastase of Romania won universal condemnation from British newspapers Monday and a rap over the knuckles from British president of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, Derek Hardwick.

The clowning took place in their Dewar Cup Tournament men's doubles final Saturday at the Albert Hall against Poland's Wojtek Fibak and his West German partner, Karl Meiler.

Connors and Nastase, wearing bow ties over their tennis shirts and drinking champagne between changeovers, created laughter at first but ended up being booed, jeered and slow-handclapped by many of the crowd as they lost 6-1, 7-5.

After their defeat they had to be disuaded by Hardwick and tournament referee Mike Gibbson from stalking off the court before the formalities of the presentation.

Hardwick was quoted in the mass-circulation tabloid, The Daily Mirror, as saying: "It was disgraceful. Two players had fought their hearts out to win and Connors and Nastase tried to laugh them off court.

"Right now the professional circuit is looking for a code of conduct. Had it been in operation Connors and Nastase would have been heavily fined."

RICHMOND, FAIRBURN SHARE TITLE

Richmond and Fairburn will share the city elementary school girls' field hockey championship after playing to a scoreless tie in Monday's final at Windsor Park.

The flavour of a great gin must be subtle, yet individual enough to blend perfectly with your favourite mix. It must stand alone, with the merest hint of vermouth, for a perfect dry Martini.

Melchers Maxi-Dry is, quite simply, a first class gin—and one of the most popular of all dry gins. Whether you're a mixer or a loner, try it. No other gin is quite as good, wet or dry.

Sign Goes ...Workers Return

Demolition of a classic Victoria home resumed for a short time Monday after a city hall stop work order disappeared Friday night from where it was posted at the front door.

The order was replaced by the city engineer's department and dismantling of interior and exterior features at 821 Burdett ceased.

The house designed by Samuel Maclure was built 69 years ago. Because it is the last remaining downtown example of Maclure's residential architecture, the Hallmark Society is trying to preserve it.

Park Pacific Apartments Ltd. is the current owner and intends to develop the site opposite the Law Courts for an undetermined purpose.

The original stop work order placed by the city was to protect the occupants of five suites whose leases have not expired.

Shortly afterward, the provincial secretary issued a temporary restraint order under the Archeological, and Historic Sites Act, permitting photographs and measurements to be taken.

But since Oct. 31 workmen have removed an attached garage from the west side of the house, panelling from one of two vacant suites, parts of a fireplace and interior mouldings, and some of the original doorknobs have disappeared.

On Monday the front door canopy was removed and left lying on the lawn. Heavy chains which supported it dangle above the door, and moulding is partly ripped away from the wall.

One of the tenants called the acts of demolition harassment because occupants had refused to give up their leases.

Terry Reksten, past president of the Hallmark Society, said all efforts to deal with Park Pacific in an effort to save the structure had failed.

After considerable difficulty in reaching a principal to the company she was finally in telephone contact with Clive Piercy, president of Park Pacific Investments Ltd., who refused to make an appointment with the society.

"He said if we had a firm proposal for moving the building, he'll discuss it."

But Reksten said it is hard to get an estimate for moving a building owned by another party.

Earlier, Park Pacific Apartments president Robert McAdams said there was no haste to dispose of the building, and if someone wanted to move it they could have it.

"But nobody wants to move a building that's been gutted," Reksten said.

"It seems to me the name of the game is to render the building to such a state that everybody gives up."

Crafts On Show At UVic

The fourth annual University of Victoria Christmas Craft Faire will be held Friday and Saturday in the upper lounge of the Student Union Building.

Kali (Elaine Wall) and Mike Haycock will display their handmade jewelry.

For those in the market for toys, there will be Alan Hockley's puppets and John Lomen's solid maple wooden toys. Hockley will also put on puppet shows.

Leatherwork, leaded glass lamps and jardinieres, weavings and candles will also be available.

Hours for the Craft Faire are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

VERNON (CP) — RCMP here are investigating the weekend theft of a quantity of narcotics from the Vernon Jubilee Hospital. Police said the hospital's narcotics cabinet was broken into, but did not release the types or amounts of narcotics stolen.

Give Credit To Tories: Munro

The federal Liberal government is refusing to credit the Conservatives as originators of the wage and price controls, Esquimalt-Saanich MP Donald Munro said Monday.

Munro, speaking at the annual meeting of the riding's Tory association, said if controls succeed Liberals "will take all the credit and if it fails they'll try to take us down with them."

The Tory member criticized the federal legislation for not providing that the controls be retroactive, pointing out the restraint program is still not yet law.

Pat Crofton was elected president of the association at the meeting attended by 50 members.

Other officers are: vice-presidents, Robert Peden, Irene Block (Saanich provincial Tory candidate), Mark Shaw and Dr. Arnold Lang; secretary, Libby Mowat; treasurer, Larry Brooks; membership, Edith Bibby.

Pot Boiled Over, Family Homeless

A blaze which started when a Victoria mother went to finish her son's paper route Monday night left the family homeless after a pot of fat boiled over on an electric stove.

The single-storey home of Rosemary Laframbroise, 1729 Bay, was partially gutted in the fire which started about 8:20 p.m. Only her 12-year-old son Michael was in the house at the time, and no one was injured, a fire department spokesman said. There are four other children.

Mrs. Laframbroise had been cooking on the stove about 8 p.m., said a neighbor, when the phone rang.

"Her little boy delivers papers and apparently had missed a house," said Heather Southwell, 1744 Bay.

She said the boy had been doing homework when the fat boiled over and caught fire.

"He opened the front door to get out, it caused a draught and the whole place went up. I've never seen kids so badly shaken."

She said the boy stood outside later, and "all he was saying is, 'my school books are on the couch'."

Michael was taken to hospital for a sedative.

The neighbor praised Victoria firemen and said they were fighting the blaze within minutes of the call. When they arrived, flames were "boiling out of the front windows and the door," a fire department spokesman said.

Estimated damage to the house is $10,000 and to contents $5,000. Both were insured.

ONE DEAD IN CRASH

One man is dead and two others missing following the crash of a Cessna 180 aircraft near the mouth of Rivers Inlet on the mainland.

Navy divers from the Colwood diving unit discovered the body of a man today trapped in the cockpit of the plane.

The plane was reported to the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt on Monday as being overturned in waters near Wadams at the mouth of the inlet.

The plane was on a flight from Vancouver and was last sighted Sunday at the Rivers Inlet reservation.

A shore search for the two missing men is being carried out by a Labrador helicopter from CFB Comox and a coast guard helicopter from Port Hardy.

Names of the men are being withheld.

Leigh on Council

John Leigh polled 738 votes in Sidney's aldermanic race for two one-year seats, gaining him a position along with another newcomer, Robert Wallace, who won 894 votes.

Incumbent Stanley Uren lost out with 655 votes. A typographical error in Monday's Times indicated Leigh had lost, with only 635 votes in his favor.

Funeral For Lady Dorothy Wednesday

Funeral services will be held in St. Mary's Anglican Church on Wednesday at 2 p.m. for Lady Dorothy M. S. Lake, who died in Saanich Peninsula Hospital Sunday at the age of 91.

Her late husband, Sir Richard Lake, was knighted in 1918, serving in the British civil service before coming to Canada in 1883, settling in Saskatchewan.

He was lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan during the First World War and a member of the House of Commons for Qu'Appelle for seven years.

Long-time residents of Victoria, Lady Dorothy and her husband were abord the liner Athenia when she was torpedoled by a German submarine on the first day of the Second World War.

Lady Dorothy and her husband took turns helping to row the lifeboat in which they spent nine hours before being rescued by the Norwegian freighter Knute Nelson.

He was 79 at the time.

Lady Dorothy is survived by her sister, Mrs. Sydney Kelly of Deep Cove; her daughter, Mrs. Katharine Braden of Shawnigan Lake; four sons, H. H. Lake of Deep Cove, J. F. Lake of Sunningdale, England; R. L. Lake of Vancouver and L. C. Lake of Nanaimo; seven grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Developer Threats Cited in N. Saanich

North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve said today he has been approached by several landowners who have told him that if the "right" party is elected next month there would be changes in the Municipal Act to make rezoning for building easier.

Grieve said he did not know where the land-owners got their information but said their representations were tantamount to a threat.

He said he would not be intimidated into allowing more subdivisions into the municipality.

"There are a lot of big "C" Conservatives and a lot of NDP out here and there would be war if the rural zoning was attacked in any way by the provincial government."

Grieve said the pressure from the landowners — which he did not identify — was discussed during a meeting of council Monday night.

At the meeting the mayor said he had had a visit from "an unpleasant gentleman from Alberta," concerning acquiring the bankrupt 100-acre Gillain Manor.

The "unpleasant gentleman" warned the question of rezoning depended on the result of the Dec. 11 provincial election, Grieve said.

Council members have steadfastly refused to consider any application which would call for further construction at Gillain Manor.

They indicated they would be receptive to a proposal suggested by Farmer Construction Ltd. and Saanich Peninsula Savings Credit Union to take over the building and lands and turn the site into a "low-key kind of convention centre."

OAK BAY DELAYS LAND-SWAP BYLAW

Oak Bay's land-swap bylaw was again postponed by council Monday while it waits for a full report from the municipal solicitor who is still seeking legal advice.

The bylaw's legality had been questioned Nov. 3 by a Vancouver lawyer acting for two women who used to own what is now Anderson Hill Park.

Council's wants to close part of Calvert Crescent and give it to Dr. E. H. W. Elkington, who donated four lots to the municipality last spring which became part of the park.

Fines, Gun Control Laws Sought To Quell Beer Parlor Rowdies

Fines and tougher gun control legislation should be brought in to deal with beer parlor rowdies, says Frank Burger of Victoria, newly elected president of the B.C. Hotels Association.

He said the hotel industry has been shocked by the shooting of two bartenders on the Lower Mainland by a customer who was refused service.

One of Burger's first actions upon becoming president this month was to send a telegram to federal Justice Minister Ron Basford calling for tougher gun control legislation as a result of the Burnaby shooting.

Burger said hotel owners and employees are united in the belief that laws must be toughened to deal with unruly customers.

"The law should deal severely with anyone who uses or threatens to use a handgun or knife," Burger said.

"Too often the law does little about a man who waves a gun or knife but does not use it. A person who threatens to use a weapon should be dealt with severely."

Burger said fines should also he introduced for patrons who ignore an order to stay out of a licenced premises.

"A bartender may eject a customer only to see him come back in again. All he can do is try to get him out again. There should be a fine for ignoring an order to stay out."

Burger said an incident like the double shooting in Burnaby was hard on the morale of pub employees and only tougher weapon control legislation could prevent a recurrence.

Burger, owner of the Kings Hotel at 570 Yates, is the first president of the B.C. Hotels Association to come from outside the Vancouver area in more than 20 years.

He has been a member of the association for 23 years and on the board of directors for the past 12.

The association, representing 500 hotels or 92 per cent of the total number in the province, maintains a labor relations division to bargain with employees.

Burger said the next contract, which expires April 30, probably will bargain a separate contract through the association in the belief they may come in with a smaller pay increase than is general for the industry.

The major Vancouver hotels face stiff price competition from California, Oregon and Washington State in bidding for large western conventions and must find ways to reduce costs or they will lose business.

The industry has become aware of complaints from tourists and convention organizers about room and food rates in B.C. compared with prevailing U.S. rates.

The main problem, Burger said, has been the cost of labor with pay increases of 18 per cent in B.C. compared with increases of about 7 per cent in western states.

Labor costs account for about 33 per cent of the operating expenses of a restaurant and about 25 per cent of the expenses of a pub, Burger said.

The industry was relieved that the federal government brought in the wage guidelines of 10 per cent.

"Without the guidelines, the hotel industry would have been in a precarious position in 1976."

The last wage increase for the hotel industry was at the rate of 18 per cent per year.

Burger said the industry believes the provincial government, regardless of who it is, will soon permit the sale of spirits in beer parlors.

Legislation to this effect has been passed but not implemented. Burger said all provinces from Alberta to Ontario permit the sale of hard liquor in pubs.

He said the industry believes there will be more family drinking in beer parlors once the change is implemented here. Many women prefer gin or some other drink rather than beer and, as a result, the number of females in a beer parlor is often quite low.

Special, because the single whiskies are not shocked by being dumped together at once. We let them rest quietly awhile, so that the blend will have greater uniformity and more dependable consistency.

In this Scottish city, on the banks of the River Tay, nothing much has changed. The castle is still there, and every year, from January to December, when the air is chill and pure and the water is cold, the people of Perth make Dewar's Scotch Whisky.

Son Tommy Dewar looked for new markets at the 1885 Brewer's Show and used a bagpipe to entertain. (The first commercial use of music?)

Extortion Threats Police Probe Focus

MONTREAL (CP) — The activities of Paolo Violi became the focus of attention for the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime as it began a new five-week series of public hearings Monday.

Witnesses alleged that Violi, a former business associate of Vincenzo Vic Cotroni, was the guiding force behind one attempted extortion and intervened for a friend in another incident.

Cotroni, 64, was identified at earlier hearings of the inquiry as the "undisputed chief" of the city's underworld families.

Testimony linked Violi with Antonio Tony Mucci, now serving an eight-year sentence for shooting and wounding Le Devoir crime reporter Jean-Pierre Charboneau two years ago.

Ezio Turin, a Montreal Urban Community (MUC) policeman, testified he transcribed the wiretap of an alleged phone conversation in which, Violi and Mucci discussed the possibility a Montreal restaurateur would have to be "beaten up."

The intended victim, Giuseppe Joseph Petrozza, owner of a suburban pizzeria, told commissioners he was visited in February, 1974, by two men who asked him for $5,000 in "protection" money.

"I couldn't afford that kind of money, my restaurant doesn't bring in that much," Petrozza said.

The restaurateur, who said he notified police immediately and has had no trouble since then, later identified Mucci as one of the men who visited him.

Constable Turin said Violi was at the time an associate of Cotroni in Reggio Foods Inc., a meat-processing firm which was implicated in an earlier phase of the inquiry as a prime trafficker in tainted meat.

Violi's name also came up later in a complicated debt-collection incident.

Luigi Salvatore, a brick contractor, testified he was owed $8,763 by a Montreal builder.,

In December, 1973, Salvatore said, he was threatened by a telephone caller with "having my legs cut off if he did not accept a settlement of between $1,000 and $2,500.

Construction worker Pierre Gagnon and self-described "advertising representative," Pierre Begin then testified they tried to help settle the account for the contractor.

Begin said he was told by through a mediator Violi wanted to settle the affair in a friendly manner because Salvatore was a friend of Violi.

Salvatore was placed under police protection by Judge Jean Dutil after admitting he was afraid his testifying had placed his life in danger.

Meanwhile in Ottawa the validity, but not necessarily the future, inquiry stake in an appeal to be heard today by the Supreme Court of Canada.

The case is unusual because federal justice department lawyers will try to have the inquiry ruled invalid on grounds that the province had no power to establish it. They are expected to support many legal points presented by Leo-Rene Maranda, lawyer for two Quebeckers sentenced to one year each for refusing to testify at the inquiry.

Maranda and the Ottawa lawyers argue that the British North America Act, the country's constitution, gives Parliament the exclusive right to pass laws concerning criminal matters. Therefore, Quebec or any other province has no power to make laws that allow establishment of the crime inquiries.

Humorist To Speak At Meeting

Canadian humorist, historian and editor Stuart Trueman will speak to the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria on Thursday, Nov. 20, during the noontime meeting at the Old Forge, Strathcona Hotel.

Trueman's topic will be "There were Giants in New Brunswick", which deals with little-known heroic personalities and dramatic events in the history of that province.

Trueman is author of several books including You're Only as Old as You Act, which won the 1969 Stephen Leacock Medal for Canada's best humorous book of the year. He was also editor of the Saint John Telegraph-Journal and The Evening Times-Globe for 20 years.

CBC VIEWPOINT CANCELLED

TORONTO (CP) — A program of news analysis is to replace the CBC program Viewpoint which will go off the air Jan. 2, Knowlton Nash, CBC chief of information programming, said today.

Mr. Nash, in an interview, said the new television program to start Jan. 5, will consist of commentary on the news by senior CBC reporters and correspondents from throughout the world.

Mr. Nash took responsibility for cancellation of Viewpoint.

"I cancelled it and the reason is the program hasn't been performing. The audiences have been turning away in droves."

Between 75 and 80 per cent of the audience had been defecting following the national news, Mr. Nash said. Viewpoint immediately follows the national news.

Most CBC affiliates have been refusing to carry Viewpoint and only CBC-owned stations are carrying it, Mr. Nash said.

Audiences for local news had been suffering, he said, because local coverage follows Viewpoint.

Mr. Nash said other programs—such as Access, Ombudsman and Marketplace—now provide the kind of public access to the CBC that Viewpoint was originally designed to provide.

Commenting on a statement made in the House of Commons Monday, Mr. Nash said that Ian Murray, producer of Viewpoint, has not been fired or relieved of his duties.

Walter Baker (PC—Grenville-Carleton) asked Prime Minister Trudeau in the House whether he was "aware that, in an attempt to manufacture justification for the cancellation of Viewpoint, which is not a popular move at all, the CBC has used the device of ordering Mr. Ian Murray to keep an appointment with a CBC-appointed physician . . .?'"

Mr. Nash denied the statement. He said Mr. Murray was away this week being medically examined, but that he would be back at work Monday.

IWA LAYOFFS SAID DARK AGES METHOD

CASTLEGAR (CP) — The plant chairman of the Canadian Cellulose sawmill here said Monday in a news release that the B.C. government-owned company should have given workers more notice of being laid off.

The company announced Friday that the graveyard shift of about 100 members of the International Woodworkers of America was being laid off.

Harold Lesley said the layoff of workers is "a dark ages method of treating people."

"We question the integrity of the company by telling people only hours before their jobs are being eliminated permanently and the government allowing this to happen at a mill they own," he said.

He said the plant committee appealed to the company for one week's notice of dismissal but was refused. He also said the committee had unsuccessfully sought government intervention.

The layoffs took effect Monday.

Tow for Korean Boat

SEATTLE (AP) — The hulk of a burned Korean fishing boat, the Kwang Myung No. 96, will be towed back to Korea by a sister ship, the U.S. Coast Guard said Monday.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the boat, from which 34 crewmen were rescued after an explosion Friday was located by a long-range C130 plane Monday afternoon off the Oegon coast.

The Coast Guard was searching for it because of the possible hazard it presented to navigation. When the boat was spotted, the sister ship Kwang Myung No. 20 was already alongsde it. The Coast Guard said it called off its search operation.

A representative of the boat's owner, Spencer Kim, said two of the crewmen will remain in Seattle after the others are flown back to Korea. The two, seriously burned in the explosion, are being treated at Harborview medical centre's burn unit.

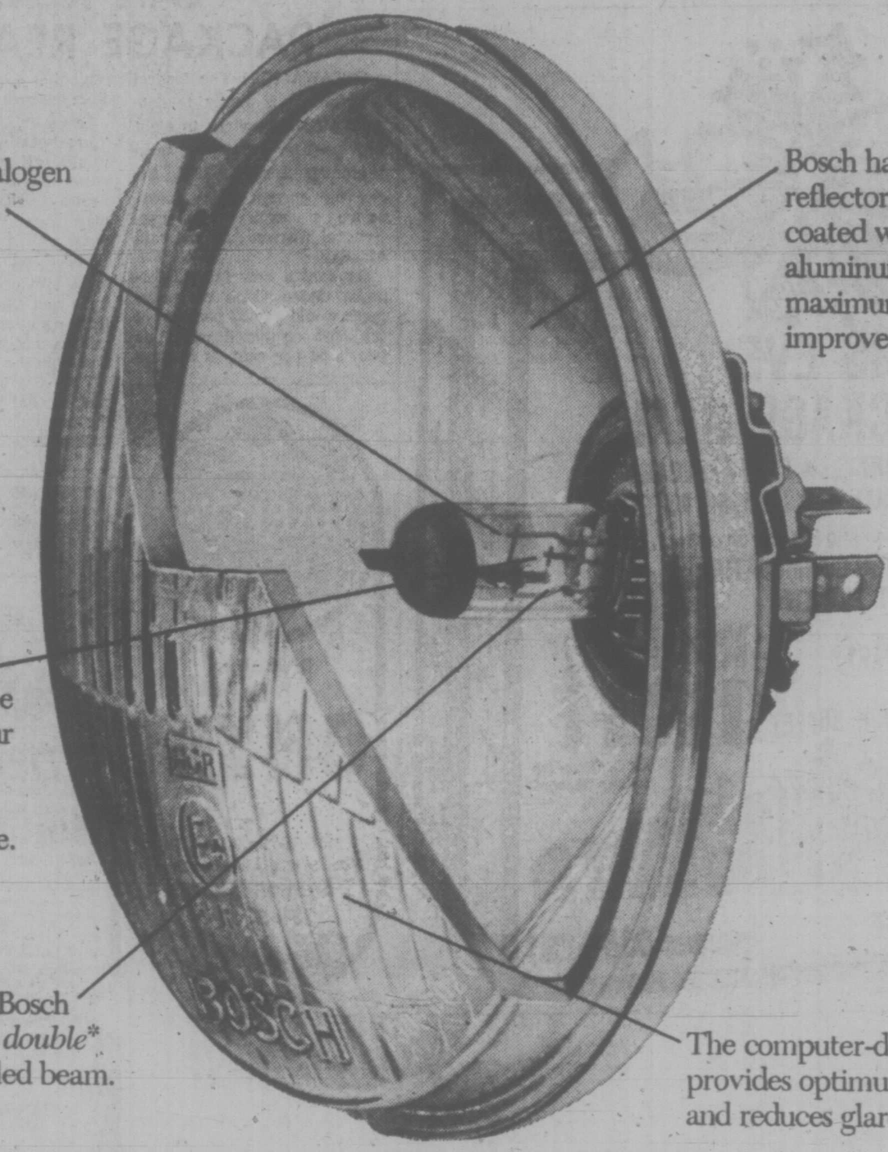
B.C. HYDRO



Unlike sealed beam units, the bulb on Bosch MS Halogen headlamps is replaceable.

Bosch has a higher quality reflector. It's made of steel, coated with zinc, lacquer, aluminum and quartz for maximum reflection and improved resistance to rust.

Low beam gives you a margin of safety over the stopping distance of your car at highway speeds. High beam lets you see clearly for almost ½ mile.

Light output of the Bosch MS Halogen bulb is *double that of a regular sealed beam.

The computer-designed Bosch lens provides optimum light distribution and reduces glare to oncoming drivers.

Who gives you 100%* more light at night?

BOSCH

At 50 mph, the average car and driver requires 188 feet to stop safely. That's the approximate distance you can expect to see with ordinary headlights on low beam. But with Bosch MS† Halogens, you get over 380 feet of clear visibility on low beams—the required stopping distance plus a margin of safety.

On high beams, Bosch MS Halogens probe 2400 feet into the night (vs about 1500 feet for sealed beams) giving you plenty of light to spare. You won't need to strain to see what's ahead. You'll have less night driving fatigue. And less panic braking.

And yet, with all this probing light, the design of the Bosch lens actually reduces glare to the oncoming driver. Chances are you're already meeting cars equipped with Bosch headlamps without ever realizing it.

Bosch MS Halogen headlamps fit virtually all North American and imported cars (5¾" and 7" round headlights). Installation is easy—just take out the old and snap in the new. On cars with four headlights, you replace only the two low beam units. Complete aiming and installation instructions come with each conversion kit.

In this demonstration,†† ordinary headlamps on low beam show a portion of the truck ahead at a distance of 188 feet—the safe stopping distance required at 50 mph. The same car was used in both photographs, only the headlamps were changed.

In this photograph, the truck is 381 feet ahead—the stopping distance required at 70 mph. Yet the Bosch headlamps reveal just as much of the truck as regular sealed beams show at 188 feet. The difference—193 feet—is the Bosch margin-of-safety.

Where can you buy them? At department stores, automotive accessory stores, new car dealers and at many, many neighbourhood service stations.

Get an extra margin of safety at night. Convert to Bosch MS Halogen headlamps. You'll be a better, more relaxed driver because of it.

FILM BOARD WORKSHOPS SET

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Film Board will hold a series of workshops across Canada to train up to 40 new directors in the techniques of film drama.

The workshops, starting late this month, will be held in Halifax, Montreal and Edmonton for three five-day periods.

The project marks a new interest by the film board in film drama, as apart from film documentaries and educational films in which the federal government agency has been a leader for many years.

The new drama development and directors' training program is being run by Roman Kroitor, head of the film board's drama studio.

He said participants in the program may be hired directly by the film board and the Canadian Film Development Corp. has promised they will be given preference in grants to help low-budget feature productions.

Because of the mail strike, the board is receiving applications for the workshop sessions at its offices across the country. Applicants are expected to have some experience in film and drama and recommendations from provincial cultural organizations or regional film board production centres.

Prostitute Lobby Launched

LONDON (Reuter) — British prostitutes, at a champagne lunch, launched a group Monday to lobby the government to legalize prostitution.

They said their aim is to liberate prostitutes from police harassment and private blackmail.

They want streets and houses set aside for prostitution, compulsory venereal disease checks, and "a better deal" for customers and prostitutes.

Writer Jeremy Sandford, who launched his latest book — Prostitutes — an expose of prostitution in London, at the same lunch, said British laws need to be changed.

He said that under British law, police need only have reasonable belief that a woman is soliciting to arrest her. She can be jailed on such an assumption and her boyfriend can be jailed for seven years with the simple evidence that he has been habitually in the company of a prostitute.

Sandford said that since prostitution is illegal, prostitutes are easy victims of blackmail, exploitation and brutality.

5-YEAR RCMP PACKAGE READY

OTTAWA (CP) The federal government is ready to contract RCMP services to eight provinces for a five-year term beginning April 1, 1976, the day the current 10-year contracts expire, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Monday.

He said a new federal formula, under which the provinces would pay 52 per cent of the cost compared with this year's 50 per cent, is a more realistic cost-sharing ratio than the present formula.

However, because of a "direct-costing" method that would reflect actual policing costs in each province, next year's costs for most provinces would be about the same as this year's.

Provincial policing cost the eight provinces — all but Ontario and Quebec which have their own forces — about $53 million this year, up $4.3 million from the previous year.

The provinces had complained that the cost is growing too heavy and asked for federal relief.

Three Movie-Going Musts Before They Go

A Film Review By Nora Hutchison

There are three movies in town to take special note of — see them quickly, or they'll be gone before you know it:

When Arthur Rubenstein was a little boy of four, he didn't want to talk, he wanted to sing. He would sing for a piece of cheese, and sing while he played his 18-year-old sister's piano exercises. His father, greatly impressed with his musical talents, bought him a small violin. Rubenstein hated the instrument, and he smashed it to pieces. "I wanted to hear the whole sound", he says with a laugh, in the modest but quite wonderful documentary, Arthur Rubenstein, A Love of Live, directed by Francois Richenbach.

Rubenstein's vitality and spirit are caught with great care in this film essay. The greatest trick in documentary filmmaking is to relax the subject enough so that he will come to regard the camera as a third companion. Rubenstein accepts Richenbach and his camera completely, it seems, because he is full of good humor as he takes us on a walking tour of his favorite Parisian haunts, tells us wonderful stories of the laughing birds in the Sidney Zoo, and shows us home movies of his four children growing up.

Richenbach intercuts clips of rehearsals and concerts with sequences in which Rubenstein performs just for the camera. As he plays, he tries to explain what it means to love music as he does, "You must never touch any piece that isn't yours, that doesn't talk to you . . . when I play, I make love, it is so heavenly, I am in love with music."

There is a great deal in this film that is musically instructive but it is most of all a cheering encounter with an extraordinary man from whom we can learn much about the joy of life.

Until a year or so ago, Philipe De Broca's film, King of Hearts, was a movie in search of an audience. It had all the makings of a box-office hit—low comedy, pathos, suspense, wit, and a charming pair of lovers, but there was something fey about it, a whimsical quality that made most audiences suspicious, and the movie did a quick death on its first commercial run. However, times and audiences have changed and King of Hearts, once a box-office disaster, has become a box-office smash in Montreal and New York, where it is a movie favorite with some members of the cultural avant-garde.

King of Hearts is not a culture-stopper but its Gallic caperings have a good deal of charm. The story is set near the end of the First World War. Its hero, a Scottish soldier, is ordered to dismantle a bomb in a French village deserted by everyone but the inmates of a lunatic asylum and the neighboring zoo. Alan Bates plays the soldier, and though he is a fine actor, he's just not the man to leap winsomely through the empty rooms of the village's castle, or to chat convincingly with carrier pigeons. But all the same, much of De Broca's movie works. It looks beautiful. The lunatics dress themselves like generals, and acrobats and courtesans. They love parades and circuses, and several spend their time driving about with rapt grins on their faces in a coach pulled by a fluffy camel. The soldier, naturally, finds them impossible to cope with and impossible to leave. The lunatics decide they can't do without him, and make him their king.

De Broca must have real sweetness and great strength of character to have folded this film into what it often is — a dream, a moment's grace, a respite from war and death.

Les Orders is a difficult, disquieting film by Michel Brault, one of Canada's finest filmmakers, which scrutinizes the effects of the War Measure Act upon the lives of five citizens of Montreal. Les Ordres is a feature film that looks like a documentary. Brault based his script on interviews conducted with 50 of the over 400 persons arrested during the October Crisis of 1970. The characters he has developed are composites of those interviewed — there is a textile worker who moonlights as a taxi-driver and his hard-working wife, a doctor who runs a community health clinic in a low-income area, an unemployed young father, and a young woman who enjoys her job as a social worker.

Each of the characters seems to have been picked out at random for this horror. The film describes their anger, their anxieties, and their frustration as they are subject to imprisonment without a reason or a charge.

Brault details every step of their imprisonment — their clothes are taken away, they undergo a thorough and humiliating physical examination, they are given prison uniforms and locked into cells. The food is impossible to eat. The psychology of prison life begins to affect them. They lose all sense of time; they put up with endless harassing by the guards; they are threatened with punishment, even with death.

Brault's film is convincing and powerful, without frills, without hysterics. He doesn't capitalize on the crisis itself, in fact, except for a caption at the film's beginning, the "situation" is avoided. The only allusion to the extent of the power behind the crisis is the arresting officer's explanation "we just follow the orders . . . those are the orders". But whose orders, where do they come from? How ironic that these citizens are being abused by the very powers that are supposed to protect them.

Brault's film is a sophisticated political statement, and his focus on the costs of oppressive political action has international relevance. Les Ordres ranks with the best of the political thrillers, as well as with the best the Canadian cinema has to offer.

CHEQUE MATE

MASON CITY, Iowa (AP) — Bank cashier Sue Hiatt was surprised when she was handed a cheque endorsed by her husband.

The boy who gave her the cheque Friday for an insurance payment definitely was not her husband.

"I couldn't believe my eyes," said Mrs. Hiatt. "We'd been looking for that cheque in the mail.

"I wish you could have seen the look on his face when I told him it was my husband's cheque. He was gone before anyone in the bank could get out of their chairs."

Writing Abilities Found Lacking

WASHINGTON (WP) — The ability of students who are 13 and 17 to write coherently declined over a four-year period, but the writing of 9-year-olds gained slightly, according to a nationwide study in the U.S. issued Monday.

The National Assessment of Educational Progress, a federally subsidized program emphasized that its essay test results showed no problem with such writing mechanics as punctuation, capitalization and spelling.

There is no evidence here that the schools must 'go back to the basics'; indeed, the basics seem well in hand," the report said.

The study pointed instead to awkward language, run-on sentences and incoherent paragraphs as the chief difficulties of the poorer writers, suggesting that these problems indicate "a movement away from established writing conventions toward those of the spoken word."

Several writing and language experts also speculated that the report may reveal in part outmoded writing standards of some English teachers who scored the essays; the diminishing importance placed on writing today; and changing attitudes of young people toward society.

Births at Home Superior—Study

CHICAGO (AP) — American mothers whose babies are delivered at home by midwives have fewer complications and healthier babies than those who go to the hospital, a California study shows.

The study, reported today in a paper prepared for the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association, was done by a health research team from Stanford University and the University of California at Santa Cruz. The team studied 287 home births performed by midwives from the Santa Cruz Birth Centre from 1971 to 1973.

Of these, 231 "had completely unremarkable births at home," the researchers reported. For those complications that did occur, the researchers said, the rate was lower than that for the population as a whole.

It concluded that mothers who were not anestetized and not drugged had lower risks than the general population and that natural childbirth at home with the assistance of midwives did not increase risks.

There also were fewer premature babies born to these mothers and the incidence of pregnancy toxemia-poisoning — was lower.

The researchers attributed "the excellent results of this population" to the lack of pain killers and anesthesia in the women, to their preparedness for childbirth, to the avoidance of the lying-flat position during labor and to the lack of stresses usually present in hospitals.

POST HINTS NO PACT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Post publisher Katherine Graham has hinted in a letter to some of the company's employees that there may never be a settlement with the striking pressmen who have been off the job for seven weeks.

Mrs. Graham said that because of the violence to the presses, which occurred when the pressmen went on strike, "it would be ultimate act or irresponsibility on our part to permit the pressmen to return under the old conditions."

Healing Substance...
Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Continental Food Policy Proposed for Canada, U.S.

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Canada and the United States should join forces in a continental food policy as an attempt to lead the world out of a growing crisis of shortages, hunger and inflation, according to a leading U.S. agricultural expert.

Lester R. Brown proposes a compact somewhat like the OPEC cartel of oil-producing countries, but with motives that are more humanitarian than economic.

He proposes a Canada-U.S. joint commission to meet the "enormous responsibility" that the two countries have as the only major grain exporters left in the world.

Brown, a former U.S. government official and university professor, heads a recently-established private organization known as The Worldwatch Institute, which calls itself "an early-warning system to identify emerging threats to human well-being."

With a virtual monopoly in grain exports, Canada and the U.S. will soon find themselves in the position of rationing world food supplies, a situation Brown predicts will cause "politically explosive" international tension, which may prove "unmanageable."

"The governments of the U.S. and Canada have not consciously sought this responsibility any more than the countries of the Middle East have planned their geographical location astride the world's richest oil fields; but they must reckon with it nonetheless," Brown says in a paper entitled The Politics and Responsibility of the North American Breadbasket, adapted from a forthcoming book.

"The time has come for Canada and the United States to join forces to attack head-on one of the most complex and intractable problems the world will face during the final quarter of this century."

As global demand outstrips productive capacity, Brown notes that world food reserves — primarily the amount of grain stored by Canada and the U.S. — have fallen to the equivalent of barely one month's world food consumption, less than one-third of reserves 15 years ago.

Brown calls on Canada and the U.S., through the joint commission he advocates, to establish explicit guidelines for responsible, co-operative behavior by food-importing countries. Those that follow the guidelines would be allowed ready access to Canadian and U.S. supplies; those that don't would be restricted.

The two countries would pool their highly-developed global agricultural intelligence networks, even though their individual record in recent years "does not inspire confidence," in order to analyse prices, trends and crops.

The two would also ensure all their cropland is kept in full production until stocks are built to a safe level.

And they would organize a world reserve system. "Without meaningful U.S.-Canadian leadership and participation, such as the creation of such a system there remains mere castle-building in the sand," Brown says.

He also urges the two countries to provide "adequate incentives" to farmers, enabling them to expand production with the guarantee of a fair return on their investment.

As OPEC's oil price increase focussed world attention on alternate fuel sources, a joint commission on food would "alert and educate governments around the world," Brown says.

He warns, if the U.S. and Canada do not co-operate in using their influence to control food exports, influence "will undoubtedly be used for more narrow, national political purposes."

INFLATION SETS BUY-NOW TREND

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States public is deeply worried about a high rate of inflation, but consumers' willingness to make major new purchases has increased dramatically in the past two months, the Harris survey reported today.

"As a result, the Christmas shopping season promises to be a successful one," Louis Harris said.

From interviews with a "cross section of 1,519 households," the Harris survey reported the number of people who said they might buy a new car during the next six months has risen to 20 per cent, up from 12 per cent a year ago.

A similar pattern was reported for intended purchases of color television sets, new homes and furiniture. Sales in all these categories have been slumping over the past year.

The Harris survey reported on consumers' buying plans in October, 1974, September and October of this year.

"One of the reasons for the current upsurge of consumer demand is that most people feel that inflation will continue and that the time to buy is now rather than later when prices will be higher," Harris

Plug Pulled —Doctor

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — A medical examiner has ruled 16-year-old Maryjane Dahl was a homicide victim. She died, he said, because someone deliberately disconnected a machine that was keeping her alive.

Maryjane died Nov. 2 at Nassau Hospital. She had been undergoing treatment for meningitis, complicated by Hodgkins disease and acute kidney failure.

Dr. Leslie Lukash, Nassau County medical examiner, said Maryjane probably would have died soon anyway. But in his report to the county district attorney's office, he said the immediate cause of death was "respiratory failure and cardiac arrest resulting from the disconnection of the respirator."

He called her death "homicidal" in the report. When asked later to elaborate, he said, "All I'm saying is that it was not a suicide and it was not an accidental death."

$7B Plan For Trains?

WASHINGTON (WP) — Legislation that would mandate $7 billion in federal spending to upgrade railroads in the U.S. and lead to significant changes in that industry's regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission has been approved by the Senate's surface transportation subcommittee.

Included in the omnibus package is $2 billion to modernize rail passenger service between Washington and Boston.

'AN ABSURDITY'

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger said Monday he regards a move by the House of Representatives intelligence committee to cite him for contempt of Congress as "an absurdity."

Questioned by a reporter as he flew here from Paris with President Ford, Kissinger said of the committee vote to seek a contempt citation:

"I think it's a frivolous citation . . . I can't imagine that the Congress will go along with the committee. The whole thing is an absurdity."

For one thing, Kissinger said, the citation was directed at him as chief of the National Security Council staff several days after he was directed by President Ford to surrender that post to long-time Kissinger aide, Brent Scowcroft.

Kissinger also argued that presidential documents he once possessed had been returned to White House files after he had been named state secretary, a position he assumed in 1973.

Bishops Backtrack On Women

WASHINGTON (WP) — Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, leader of Roman Catholic bishops in the United States, said Monday that the U.S. Catholic hierarchy must be willing to discuss with women their demands for ordination to the priesthood.

His comments in addressing the opening session of the 250-member National Conference of Catholic Bishops here were considered significant in light of the church leadership's past refusal to debate the issue publicly.

Spying Lasted 25 Years

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The FBI spied on law-abiding citizens on a large scale for 25 years, even after the program ended officially more than four years ago, U.S. Senate investigators said Monday.

The surveillance officially ended in April, 1971, but has continued on a reduced scale, the investigators for the Senate intelligence committee said.

The spying was part of a controversial counter-intelligence program that was halted by the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in 1971.

The FBI's use of disruptive investigative techniques and other questionable operations will be outlined to the committee at a public hearing today.

Meanwhile, after more than nine months of secret investigation, the Senate committee will release Thursday its long awaited report documenting how the CIA plotted to murder foreign leaders.

The Senate committee's public hearings on the FBI follow an intensive eight-month investigation.

There have been allegations that the FBI has indulged in various illegal activities and has maintained files on members of Congress.

FBI officials at a recent congressional hearing acknowledged that the agency had conducted more than 230 illegal break-ins. The bureau also has been accused of illegally tapping the telephones of 17 government officials and journalists during the Nixon administration.

TOWN TALK

Victorians who went to the Sherwood Park Inn on Halloween expecting to see Zarno — Europe's "Mr. Hypnosis" may wonder why he never appeared. There was good reason.

Immigration officials told Zarno (who they learned was Robert Warren Mach of Portland, Oregon) that if he appeared on stage he would be arrested.

According to an immigration official, Mach violated the Canadian Immigration Act by working last summer as manager of the Stardust Cabaret at 1037 View without an employment visa.

The official told Town Talk Mach admitted he had never performed as a hypnotist before. But acquaintances at the Stardust said he spent much time reading books on hypnosis.

Mach has since returned to the United States.

Resources Minister Bob Williams has apparently made a tidy profit selling his old home on Rockland Avenue.

In July, 1974, we first learned he was trying to sell his beautiful old home next door to the Waldo Skillings residence.

The asking price was $137,000 — up from the $60,000 Williams had paid for the house 19 months earlier, shortly after the NDP were elected.

Williams was not happy with the news coverage and said he was simply selling his home for the market price because he had to buy another house at prices which had skyrocketed during those 19 months.

Williams said he wanted to move to Vic West — to build a house in a friendlier neighborhood. He moved instead to James Bay and last week told a hot-line show he made a profit of $40,000 selling his home.

"I don't know anybody who has bought and sold a house in the last few years and not made money," he added.

LESLIE

In advance of their show here, promoters of the Contemporary Dancers forwarded several glossies including what appeared to be a nude twosome in Norman Walker's erotic duet, Three Psalms.

No nudes is good nudes, said the accompanying handout, which added that dancers Leslie Dillingham and William Holahan wear costumes — but transparent ones only "to keep those parts of the body which cannot be choreographed under control."

It's been about a decade since The Buzzer appeared weekly in the little tin pouches on B.C. Hydro buses.

Some veteran bus and tram riders who remember the tiny publication — always crammed with household hints, recipes and jokes — were surprised to see a one-shot return this month with a "special Vancouver Island edition" outlining transit plans for Greater Victoria.

An abashed Ald. Fred Severson, chairman of the parks and recreation committee, admits he has run into opposition in his attempt to honor former parks superintendent Bert Richman by naming either Braefoot or Hyacinth Park after him.

Severson's committee was to complete the park-naming at Monday's council meeting but, to Severson's chagrin, the matter wasn't on the agenda.

Severson explained after that Richman may never receive the recognition because others on council are reluctant to set a precedent by naming a park after a municipal employee.

So much for committee decision-making in Saanich.

Victoria police chief Jack Gregory says he speaks Cantonese but it has become rather rusty in the last 12 years.

Gregory was commenting on a recent statement by Mayor Peter Pollen who said a bilingual applicant for the post of deputy police chief would have preference over a unilingual applicant, noting that Victoria's chief is bilingual — able to converse in English and Cantonese.

"I have used it (Cantonese) in duties with the B.C. provincial police from 1939 to 1963 but it has become very rusty since," Gregory said in English.

When asked in Cantonese whether he understands Chinese, Gregory replied: "La how ma."

Translated into English, that means "how are you?"

He then cited a murder case in the Kamloops area in 1950.

"A Chinese man was murdered and I had difficulty getting his background," Gregory said, "so I took lessons in the Cantonese dialect from a local Chinese businessman and former schoolteacher from the province of Canton."

He admitted his present fund of Cantonese is "Lok yee loy" — here come the police — and other "pleasant chatter."

"I really haven't used it since 1963, other than to the odd Chinese I've met here and there," he said.

This "odd Chinese" thanked him for his time.

There's more than a touch of pathos in defence lawyer Michael Hutchison's statement Monday that there is little or no counselling at the B.C. Pen for his client Danny Cain.

But Cain is talking for the first time about his future, says Hutchison.

"He hasn't finished his schooling and he wants to finish."

What are they doing to rehabilitate Danny?

"They've got him sewing emblems on canvas bags, imprinting Canada Post Office on them . . . using a stencil."

Sad.

Victoria constituency Socreds apparently weren't too-sure that Peter Pollen and Sam Bawlf would be acceptable candidates.

The local Socred executive went on record earlier in the campaign saying that only long-standing Socred members would be considered as candidates for nomination.

It was Socred campaign headquarters in Vancouver that approved the pair's bid for nomination Monday.

At a meeting between the two Socred levels, B.C. Socred League representative Dan Campbell confirmed that Pollen and Bawlf were acceptable, even in light of the fact that they only recently applied for party membership.

The party's constitution says any nomination hopeful can join the Socreds the very day of the nomination meeting.

"But because of an anomaly, he cannot vote for himself unless he's a 30-day member," says Campbell.

Again this year, City Hall has decided to trim the tree — literally.

The former custom of erecting a giant Christmas tree in Centennial Square was abandoned due to rising transportation and labor costs last year, and the situation evidently hasn't improved.

The public works committee blanched today when it was informed that estimated costs for the job — the tree would have to be brought from the Greater Victoria Water District lands — are now $1,300.

Instead aldermen instructed city engineer John Sansom to exercise his imagination a little more frugally . ... perhaps by stringing lights and other decorations around some of the plane trees that are permanent fixtures of the square.

Point for Pain Relief

Acupuncture clinic at Victoria General Hospital opened Monday and treated about 20 patients on referral from family doctors.

Second of its kind in B.C., the clinic has about 200 patients booked for treatment of pain that has not responded to other forms of treatment.

Needles carry low electric current for stimulation of nerves.

Ancient Chinese methods have been developed into clinical techniques, but definitive theory of why it works eludes researchers.

School Report Urges Changes To Save $1.2M

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Closure of Burnside elementary school and a new primary school status for Lampson elementary school has been recommended in a report to the Greater Victoria school board with district-wide implications.

Prepared by Dr. John Wiens, assistant superintendent of administration, the hefty report outlines proposed futures of all schools in the district and recommendations would save an estimated $1.2 million by 1978.

Wiens urges that all parents have an opportunity to study and react to the report before the board makes a decision, although sometimes "it is difficult for parents to be objective in matters which have a direct impact on the education of their children."

"All parts of the district will have to suffer some inconvenience for the sake of economy," says Wiens, but recommendations "will spread the burden of inconvenience throughout the four municipal areas."

The report recommends:

—Moving South Park family co-operative school to Bank Street Sept., 1977, saving $490,000;

—Suspension of plans for construction of Harbor View elementary in Esquimalt;

—Creation of a middle school (Grades 5 to 8) at Arbutus Junior Secondary by 1978, removing the need for planned new school at Edgelow.

—Continuation with opening of Torquay elementary school next year to ease crowding in Gordon Head area;

—Addition of one grade each year to Spectrum school until enrolment reaches kindergarten to Grade 10;

—A suitable site be located on Roy Road for new elementary school.

Wiens said most of the 111 recommendations are caused by declining birth rate which has dropped by about 4,000 since 1969.

Board administration predicts a further decrease of 600 elementary school students next year, and expectations are the decline will continue until 1970.

Under the proposals Burnside would close in September, 1976, as earlier predicted, raising protests from Burnside parents.

Wiens warns the board that a decision on Burnside will not be easy, but in terms of the economies, closure should be approved.

Parents would be given a choice of other neighboring schools.

Wiens recommends that 150 pupils in kindergarten to grade 3 be enrolled in September 1976 and that boundaries of neighboring schools — Macaulay, Rockheights and Victoria West — be redrawn to accommodate intermediate pupils now at Lampson. He also urges that necessary maintenance and renovation at Lampson be proceeded with and unused space be shared with other agencies.

Dayliner Start Stutters

The 68-passenger Dayliner inaugurated its early morning Victoria to Parksville run Monday with four passengers on board.

There were five passengers for the return trip to Victoria Monday afternoon.

CP Rail officials said they remain hopeful the new schedule will result in a return to the 50 per cent capacity rate that the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway had in 1974.

In an effort to increase passenger traffic, CP Rail tried a seven-month experiment of changing the schedule to permit up-Islanders to come to Victoria in the morning and to return home in the afternoon. Instead of an increase, however, the average passenger total fell from 50 per cent of capacity to about 25 per cent.

(An additional factor in the passenger decline may have been the shortening of the service with Parksville as the northern terminal rather than Courtenay. The Courtenay portion of the run ended in July when CP Rail said two old trestles north of Parksville were no longer safe and it would not be worth the $1.7 million cost to replace them.)

Now the Dayliner has reverted to its 1974 schedule except the morning run leaves Esquimalt at 8:15 a.m. (instead of 8:30 a.m.), arriving at Parksville at 11:20 a.m.

The new schedule has the return trip leaving Parksville at 2 p.m., arriving at Victoria at 5 p.m.

More Alternatives Planned

Designation of a series of more-structured alternative schools and creation of a high school to handle "Sentinel-type" school graduates are on the drawing boards of planners in the Greater Victoria School District.

A special report to the board prepared by assistant superintendent of administration Dr. John Wiens also urges that enrolment at the school be increased and additional space provided in the form of portables.

Wiens recommends that Sundance be expanded to include Grade 8 or 9 and provision be made for special subject instruction at S. J. Willis Junior Secondary school.

"Present facilities (at Sundance) are among the least adequate of any school in the district," says Wiens, but staff and parents are prepared to remain at the Quadra street school if portables' facilities are provided.

In the more-structured alternative, Sentinel staff and parents feel that the poor quality of facilities and lack of space are major handicaps, says Wiens.

"In the long run it will doubtless become necessary to designate several schools as Sentinel-type schools," he says.

He urged the school be moved to the Dean Height building in June, 1977, that several other district schools be designated Sentinel-type schools by September, 1977, and the current buildings occupied by Sentinel be phased out after June, 1977. Sentinel now includes only Grades 3 to 7.

Under the proposals, Rockheights elementary would be designated a Sentinel-type by September, 1977, as well as Doncaster elementary school.

Burnside elementary, if closed as recommended by September, 1977, would be reopened as a Sentinel-type school.

Wiens also urges that the board confirms the designation of Landsdowne Secondary as the school for graduates of more-structured schools, with the expectation that Grade 11 will be added in September, 1977, and Grade 12 in September, 1978.

In the case of all elementary schools earmarked to take on the new, more-structured approach to education, planning, staffing and other necessary preparation should be undertaken to ensure that such an approach can meet the September deadline, says Wiens.

The recommendations on alternative schools, he said, are a recognition that there is more demand for Sentinel-type schools than the Sundance, less-structured approach.

Saanich Jousts On Police Pact

A policeman's lot is not an 'appy one.

Gilbert and Sullivan might have been thinking about the Saanich police force when they wrote that song.

Tempers flared again at Monday's council meeting over the recent settlement between the municipality and its police force.

Ald. Joseph Bourque tried unsuccessfully to persuade council not to pay the full cost of insuring every married constable for a maximum amount of $40,000 on an interim basis until permanent insurance can be found.

"Paying the full whack of the premium . . . that's something the taxpayer won't stand for," Bourque said.

After giving Saanich police one of the highest wage increases ever, "$2,000 or so to some of the constables", paying the entire premium costs is too much, Bourque said.

Mayor Ed Lum told Bourque the insurance coverage had been agreed upon in the recent settlement and municipal administrator Bill Tremayne said, "This is an interim action to put on $40,000 while it (insurance) is being investigated on how to get the best coverage on a long-time basis."

"I do not think our policemen are overpaid one bit," Ald. John McDonald told Bourque and Ald. Fred Severson pointed out that Victoria police have been given a wage settlement of $10 more than their Saanich counterparts.

"Janitors at (B.C.) Hydro get more than our policemen," Mayor Lum told Bourque.

Trio Checked After Fire

Three occupants of a Glen Lake duplex were checked at hospital for smoke inhalation after fire gutted a bedroom of the house shortly after 9:30 this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Thomas and their small child were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital were Mrs. Thomas was detained.

Colwood RCMP said fire at 2995 Glen Lake was confined to the bedroom, caused apparently by smoking in bed. Firemen said damage was minimal.

BIKEWAY MEET SET

The Regional Bikeway Committee will hold a public meeting on Monday, Nov. 24, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Upper Lounge of the Student Union Building at the University of Victoria.

The meeting is intended to provide an opportunity for the public and representatives of municipal, regional and provincial government to contribute their ideas on the best manner of providing bikeway facilities in the Capital Region.

'Chilling Crime' Preview

A county court jury was told Monday it will hear this week about a "chilling crime" involving the rape of a 26-year-old Colwood mother of two daughters Feb. 2.

Prosecutor David Lisson made the remark at the opening of the trial of Burton Juston Tiffin, 660 Rockingham, who ws arrested Feb.21.

Lisson said the woman was asleep in the early hours of that morning when an intruder came through a window. One of the daughters was also asleep and the other was staying overnight with friends.

The intruder reached under the bed covers and indecently molested her, Lisson said.

"Terrified, she submitted to his will and was raped," he said.

The man had said, Lisson told the jury, that if the woman made a sound the daughter would be killed.

Later, the woman identified Tiffin from a police lineup, he said.

First witnesses were RCMP officers who told the jury and Judge Montague Drake that the woman was hysterical when they first saw her and when she was interviewed at the police station.

Const. Richard Lewis said the lineup consisted of six persons including Tiffin. The others resembled him.

The woman wasn't told there would be a suspect in the lineup and was not shown photos of Tiffin before the lineup, he said.

She wrote on a piece of paper during the lineup, "Yes, I think number 8," referring to the number Tiffin was holding. She also walked to him and touched him on the shoulder to identify him.

Cross-examined by defence counsel Don Farquhar, Lewis conceded it was "quite reasonable" for the woman to expect police would have a suspect in the lineup.

The trial continued today. Lisson is being assisted by Barry Mah Ming and Farquhar is being assisted by Brian MacKenzie.

Ideas for Recession-Proof Gift-Giver

NEW YORK (NYT) — Digging deep to make news, Nieman-Marcus, the Dallas-based department store, is dredging up the ghost of pre-Christmas past as the expensive and imaginative gift suggestion that is an annual feature of its Yule catalogue.

This year, the recession-proof gift-giver is being offered a joyful journey into the Jurassic (160 million to 230 million years ago) in the form of a dinosaur dig in Utah.

Anyone who can shell out $29,,995 for the store's "Saurian Safari" is guaranteed a skeleton of an allosaurus, which it says is "the giant, carnivorous dinosaur that preyed upon its more benign and vegetarian contemporaries."

For your money, you get a 10-day safari that starts and ends in Salt Lake City, and a skeleton "in realistic pose with suitably inscribed donor plaque, placed in an accredited museum or similarly appropriate institution of your choice."

But, don't worry. You don't go home empty-handed. You get "a bronze cast of the monster's skull and the satisfaction of a contribution toward posterity," to say nothing of the gross income of Neiman-Marcus.

"The skeleton will be comprised of as many actual bones as can be unearthed, augmented with exacting replicas of those missing," the catalogue says.

As for the problem of Christmas morning, if you don't want to shove a pickaxe and a rusty spade under the tree as a hint, the store will provide an explanatory gift certificate.

The store guarantees that a find will be made at the site of the dig. How can it guarantee it? "That's our secret," a spokesman said.

One warning. Possibly on the assumption that they might beat the digger to the bones, no dogs are allowed on the safari.

If the canine ban sticks in your craw, and if you prefer indoor pursuits to outdoor, perhaps you might want the Neiman-Marcus answer to Amtrak.

It's called the "Gravy Train," an engine and four open freight cars running on an oval track laid out on a wooden base.

Costs $8,000.

The Gravy Train is made out of sterling silver. The freight this railroad is intended to carry consists of salt and pepper shakers, condiments, olives and little onions.

Fits on a table top.

No Federal subsidy included.

Welch Medical Report

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

It won't affect this year's hay fever season nor probably even next year's, but there is great promise of relief for allergy sufferers of all kinds in the work of Dr. Robert Hamburger of the University of California at San Diego.

He has apparently succeeded in synthesizing a protein-like substance, which when injected into a allergy victim prevents allergic attacks by barricading the cells that set off the reaction.

As a result of the work of many investigators it is now fairly well established that allergic symptoms — sneezing, tearing, red weltts on the skin, itching and such threatening events as swelling of the membranes of the wind pipes — are set off when offending allergens, such as pollens, bee venom or, in some people, penicillin by-products, combine with a blood protein call "immunoglobulin E" (IgE).

These combinations of allergen and IgE attach themselves to special sites on the surface of so-called "mast" cells, found chiefly in the lining of the respiratory tract, the intestinal tract and in the skin.

The mast cells in turn are stimulated to elaborate histamine and other so called mediators, which are responsible for the allergic symptoms.

The interaction between an allergen, IgE complex and a mast cell is complicated and not entirely understood, but the connection which is established is apparently as precise as that of fitting a key into a lock.

And the resultant secretion of histamine and other chemical agents by the mast cells sets up a kind of sievelike permeability of the capillary walls, with swelling and irritation of the susceptible areas of the body such as the eyes, the nasal membranes, the skin, the bronchial tubes and the intestinal tract.

Medications a act either to suppress the release of histamine from the cell or, as with the so-called antihistamines, to block its activity at the capillary level.

Progressive desensitizing injections designed to reduce allergic symptoms to such allergens as ragweed probably work because they reduce the elaboration of Ige and raise the level of other blocking antibodies.

Dr. Hamburger's contribution to all this is the development of a substance which mimicks Ige, attaches to the mast cell, prevents the Ige-antigen complex from finding space on the mast cell and thus prevents the release of histamine.

This is still a somewhat dim bird's eye view of a very complicated subject, but the 35 million allergy sufferers in America can be confident that very real progress is being made and the prospects of increasingly effective treatment are also very real.

AMAN CURBS FOREIGNERS

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein issued a royal decree barring foreigners from owning more than 49 per cent of small businesses. The decree excluded "industrial companies, tourism and service firms" underlining the king's desire to see Ammau turn into an international business centre.

EARNINGS GAP SPREADS

NEW YORK (AP) — There are more women working outside the home in the United States today than there were 20 years ago, but the earnings gap between men and women has widened during the period, a report in the Guide to Consumer Markets shows.

Women holding full-time jobs now average $6,800 a year, 43 per cent less than the $11,800 earned by men, the report says. Women earned about 36 per cent less than men 20 years ago.

The report-conducted by the Conference Board, a private industry research group — says the widening gap is largely explained by the arrival of a new mix of working women who are occupying jobs throughout the labor force, while in the 1950s most working women held professional jobs.

However, because of "changing attitudes toward work, a much broader base of women has entered the labor force," the report says.

It says college-trained women represent about 42 per cent of the growth of the female work force, while women with high school educations or less represent 58 per cent of the increase.

Before you buy a life insurance policy, you should be quite sure what type of life insurance will serve your needs how much insurance you should purchase and where to buy.

The 12-page booklet "Facts You Should Know About Life Insurance" explains that there are many forms of life insurance but only four main types: Term, Whole or Ordinary Life, Limited-payment Life and Endowment Insurance. The important differences between these four types are explained in simple language.

All other types of insurance are combinations of the four basic plans. In addition there are different kinds of annuities, including annual and single premium annuities, immediate annuities and others.

The booklet also lists a number of reasons why people buy life insurance. Some do it to provide cash for their dependents; others want to build a cash reserve or income for themselves once they reach a certain age; and still others may want to provide higher eduation for their children.

You can pick up a single copy of this booklet at your nearest Better Business Bureau or send a long (No. 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Better Business Bureau of Canada, 76 St. Clair Avenue West, Toronton Ontario M4V 1N2.

Irresistible

DEAR ABBY: My husband is either the world's biggest liar, or he must have something I'm not aware of.

George said he was through driving sitters home because they just won't leave him alone. He claimed the last one—a 16-year-old girl—practically attacked him in the car. (She's a junior achiever. Can you believe this?)

Another time, the minister's wife called and offered me some home-grown cucumbers. She said she had more than she knew what to do with, so I sent George over to get some.

When he came back he said the minister's wife tried to get him to "relax" on a mattress in her basement. Then she "begged" him to try some of her pineapple upside-down cake. He also claimed that to prolong his stay, she handed him one cucumber at a time!

He's always telling me how women can't resist him. Believe me, Abby, he's nothing special.

Should I pretend to believe him, call him a liar or what?
—George's Wife

DEAR WIFE: If George is making up these stories, he must feel the need to convince you (and perhaps himself) that he's desirable. If you call him a liar, you'll castrate him. Give his ego a boost instead, and he won't have to lie.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy, and I'm in the 10th grade. I gave my girl friend a wrist watch for her birthday, which caused her parents and mine (especially hers) to become very upset.

Her parents seem to think it was an "engagement" present, and they made her give it back to me.

My parents weren't quite so harsh, but they think it was a little too much for a boy of our age group to give a girl friend.

Abby, I didn't give her the watch to symbolize anything. I just wanted to give her something nice, and she needed a watch. It was very inexpensive.

My girl friend was heartbroken when her parents made her return it, and my ego was somewhat pounded into the ground. I realize that we are not old enough to become seriously involved, but I do think she should have been able to keep it.

What do you think? Please be open-minded—T.L.

DEAR T.L.: It's not the cost but the kind of gift your parents objected to. Jewelry and personal attire (at any price) are too intimate for 14 year olds.

Refrigerator in Reverse Can Heat, Cool a House

MOTHER EARTH NEWS

There's as old saying used to describe impractical ideas — "That heats about as well as ice in winter" — which may have just become outdated.

Outdated because a team of engineers at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee have designed, constructed and are currently testing an energy system that actually does heat a house in winter by turning water into ice. Then, to add frosting to the cake, the system turns right around and uses that same ice to inexpensively air condition the building during the summer!

This seemingly magical process — which is known as the Annual Cycle Energy System (or ACES, for short) — is not based on magic at all. The Oak Ridge engineers found a way to use the summer sun to heat a home in winter and to cool the same dwelling through a sweltering summer with winter ice. How? By figuring out a way to extract both heat and cold from a single energy system built around a big tank of water and a heat pump — most simply described as "a refrigerator in reverse."

The emphasis is on the warmth extracted rom, instead of the cold collected in, a "storage box." Refrigerants (liquids with higher boiling points than the freezing point of water — Freon, for instance) are circulated through tubes around a big "storage container" filled with earth, water, air or some on other physical mass. As they circulate, the moving fluids absorb heat, since heat energy always flows from warmer to cooler areas.

They'll readily give up this heat at temperatures in the teens and twenties, which is hot for them but frigid and useless to us. If the coolant is compressed, however, the circulating medium will give off its warmth at temperatures ranging up into the hundreds of degrees Fahrenheit — which is quite suitable for heating water or air for household use.

However, just as a refrigerator extracts heat from an insulated chest and then "wastes" that warmth by blowing it out into the open air, a heat pump — which is designed only to raise the temperature within a house or other closed space — dissipates the cold it "manufactures" in the same wasteful manner.

Or it was totally wasted, until some clever Oak Ridge scientists shook ACES out of their collective sleeve.

The Annual Cycle Energy System, simply stated, is nothing more than a heat pump hooked up to a house on one end and a closed and insulated container filled with 20,000 gallons of water on the other.

During cold weather, the pump circulates Freon — at low pressure — through coils of tubing placed in the water. The water, as you would expect, slowly cools as the circulating refrigerant extracts its heat.

The warmed Freon is next compressed and passed through a heat exchanger where it gives up some of the energy it's collected by raising the temperature of household hot water for bathing, washing dishes, etc. Then, still under pressure, the warm refrigerant heats living space by moving through a coil which warms air that is blown throughout the house by a fan.

After that, the Freon is allowed to expand under low pressure in an evaporator and the cooled refrigerant is then pumped back to the coils in the big water storage tank to begin another trip through the system.

As this process is repeated again and again throughout the winter, the 2,000 gallons of water gradually gets colder — until it finally turns into ice.

If the volume of water in the storage tank, the area of living space being heated, the severity of the cold weather and the length of winter all balance out just right, the storage bin's contents will be converted almost entirely to ice at precisely the time that spring's warmth begins to surround the house. (Since things seldom work out exactly as expected, however, a supplemental solar panel or two can be added to the system to keep the large tank of water from completely freezing in the middle of, say, an unusually frigid April.)

But that's only half the story because, once the heating season is over, an ACES-equipped house is left sitting on a ready-made source of summer cooling: a giant (20,000 gallons, to be exact) continer full of ice.

At this point — except for the heating of household hot water and, possibly, the refreezing of storage tank ice during a particularly sweltering summer — the ACES refrigerant and compressor are retired for the season, In their place, a brine solution is circulated under ordinary atmospheric pressure. For ACES purposes, a brine is any solution which freezes at a lower temperature than water.

During the summer this brine is circulated through the house in a long coil of tubing. As warm air in the dwelling is drawn over the tubes, it's cooled . . . and as the air is cooled, the brine is heated.

The warmed solution is then circulated through the 20,000-gallon bin of ice where, as it gives up heat, the ice is warmed. After that, the chilled brine is pumped back through the house coils to pick up another load of heat.

Slowly, over the summer, this circulation gradually melts the storage tank ice back into water, thereby getting it ready for the next heating phase.

Ideally, of course ,the volume of ice in the container, the area of living space being cooled, the severity of the hot weather and the length of summer will balance out just right to melt all the ice in the holding tank at precisely the time that fall's chill begins to nip at the house, If that doesn't happen, though, the "regular" heating compressor can be turned on at night during the summer months to dissipate heat into the nocturnal air and refreeze some of the water thawed during daytime air conditioning.

In essence. then, the Annual Cycle Energy System traps the heat of the summer sun by using it to melt ice. The water that results represents ice plus accumulated solar energy, and the house-warming part of the cycle reclaims and utilizes this stored energy while trapping the "excess" cooling potential of winter in the form of ice. Viewed this way, ACES is a circular solar energy storage and retrieval system.

According to a 1974 study, the ACES dwelling drew only about a constant 4 KW while in use during cold weather — half as much as a home equipped with an air-based heat pump and just one-quarter of the current gobbled by a resistance-heated house.

The comparison is summer was even more jolting. Whereas a home outfitted with a "traditional" electrical air conditioner sopped up 7,875 kilowatt hours of energy for cooling, the ACES house was air conditioned throughout June, July, August, and September on only 449 kilowatt hours of electricity.

All told, on an annual basis, the ACES house consumed only 22.7 per cent as much energy as the resistance-heated home and just 70 per cent of the "juice" used by the fuel-fired dwelling.

That's the good news. The bad news (which, in most respects, really isn't very bad at all) is that an Annual Cycle Energy System does take up a fair amount of space. Twenty thousand gallons of water in an insulated box, you know, displaces around 2,700 cubic feet . . . which is a mass measuring 27'x10'x10'. Anyone installing ACES has to have a basement, ground level room or add-on structure (or be willing to build such a space) capable of accepting such a water tank.

He or she must also have access to 20,000 gallons of water (this should be no problem for folks tied into a big city water system, but 20,000 gallons can be a big bite of H20 to take from a well or divert from a stream).

Second: Although it's more efficient and does have lower operating costs than "traditional" heating and cooling installations, ACES — just like most of the innovative energy systems now under development — is initially more expensive to install than those same "traditional" systems.

But the Annual Cycle Energy System is a major new idea in home heating and cooling. The first somewhat crude prototype of the system is already working quite well and refinements currently under development should make second generation ACES even more efficient. This, then, is one new "alternative" energy concept that most certainly bears close watching.

Welterweight Stands Tall

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — The real bull of the Canadian woods is no 300-pound logger — in fact, he's an introspective welterweight who stands a lot less than six feet tall and tips the scales at a lean 150 pounds.

Soft-spoken Alan Boyko is a bridgebuilder during the week at MacMillan Bloedel's Taylor logging division. On weekends, he's the world champion in two logging sports and the Canadian titleholder in a fistful of others. He's won so many championships in 10 years of competitive logging events that he's lost track of some of them.

Boyko may not be a towering giant, but he packs a wallop that would break Paul Bunyan's kneecap. He shakes hands like a freight train coupler and the tattoo on his right forearm has grown from garter snake to python proportions thanks to a muscle-building program that has turned his arms into tanned pistons.

Born and raised in Port Alberni, Boyko is a thoughtful, quiet man who collects antique bottles and putters around a basement cluttered with tools and a pinball machine, making coffee tables from log burls for family and friends. But put him on his favorite battlefield, a logging sports park, and he turns into a true "bull of the woods" — loggers' slang for top hand — and possibly the best all-round competitive logger this country has ever produced.

Size, he insists, is no substitute for skill. Boyko is one of the smallest but most successful competitors on the Canadian Loggers Sports Association's 13-meet British Columbia circuit, which covers Vancouver Island, the lower mainland and Fraser Valley.

"I've been in quite a number of logging sports events where there are guys a lot bigger than I am, over six feet and 200 pounds or more," said the 40-year-old bridgeman, a regular on the circuit since 1965. "If you can get mean enough and you're skilled enough, a smaller man can come out on top."

Boyko specialized in two events that involve strength and dexterity with steel cables used in actual logging operations — eye splicing and the Molly Hogan race. He's the recognized world champion in both categories and utilizes skills he acquired on the job since joining MacMillan Bloedel at Franklin River in 1952 at 16 years of age.

"In eye splicing, you take a piece of three-quarter-inch cable and form a loop by weaving the strands together," Boyko explained. "In a logging camp you use an eye-spliced loop to pull the rigging back out of the bush."

He said the Molly Hogan race consists of joining two pieces of cable together by looping a nine-foot-long chunk of line between the ends

Prince George Trustees Tied

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Canadiates for the three vacant school district seats will have to wait until at least next week before knowing who will serve on the district board.

District spokesman Stu Drinnan said Monday two candidates are tied for the final seat and returning officer Mac Carpenter will review balloting procedures and declare the winners next week after all the boxes are collected from the 33 polling stations.

Results released Monday show Dr. Charlie Boyd, seeking his second two-year term, is second with 1,336 votes, 10 more than Anne Hogan, an incumbent, and Steve Sintich, a mobile home operator seeking his first term.

Jim Ellis, an incumbent, has 1,151, businessman Len Fraser, seeking his first term has 1,008, and civil engineer Barry Harvey has 489.

Drinnan said in an interview Carpenter will not recount the ballots first but will review polling clerks' ballot paper accounts.

At the end of balloting Saturday, each polling clerk had to account for the number of ballots issued to the station, the number of ballots used, the number counted as valid, the number rejected and the number received by each candidate, said Drinnan.

A ballot could be rejected because it is improperly marked or because the voter could be identified, he said.

The returning officer would also look for invalid ballots that a polling clerk may have missed, said Drinnan.

After this procedure is completed, the returning officer can either declare the winners or recount the ballots, he said.

If the returning officer does not order a recount, any of the candidates may seek a judicial recount, said Drinnan, adding a candidate could also seek a judicial recount of a returning officer's recount.

He said about five per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots.

The district has seven board members. Four seats will be contested next year.

Inquiry Adjourns

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federally-appointed inquiry commission on health and safety in grain elevators was adjourned indefinitely Monday after formally opening its public hearings.

Dr. W. D. Liam Finn, dean of applied sciences and civil engineering professor at the University of British Columbia, who is conducting the inquiry, said further public hearings here will probably be held before Dec. 10.

TRIDENT WEEK

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips has proclaimed next week as Trident Concern Week for the city as a protest over construction of the Trident submarine and missile base at Bangor, Wash.

Phillips said the Trident base "will make the British Columbia Lower Mainland the launching area and retaliatory target for a first-strike nuclear attack." Bangor is about 120 miles south of here.

The week will feature talks at the University of B.C. and Simon Fraser University. Among those scheduled to speak are Many Faufman, United States prosecuting attorney at the Nuremberg War Crimes Tribunal, William Epstein, former head of the Disarmament Divison of the United Nations and Robert Aldridge, a former designer of the Trident missile.

The proclamation was made in co-operation with a protest also scheduled for next week at UBC and SFU by Pacific Life Community.

YOUTH CURFEW APPROVED

SURREY (CP) — Council gave unanimous final approval on Monday to an 11 p.m. curfew starting Dec. 15 for all youths 15 years of age and under.

The curfew, approved without discussion, is patterned after one established in Port Coquitlam last summer.

The bylaw carries the maximum fine allowed by the Municipal Act of $5 for parents who habitually allow their children to violate the curfew.

Railmen Seek Complaint

OTTAWA (CP) — The 40,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers has requested a decision on whether companies can be charged with failing to bargain in good faith if they refuse to go beyond the new federal wage guides in negotiations.

Labor department officials are studying the union's request to file a formal complaint with the Canada Labor Relations Board, an aide to Labor Minister John Munro said Monday.

The union asked Munro in a letter Friday for permission to file a complaint against bus company Voyageur Colonial Ltd. of Ottawa and its parent firm, Provincial Transport Enterprises of Montreal, "on the charge of refusing to bargain in good faith."

Union president Don Nicholson said in a statement that when negotiators, representing 400 drivers and mechanics employed by Voyageur, met company representatives to begin contract negotiations last week "they were told that the company would not budge over the federal guideline limit of 10 per cent a year in wages."

Their last two-year agreement expired Saturday.

Nicholson said the Canada Labor Code says in section 148 that both parties "without delay . . . shall meet and commence to bargain collectively in good faith, and make every reasonable effort to enter into a collective agreement."

Nicholson said the pre-determined position taken by the bus companies "precludes good faith bargaining as it is intended by the labor code."

"The legislation governing the guidelines has not yet been enacted, and even when it is enacted, it will not empower employers to interpret its provisions unilaterally," Nicholson said in the statement.

"That will be the sole prerogative of the anti-inflation review board, to be exercised only after a settlement is negotiated."

Nicholson said to assume that all employers are justified in interpreting and applying the guide limits at the outset of negotiations "would be to destroy good faith bargaining and render that section of the labor code meaningless."

Ed Finn, legislative director for the union, said in an interview Monday the Canada Labor Relations Board should make a definitive ruling on what constitutes "good faith bargaining."

"The take-it-or-leave-it offers by companies were ruled illegal in the United States . . . a long time ago," Finn said.

Generally, the federal program of selective wage and price controls, now before Parliament, limits more than four million workers to a basic 10-per-cent increase in the first year of a contract. The anti-inflation review board, established to monitor the program, is empowered to allow an additional two-per-cent increase for employees who can prove they had fallen behind.

Leadership Lack—Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — America suffers from a lack of leadership, according to former president Richard Nixon.

"We, as a country, have to provide strength and leadership," Nixon said in an interview in the Ladies' Home Journal. "England is at a standstill. France seems in disarray . . . Italy has a crisis government. Germany can't rally a world cause.

"South Africa? Where do we expect leadership to emerge?"

Nixon, interviewed at his home in San Clemente, Calif., by William M. Fine, an author and New York textiles executive, had little to say of President Ford, whom Nixon chose as his vice president:

"He's okay. Right now he's too accessible. A congress or a parliament can paralyze leadership."

The mood of the nation, Nixon said, is lackluster:

"We are so cynical, so disbelieving — it may take the shock of an invasion — in Korea or in Thailand. If American lives are threatened, we may regain our sense of belief in our country and our need for strength. We are a compromised country at the moment."

He did not explain why he felt the American people are cynical or what may have caused the cynicism.

Too Much Arguing— Charles on Libbers

LONDON — Prince Charles is not an enthusiastic supporter of womn's lib, he told a British women's magazine.

"Women's liberationists rather annoy me because they tend to argue all the time and start calling you a male chauvinist pig and frankly, it becomes rather uncivilized," the prince said in the second published instalment of a copyright interview with Woman's Own magazine.

He was answering questions submitted by the magazine's readers in what British newspapers last week said was one of the frankest interviews ever given by a member of he royal family.

But the prince still kept a few secrets.

One reader wanted to know if he had clean sheets on his bed every night and whether he slept in pajamas.

No, the prince said, he didn't sleep in fresh sheets every night but the pajama question remained a secret.

VIENNA — Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky said Monday he will insist on being released from parliamentary immunity to face slander charges by Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal.

Kreisky told reporters that once in court, he will furnish proof of his allegation that Wiesenthal worked with the Nazis in the Second World War, and that this is why he lived largely unmolested in Nazi zones while millions of other Jews perished in concentration camps.

The chancellor is also of Jewish descent but professes no religion.

TIPEI — Chairman Mao Tse-Tung has selected a grave site for himself and his wife on the outskirts of Peking, the English language China News reported Monday.

MONTREAL — Norman McLaren, pioneer motion picture animator and winner of more than 100 awards for his work, will receive another this week coincident with the publication of a book of his private drawings.

McLaren, 61, a leading artist with the National Film Board since 1941, will receive the Annie Award from the International Animated Film Society in Hollywood on Thursday. Because his health prevents him from going to Hollywood, the award will be accepted for him by Andre Lamy, head of the film board.

TORONTO — Dan Maloney of Detroit Red Wings will appear in court in Toronto Dec. 1 charged with assault causing bodily harm, Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said Monday.

Defenceman Brian Glennie of Toronto Maple Leafs and Maloney were involved in an incident during a game Nov. 5 in Toronto.

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The rehabilitation program for retired U.S. Justice William O. Douglas, 77, with his left side paralyzed by a stroke, will be designed to let him do "everyday things."

Douglas was admitted Sunday to Good Samaritan Hospital's stroke rehabilitation program. He suffered a stroke Dec. 31, 1974, and resigned last Wednesday after 36 years on the supreme court bench because his condition left him "unable to shoulder my full share of the burden."

ARREST FOR CLEAVER

SAN FRANCISCO — Eldridge Cleaver will be arrested as soon as he returns to the United States, California officials said today.

"We would have no other course than to put him into custody," said Phil Guthrie, spokesman for the state adult authority which administers parole matters. Cleaver became a fugitive seven years ago when he skipped the country to avoid going back to prison as a parole violator.

The 40-year-old convicted rapist said in Paris he plans to return to the United States Tuesday.

Life Begins At 90

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, (Dem.—Mass), in a current magazine article on his mother, Rose, related how she was walking around Lake Worth in Florida last winter when an old friend, a widower, joined her.

They walked and talked, Kennedy wrote in the Ladies Home Journal, and then the man said: "You know, I would like you to be one of my girl friends."

"Oh?" she said. "And how old are you?"

"Seventy-five," he replied.

"I'm 85. You're too young for me," Mrs. Kennedy replied. "I'm looking for someone 90."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played in a recent tournament, most of the South declarers arrived at a very good minor-suit game contract. To the best of my knowledge, all of them went down except the one whom I happened to be kibitzing. I know he played the hand correctly. I can only assume that all of the others misplayed it, for proper play guarantees the contract.

Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

Pass	5 ♦	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♥.

At those tables where South's five-diamond contract was defeated, I imagine that the play developed along the following lines. West's heart opening was won by East's king after which the ace of hearts was played, South ruffing.

With ten diamonds in the combined hands, the outstanding diamonds figured to be divided 2-1 (mathematically, 78 per cent of the time). So, at trick three, the ace of diamonds was laid down. When West failed to follow suit, South's contract was en route to certain defeat, since East now had two trump winners.

When I saw the deal played, after ruffing the second heart lead, declarer did not cash the ace of diamonds at trick three. Instead, he entered dummy via the club king, and led the jack of diamonds. When East played low, so did South. As is evident, the jack won the trick — and as is equally evident, declarer lost only one trump trick to fulfill his contract.

From declarer's point of view, there was one thing of which he was almost absolutely certain: that East, the opening bidder, had the king of diamonds. And it was well with in the realm of possibility that East possessed the three outstanding diamonds.

It should be noted that if dummy's jack of diamonds had lost to West's (hypothetical) singleton queen or king, the contract would still be there for the taking, for in this case only one diamond would now be outstanding; and it would be felled by South's ace when the latter regained the lead. Thus the safety play couldn't be the losing play, but it could be the winning play — as it was.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on relatives, close neighbors, short trips and special messages. Older individual is willing to share knowledge. Be receptive. Don't permit false pride to block progress. Pet theory may take a beating. Maintain snese of humor. It will be a wonderful ally!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spotlight on earning power and potential. You come to fork in road — choice of ultimate direction is your own. Benefits shown if you release the past — and take cold plunge into future. Aries, Libra could be on picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stress original approach. Highlight greater independence. Imprint personality. Be obvious, direct, communicative. Say what you mean-mean what you say. Leo, Aquarius persons are fascinated and come to your aid.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You delve deep, into past, into areas in mystery, into clandestine affairs. You visit one confined to home, hospital. You are asked to contribute to "a cause." You're also asked to represent group, club, organization "before the media." What's happening?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Highlight entertainment, versatlity. Expand horizons. Don't take yourself too seriously. Laughing at your own foibles now will win allies. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are involved. A wish is fulfilled. Romance and creative endeavors could make this a red-letter day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Home life, family, comforts, sense of well being—these are highlighted and, perhaps, challenged. Accent on promotion, career, standing in community. Now you can contact professional superior with expectations of good results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Achievement is featured. You know what should be done — and you have tools, materials with which to accomplish goal. Know it and get busy. Steady pace will win. Another Capricorn — and a Cancer — could play key roles. Keep diet, health resolutions. Avoid extremes. You'll understand!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good lunar aspect coincides now with journey, education, publication, language. Your ability to gain "rare insights is enhanced. You finish a project and get credit which has been overdue. Aries, Libra persons could be in picture.

You're coming back — you'll be on your feet, stronger in many ways, including financial. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. A fresh start is shown for you in December.

Uncle Fred checked the cash in his pocket. "Less than a dollar in all," he said, "but you three kids can have what there is."

"How do we share?" asked Clare. "By ages?"

"Something like that," Uncle Fred replied. "You get 20 per cent more than Alan, but 25 per cent more than Ron."

How much was there?

9 IN MEMORIAM

HARROP—In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Florence Nellie Harrup (nee Ratcliffe) who passed away November 18, 1972, at London, Ontario.

In our home she is
Sweet memories cling to her name,
Those who loved her in life sincerely,
Still love her in death
just the same.

—Mother, Beth, May, Roy and families.

KASK—In loving memory of a dear mother, Phyllis M. (Rosa) who passed away November 18, 1970.

Five years have passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away;
God took her home—it was His will Within our hearts she liveth still.

—Lovingly remembered by her daughter Joy and Ron Scott.

SMITH—John (M.M.)—In memory of our beloved husband and father, John, who passed away one year ago today, November 18, 1974, and also his brother, Robert, deceased July 24, 1968.

We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend
that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
"Eternal rest grant unto him, O,
Lord, and may perpetual light shine upon him."

—Always remembered by his loving wife Dolly, his son and daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Fruit Trees Finally Arrive

A few fruit and ornamental trees are now available. Lifting of these trees from suppliers' nurseries has been delayed for various reasons this year, first mild weather which caused the trees to hold their leaves longer than normal, followed by heavy rains in sections which prevented working on the soil.

How long lifting can be continued in some districts is questionable, but local growers report fair conditions at present.

If the weather is unsuitable for planting when your order arrives, or when you make a purchase, don't store the trees in a sheltered place such as a carport, nor in a closed area similar to a garage or basement.

These trees must be outside in the weather they normally have to withstand at this time of year.

When permanent planting cannot be done as soon as the trees arrive, temporary planting is the safest plan to follow.

Dig a shallow hole in a vacant spot in the vegetable garden. Unwrap the roots, place them in the hole with the trunk leaning at about a 30 degree angle to soil level, and cover with a heap of soil.

Drive a stake about three or four feet from the roots and tie the trunk securely to the stake, just high enough to keep the branch tips off the wet soil.

If the branches are wide spreading, loop with a piece of soft string to hold them closer to the trunk. Two or three trees can be placed in the same hole and the trunks secured to the one stake.

With the roots in the soil, the upper parts exposed to the weather, and the trunks tied to the stake to prevent wind damage, the trees can remain this way over winter if necessary, providing some compost is heaped over the roots against severe cold weather. It is the normal way of storing imported trees in a nursery until orders have been filled, or until sold.

In the meantime, check the planting holes that were prepared in late September. If water is collecting in any hole the drainage has to be improved.

This may require drain tile to a lower section of the garden, emptying into a deep hole filled with stones, or deeper preparation of the subsoil and more rough compost to hold it open.

When neither method of improving drainage is feasible, it is best to discard the hole and locate an area with better drainage. None of the stone fruits will tolerate water around their roots over winter; apples, pears, and many ornamentals can survive short periods only.

If drainage appears adequate, and the soil taken from the holes mixed with compost and kept dry, the mound in place to support the base of the trunk, and a stout stake driven in, as outlined in previous columns, planting will take only 20 minutes whenever conditions are suitable.

There are fruit and ornamental trees trees in Victoria estimated to be around 100 years old and still in good health. No-one knows who planted them or where they came from, but it is possible they arrived from Europe after a trip around Cape Horn in the days of the windjammers.

One thing we know for sure. The people who planted them did the job properly and that is why we are enjoying them today.

If we plant properly, someone may be enjoying our fruits and flowers 100 years from now.

INTRODUCING INFLATABLES TO VICTORIA

NEW MATERIALS — NEW DESIGNS. THE NYLON NEOPRENE HYPALON combination is so strong that now a totally new type of boat can be designed. No longer the floppy rubber doughnut floundering along the beaches with a life expectancy of only a season. The new materials take pressure up to 3 lbs.-sq. inch providing a firm, almost rigid, structure for this new generation of inflatables. They are almost indestructible. The inevitable choice for rugged expeditions. Raging rivers, onshore rescue, ocean research. See them at

B.C. INFLATABLE BOAT CENTRE

THE HOPE DIAMOND WORTH EVEN MORE

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Hope Diamond was given a thorough examination and got a sparkling report.

The flawless gem was found to be 45.5 carats, instead of the 44.5 carats which it had been believed to be, before it was weighed and X-rayed. The Smithsonian Institution held the test because it has a book ready on the famous diamond and wanted to check the facts before publication. It is normally shown in its mounting at the Museum of Natural History.

Housewife Respectability Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The women's movement must work to make the housewife's role respectable, a government-sponsored International Women's Year conference was told Monday.

Several of the 30 delegates attending from across the country said housewives have been relegated to the bottom rung in the struggle for equality between men and women.

"You go to a party and tell someone you're a housewife, and it stops them dead," said Kathy Morrison of Toronto.

"They know immediately what you're all about — diapers, dinner and a bore."

Because of this, many women feel reluctant in social situations to admit they are housewives, she said during one of a series of workshops scheduled during the three-day meeting.

The seminar was organized to examine the role of volunteers in women's organiztions and related groups.

Helen Verdin of Edmonton said there is a welcome trend toward treating "all women as women" in the feminist movement. Not all mothers and housewives are dissatisfied, she said.

Terry Padgham of Yellowknife, N.W.T., said she likes being a housewife because it gives her freedom to be an activist in the community.

"I'm campaigning for women whose husbands can afford it to stay at home. You're not liberating yourself by adding another job to what you already do as a housewife."

Women in top political and professional jobs get there by playing the same power games as men in similar positions, she said.

Pushing more women to the top would not lead automatically to many of the goals of the women's movement. Their aim must be to make things better for women where they are, she argued.

Gail Akian of Montreal, a professional employed by an organization called the Institute for Research and Public Policy, said career women face problems of their own.

Even among their peers, the attitude is often: "Oh, you're just a castrating you know what," she said.

The women's movement should try to make women comfortable among themselves — "to talk about serious things as well as recipes."

WANT CONTROLS

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Council of Women presented its annual brief to cabinet Monday calling for, among other things, tighter controls on most immigration until the housing shortage has been cleared up.

"Until housing requirements can be met to fulfil the needs of new residents . . . immigration should be discouraged, except for those seeking domicile for humanitarian reasons," the council said.

The recommendation follows one last year in which the organization expressed concern about the housing situation.

A parliamentary committee, meanwhile, said that Canada needs at least 100,000 immigrants a year if the over-all population is not to decline by the year 2000 because of the falling birth-rate.

The National Council of Women is a federation of organizations that includes local and provincial groups and is a member of the International Council of Women, which will hold its 1976 conference in Vancouver.

Cyclamate Dangers Lessened

CHICAGO (AP) — The use of the artificial sweeteners cyclamate and saccharin probably does not increase the risk of bladder cancer a Baltimore study has found.

The study, said to be the first large-scale study of a possible relationship between bladder cancer and no-calorie sweeteners in human beings, contradictsd studies with experimental animals.

Dr. Irving Kessler, a professor at the Johns Hopkins school of public health in Baltimore reported on the human study at the annual meetintg of the American Public Health Association.

DIFFERENT RULING IN KAREN CASE

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Robert Salter, surgeon-in-chief at the Hospital for Sick Children, said Monday that Canadian doctors would probably grant a family request to discontinue use of artificial life-support systems for a patient who could not live otherwise.

Dr. Salter said this ethic applies only to cases such as turning off a respirator attached to a patient "who would be dead if we had not interfered and who will never be 'alive' again, no matter what we do."

Such cases are different from euthanasia, which is still murder, he said.

Dr. Salter was commenting on the case of Karen Quinlan, 21, who has been in a coma in a New Jersey hospital since last April. Last week, a judge refused a request from her parents to turn off the respirator which keeps her alive.

Doctors have said Miss Quinlan is in a chronic vegetative state with no hope of recovery but have refused to shut off the machine.

In Canada, a doctor would have discussed the matter with the family and turned off the machine, Dr. Salter said at a seminar for clergy.

He said one problem in the Quinlan case is that it reached the courts. Some decisions have to be made by doctors, clergy and family, he said.

SECRET GOV'T FORECASTS GLOOMY

Controls Won't Help

TORONTO (CP) — Confidential forecasts of the federal finance department show that the federal selective wage and price controls will make little change in the inflation rate in 1976 and that unemployment will remain about the same, the CBC says.

In an Ottawa story on The National television newscast, Monday night the CBC said the finance department expects the consumer price index will go up 9.2 per cent next year, about the same as it has been for the last six months.

Government spending is expected to go up 3½ per cent and forecasts show wages will increase 11.1 per cent, compared with 18 per cent this year, the CBC says.

It says the figures are based on full compliance with the controls.

Meanwhile the Consumers' Association of Canada gave the new anti-inflation board a sharp rap on the knuckles Monday, calling it a less effective inflation fighting organization than the now-defunct food prices review board.

C A C president Michael O'Grady told the Commons finance committee the food prices review board should be put back into operation and given more authority.

"They had an outspoken, quite intelligent group of researchers," he said. "And they were really letting conumers know what was going on in this very important food business."

The Canadian Labor Congress today carried its campaign against the federal anti-inflation program to the Commons committee studying the authorizing bill.

"The labor movement is not prepared to accept Bill C-73, either in principle or practice," the congress said in a terse, critical brief presented to the finance committee.

"The government at no time has given the congress any assurance that prices and profits can or will be controlled to the same degree as wages.

"Furthermore, by controlling wages the bill will be successful only in reducing purchasing power, which in turn will led to greater unemployment."

However, elsewhere in Ottawa, some civil service members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada are starting to oppose the union executive's decision to use members' money to fight the anti-inflation program.

A petition currently circulating in the consumer and corporate affairs department objects to the PSAC executive committee decision to contribute financially to a CLC national fight against the selected wage and price controls.

OAP Cheques Wednesday

Old age security cheques will be delivered to homes in the Victoria area Wednesday, one week earlier than usual, regional director of family allowances and pensions Harry Kenmare said today.

As a result of the pension cheque delivery, there will be a delay in the family allowance payment until about Dec. 1, he said.

Normally family allowances go out on the 19th of the month. Delivery of all cheques has been hampered by the mail strike.

Postmen have agreed to deliver the pension cheques Wednesday and are studying a request to deliver the family allowance cheques on Dec. 1.

Kenmare said the family allowance cheques will be for both November and December when they are delivered at month's end.

He said Ottawa has ruled that the pension cheques must take priority over family allowances because in a large number of cases the pension is the only source of income while family allowances are supplementary income.

The regional office could not handle both deliveries at once because it must print, envelope and deliver pension and family allowance cheques to the whole province from Victoria. In the case of family allowances, a total of 365,000 cheques must be handled for the province from the Victoria office.

They would be ready for delivery by month's end and would go out Dec. 1 if postmen co-operate. If not, some alternative means of delivery would have to be found for early December.

The delay in the November family allowance brought protests from low income groups.

Henriette Pilon, worker with the Victoria Low Income Group, says welfare mothers and other low income people desperately need the family allowance cheques.

"Because they are on fixed incomes, these people have budgeted their welfare and family allowance cheques for food, sundries, heating and rent," Pilon said.

"It is causing a tremendous stain on them."

Mackasey Vetoes Mediator

Times News Services

Postmaster-General Mackasey Monday rejected appointment of a mediator as a possible solution to the postal strike as the Canadian Union of Postal Workers announced latest plans for $40-a-week strike pay to members

Quebec CUPW directer Clement Morel said today the union has enough money to give out strike pay for five to six weeks.

"The cost of giving strike pay of $40 a week to our members is $800,000 a week," he said at a news conference. "We have $1.5 million in our own strike fund and we have loans from some unions affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress."

Mackasey continued his hard-nosed approach to the bitter strike as the Commons in Ottawa held an emergency debate on the walkout, which began Oct 20.

As union negotiators watched from the galleries, Mackasey said the postal workers are "dreaming in technicolor" if they think they can get more than the latest government offer — $1.70 an hour over a 30-month contract.

"The trouble with this union negotiating team is that they don't know when they've got a good bargain," he said.

Jean-Claude Parrot, chief negotiator for the 22,000-member union, said in an interview he has no doubt a mediator will help.

In Vancouver, meanwhile, a British Columbia Supreme Court Judge adjourned until today an application for an injunction against pickets filed by federal postal officials.

Postal officials told the court that violence and obstruction on the picket line at the main downtown post office began on the first day of the strike and have increased since then.

Crown Firm Share Plan

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Social Credit leader Bill Bennett said Monday that employees of companies set up or purchased by the New Democratic Party government would be offered preferential stock options under a Social Credit government.

Bennett made the statement on an open-line radio show during his campaign for the Dec. 11 provincial election.

He had said earlier that his party would guarantee the jobs, and would sall the government-owned operations after full financial studies.

Bennett also said in an interview Monday that none of the NDP-acquired forest firms would be sold to major companies now in British Columbia.

He said employees would have first option to buy shares under a low-interest employee participation program; the firms would become public; and the province would back out "when the economic climate improves."

Bennett said companies would be sold only to buyers which would guarantee to maintain the firms so they "contribute to the economic well-being of the communities" in which they are located.

He also said a Social Credit government would not do away with mincome and pharmacare, adding that mincome was just an extension of a scheme started by the B.C. coalition government in 1942 and revamped by the former Social Credit government.

In nominations, New Democratic Party defector Frank Calder was acclaimed Monday to contest the Atlin riding for the Social Credit Party in the provincial general election Dec. 11. (Other provincial election nominations on Page 9.)

A master transportation plan for northwestern B.C. will be announced Thursday in Terrace by Premier Barrett.

Discussions with Ottawa on joint federal-provincial financing of new transportation routes in the northwest have been going on for months and Barrett said today he would have an announcement to make Thursday.

The plan is expected to involve highways, railways and port development and include the extension of Canadian National Railway line from Terrace to link up with the B.C. Railway Dease Lake extension.

In Vancouver Agnes Kripps, former Social Credit MLA said today that she has resigned as president of the Vancouver South Social Credit constituency association.

Alcan Lockout Postponed

KITIMAT (CP) — A scheduled lockout at the Aluminum Co. of Canada was postponed Monday night until at least midnight tonight.

An Alcan spokesman said the company and Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers representatives were to meet today with Labor Minister Bill King in Victoria.

The lockout, affecting 1,800 workers, was originally to start at midnight Monday night after the apparent failure of talks earlier with King.

The union rejected the company's last offer on Wednesday in their contract dispute. The offer fell within the federal guidelines and would have given the 1,700 workers an 8.9 per cent increase this year and 6.5 per cent in the second year of a new contract.

The previous contract expired Oct. 23.

Present base rate is $5.38 an hour. The company said the average wage increase over the two-year period would be $1.04 an hour plus cost-of-living protection in the second year.

The company said that its hydroelectric generating facilities at Kemano will not be affected by the shutdown.

Just 'Cordial Discussions', Pollen Hedges on Charge

Mayor Peter Pollen today neither confirmed nor denied charges by Tory leader Scott Wallace that he had broken a firm commitment to run as a Conservative in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Asked by a reporter to comment on Wallace's statement made Monday, after Pollen had announced he would seek the Social Credit nomination, Pollen merely said he had "explored very thoroughly all political parties wth the exception of the NDP."

Pollen said he and Sam Bawlf had had "extremely cordial discussions" with the Conservative leader on the possibility of running as candidates for the party in Victoria.

"But obviously if we were going to run we would have a card in our name," he added.

Wallace had accused the two of lack of principle for breaking faith with him to join the Socred cause. He claimed that commitment was made Nov. 5, yet 12 hours later Bawlf announced he would run as a Socred.

Bawlf had never contacted him since that move, Wallace said. The city alderman could not be reached for comment on the matter today.

Pollen's reaction came as Lea Jameson, president of the Oak Bay Liberal Association, announced today she will seek nomination as the Oak Bay Liberal candidate in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The nomination convention will take place Wednesday, 8:30 p.m. at the Windsor Park pavilion, and Jameson said she did not know of any other candidates.

One nominating meeting was already held and no candidates came forward. Jameson said many people feel the Liberals are "running against the tide" this election, and have offered to run next time around.

Among Pollen's other comments on Wallace today:

"He is the true fanatic who has lost his objective and redoubled his effort.

COMMIT SUICIDE FBI TOLD KING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shortly before he was awarded the 1964 Nobel Prize, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. received an anonymous letter written by the FBI suggesting that he commit suicide or be publicly discredited.

The partial contents of the letter to King were released today by the senate intelligence committee as it began two days of open hearings on 50 years of FBI domestic intelligence operations.

"There is one thing left for you to do," the letter to King said. "You have just 34 days to do it. You are done. There is but one way out for you and you know it."

Committee counsel Fred Scwartz was interrupted at this point by chairman Frank Church, Dem-Idaho.

"This was suggesting suicide?" Church asked.

"Yes, sir," Scwartz replied.

Skyshops 'Gave Christmas Gifts'

TORONTO (CP) — Sky Shops Export Ltd., which holds the duty-free concessions at three federal airports, gave Christmas gifts yearly between 1964 and 1973 to the federal and civil servants with whom it regularly dealt, according to the Globe and Mail.

The newspaper says several government officials at first denied accepting gifts but later admitted they had after they were told The Globe and Mail had the company's gift lists.

Andy Anton, president of Sky Shops from 1964 to 1971, is quoted as saying in an interview that small favors had been asked of the persons involved and that the gifts were minimal.

The included liquor, radios, watches, clocks, free meals, electric razors, a camera, umbrellas, perfume, and gold-plated pen and pencil sets, the newspaper says.

Anton was not avilable for further comment Monday night.

The newspaper says persons on the gift lists included employees of the transport minister and Canada Customs at Montreal's Dorval airport and the airport at Saint John, N.B., post office employees and United States customs and immigration inspectors at Dorval, several airlines such as Air Canada, the Quebec Liquor Board and the New Brunswick liquor control commission.

Elmer MacKay, Progressive Conservative MP for Central Nova, recently asked for a judicial inquiry into the activities of Sky Shops, which holds shop concessions at the Dorval and Mirabel airports and at Saint John.

Gov't Suing Mortgage Firms

A class action on behalf of 52 B.C. residents has been launched by the provincial government against two Lower Mainland mortgage and loan companies.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald is planning to take civil action against Modern Mortgage and Loan Ltd. and Safeco Mortgage and Loan Ltd. and their respective principals H. L. McCallum and Stanley Wright.

Macdonald alleges the two firms wrongfully collected interest money from 52 mortgagees.

Safeco allegedly violated the Interest Act of Canada, Modern is alleged to have violated the Consumer Protection Act and both are accused of conspiring to violate provisions of the Interest Act.

A department official explained that the government is charging that the companies figured out the per diem interest rate for mortgages by dividing the yearly rate by 360 instead of 365 days. That rate was then charged for each day of the year, he said.

Officials were uncertain how much money is involved but said it could be up to $50 a year for each mortgage which could be amortized over 25 years.

"It's not that much but when you multiply it by 52 and then over 25 years it's quite a bit," said Macdonald.

City Police Unhappy with Pay Award

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

An arbitration award handed down Monday finally settles the wages and other contract conditions for Victoria policemen — about six weeks before the 1975 contract year expires.

The award by arbitrator Guy Barclay, which follows a five-day hearing last month, gives a first-class constable a salary of $1,360 per month.

That's $256 a month more than he now makes, $10 a month more but $16 a month less than his counterparts in Saanich and Vancouver respectively and puts him in line for back-pay totalling at least $2,500 gross.

But the policemen's union apparently isn't overwhelmed with joy over the binding award.

Not only has the arbitrator denied the union's request for parity with Vancouver rates in all ranks, but his report places all ranks higher than a 10-year constable substantially behind their opposite numbers in Saanich.

In Saanich, for example, a corporal now receives $1,553 per month. In Victoria the new rate for a corporal will be $125 less — $1,428. A Saanich sergeant gets $1,620; a Victoria sergeant will receive $56 less — $1,564.

Union president Sgt. Patrick Braiden said Monday night he was "totally amazed" by the report, adding that the arbitrator did not accept an agreement already reached by the city and the union with regard to the indexing relationship between ranks.

Braiden said the city had agreed to follow the index system used by Saanich in fixing rates for corporals and sergeants, but the arbitrator had ordered that the Victoria 1974 index should apply in 1975.

Said Barclay's report: "Regarding the Saanich index, I note it is the same as the 1974 Victoria index for ranks below that of first-class constable but above the Victoria index for ranks higher than the first-class constable.

"It is my view this is a poor concept and is generally contrary to accepted practice."

Barclay's report also includes improvements in vacations, boot and clothing allowances, shift differential and other fringe areas, but regarding the union's request for a shared-cost dental plan

First Gas From Sea In Tanks

EDINBURGH, Scotland (Reuter) — Britons lined up at a filling station near here Monday to buy the first gasoline derived from North Sea oil.

British Petroleum delivered the first 4,000 gallons to a gas station near its refinery at Grangemouth, just outside Edinburgh.

The first North Sea oil to be piped ashore was landed two weeks ago.

Britian expects to be self-sufficient in oil and an exporter by 1980. The reserves under the North Sea, estimated to be worth $40 billion, are the basis for British hopes of future prosperity.

she made earlier that the Social Credit party executive tampered with a nominating convention Sunday which rejected her bid to run again in the Vancouver South riding.

"I'm a good loser but a poor shaftee, you can put it that way," said Mrs. Kripps.

Kripps said that she has been urged by constituents to seek a Conservative nomination, but said she has not spoken to Conservative leader Scott Wallace.

Meanwhile, Conservative candidates will be few in quantity, high in quality, and found only in ridings where they have a chance of winning, Tory Saunders, the president of the British Columbia conservative party said Monday.

He told a nominating meeting in West Vancouver-Howe Sound that the party should be concerned mainly with building a solid base by "running excellent candidates in the areas where we know we have some support.

"We should be looking at (Premier) Peter Lougheed's experience in Alberta where he got a small group of dedicated Conservatives together," said Saunders. "He made a good showing in 1967 and eventually formed the government in 1971."

Wait for Wedding Urged by Barrett

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

If the state is involved in the break-up of marriages it should also be involved in the start of marriages, through a six-week waiting period with mandatory counselling, Premier Barrett said today.

Speaking to the provincial conference on the family, Barrett said he become frustrated in his early days as a social worker trying to deal with marriage problems because it was obvious in so many cases the couple should never have married.

The problem is that the state only becomes involved in the marriage when it breaks up when it should instead have a stake in the survival of the marriage through "even just four or five hours of counselling," he said.

It would be impossible, and a denial of freedom, to prevent people from getting married, he said, but a few hours of rational discussion about marriage with people who have some experience or understanding would help immensely.

But Barrett drew laughter from the 200 delegates when he said both his wife's religious counsellor and his counsellors told them not to get married and they went ahead anyway.

Although they were angry with the advice, said Barrett, it made them sit down and discuss some of the problems which might face them, problems they had never considered.

The premier was warmly received by the crowd at Centennial United Church as he talked about his own family life and marriage which he said was a good one, mostly due to his wife, Shirley "a good Christian woman who took in this wayward Jew."

Barrett said he was there as a social worker, not a politician, and apologized for the presence of so many press representatives.

The conference was set up before he knew there would be an election, he said, and he did not intend his speech to be part of the election campaign.

The conference began Monday night and runs for three days. It was set up jointly by the provincial government and various religious organizations. Following the Victoria meeting, the 200 delegates will go back to their local areas for further comreturn for a final wrap-up munity discussions and then next year.

One out of three marriages fail today, said Barrett, and much of the failure is due to unreal expectations built up by fairy tale myths of life.

The state and the community has a stake in marriages and they impose conditions on how people can be divorced so they should impose the same kind of screening and conditions on people wishing to marry.

But Barrett said it is a difficult notion to get across to governments and it is a problem which crosses political party lines. He said he and others in the caucus have slowly been making other peole in the NDP aware of the situation.

Many people feel, however, that such rules about marriage would constitute an interference in the private lives of individuals, he said, adding that newspapers have made fun of him when he has suggested the idea previously.

But a mandatory six-week waiting period before marriage with a few hours of warm, open discussion of marriage would probably stop some people from rushing into disaster, Barrett said.

The premier spoke on a more personal level than he does on the political platform, talking about his married life and the cases he handled as a social worker before entering politics.

Asked his opinion on the growing trend to common-law or trial marriages, Barrett said he couldn't make any generalized statements because every case is different.

"I can't make those kinds of judgments about people unless they're politicians," he said, adding that if he was faced with the problem in his own family he might react emotionally but he didn't know what he would do.

PENSION CHEQUES

for the Community Action Group, said many welfare recipients rely upon the family allowance cheques to pay their food bills.

"The fact there will be a double payment in December is no help," she said.

"How do you tell a hungry child in the last week of November to be patient and go without food for one more week because he can look forward to double helpings in December?"

She has asked provincial human resources officials for interim assistance to those on welfare and for other low income people until the family allowance cheques arrive.

Stan Darlington, president of the Victoria local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the union has offered to sort family allowance cheques without cost but there is a dispute with local post office offcials about where the sorting should take place.

The postmen insist it must be outside the struck premises of the post office while post office spokesman Buzz Sawyer says federal government postal activities must be carried out inside the post office.

Sawyer said it would be difficult to maintain the high security arrangements normal for handling cheques if the work was done outside the post office building.

Darlington said the postmen are willing to do the work outside the post office but so far postal officials here have rejected the offer.

Pollen Sidesteps Wallace Accusation

"I think his statements are somewhat irrelevant in the context that he refuses to recognize the reason why people of substance are not joining him — because he stands primarily for Hate Social Credit.

"I think it would be more appropriate with his evangelical fervor if he joined the NDP."

Liberal MLA David Anderson said today Pollen had tried to convince him on either Nov. 3 or 4 to run as an independent with him.

"In the first week of November he told me he just couldn't stand the Socreds," Anderson said. "He asked me to run as an independent with him (in the city) because he didn't like the Ottawa Liberals and wasn't sure he could win as a Liberal."

The Social Credit nomination meeting will be held tonight at the McPherson Playhouse.

Meanwhile Saanich NDP today denied that association had ever requested Pollen to run under that banner.

Pollen was quoted in the Colonist today as saying the group had asked that he run in that riding.

But Molly Phillips, president of the NDP riding association, catergorically denied a request was made. "We never did any such thing."

City Police Unhappy

he notes it is "now too late in the year" to set up a plan within the contract period.

He recommends the police board and union set up a committee to choose a dental plan, thrash out the financing details and submit it for the 1976 contract. Failing agreement, the matter should be referred to an arbitration board.

Barclay observes that during the hearing the union "devoted a great deal of time and effort to establish that the department was seriously undermanned."

He adds: "The arbitrator is sympathetic to the Victoria police's desire to provide the best possible service to the citizen. Nevertheless he considers it is not within his jurisdiction to rule on this question."

Priorities are involved, he says, and the responsibility for determining the department's strength must rest with the B.C. Police Commission, the Victoria police board and city council.

Mayor Peter Pollen said today he generally considers Barclay's report "sound in its judgment," but he expressed concern that the higher ranking officers' wage disparity between Victoria and Saanich "will constitute the basis for continuing disenchantment by our police force."

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith told council Monday night that the municipality has committed itself to matching the city award as far as wages are concerned, but not the fringe benefits of the award.

He added that the firefighters award in the city, which Oak Bay would also follow, is not yet known.

Oak Bay has historically followed city agreements for firefighters and policemen.

TOP UIC PAYMENT TO INCREASE $10

OTTAWA (UPI) — Maximum unemployment insurance payments will increase Jan. 4 by $10 to $133 a week, Manpower Minister Robert Andras said today.

The ceiling on insurable earnings will be raised from $185 to $200 a week and since the maximum benefit payable is two-thirds of weekly earnings, top level payments will ride to $133, he said.

Minimum insurable earnings will be increased to $40 from $37 a week, raising the new minimum unemployment payments to $27 from $23 a week.

Most of the province had clear skies overnight as a large high pressure area continued building over the interior. Temperatures dropped rapidly with many locations recording near record lows. Readings in the Central Interior were generally below minus ten celsius.

The exception to this clear cool weather is the north coast where occasional rain and southeasterly gales can be expected later today. Little change is expected over the remainder of the province through Wednesday.

Victorians who went to the Sherwood Park Inn on Halloween expecting to see Zarno — Europe's "Mr. Hypnosis" may wonder why he never appeared. There was good reason.

Immigration officials told Zarno (who they learned was Robert Warren Mach of Portland, Oregon) that if he appeared on stage he would be arrested.

According to an immigration official, Mach violated the Canadian Immigration Act by working last summer as manager of the Stardust Cabaret at 1037 View without an employment visa.

The official told Town Talk Mach admitted he had never performed as a hypnotist before. But acquaintances at the Stardust said he spent much time reading books on hypnosis.

Mach has since returned to the United States.

Resources Minister Bob Williams has apparently made a tidy profit selling his old home on Rockland Avenue.

In July, 1974, we first learned he was trying to sell his beautiful old home next door to the Waldo Skillings residence.

The asking pride was $137,000 — up from the $60,000 Williams had paid for the house 19 months earlier, shortly after the NDP were elected.

Williams was not happy with the news coverage and said he was simply selling his home for the market price because he had to buy another house at prices which had skyrocketed during those 19 months.

Williams said he wanted to move to Vic West — to build a house in a friendlier neighborhood. He moved instead to James Bay and last week told a hot-line show he made a profit of $40,000 selling his home.

"I don't know anybody who has bought and sold a house in the last few years and not made money," he added.

It's been about a decade since The Buzzer appeared weekly in the little tin pouches on B.C. Hydro buses.

An abashed Ald. Fred Severson, chairman of the parks and recreation committee, admits he has run into opposition in his attempt to honor former parks superintendent Bert Richman by naming either Braefoot or Hyacinth Park after him.

Severson's committee was to complete the park-naming at Monday's council meeting but, to Severson's chagrin, the matter wasn't on the agenda.

Severson explained after that Richman may never receive the recognition because others on council are reluctant to set a precedent by naming a park after a municipal employee.

So much for committee decision-making in Saanich.

Victoria police chief Jack Gregory says he speaks Cantonese but it has become rather rusty in the last 12 years.

Gregory was commenting on a recent statement by Mayor Peter Pollen who said a bilingual applicant for the post of deputy police chief would have preference over a unilingual applicant, noting that Victoria's chief is bilingual — able to converse in English and Cantonese.

"I have used it (Cantonese) in duties with the B.C. provincial police from 1939 to 1962 but it has become very rusty since," Gregory said in English.

When asked in Cantonese whether he understands Chinese, Gregory replied: "La how ma."

Translated into English, that means "how are you?"

He then cited a murder case in the Kamloops area in 1950.

"A Chinese man was murdered and I had difficulty getting his background," Gregory said, "so I took lessons in the Cantonese dialect from a local Chinese businessman and former schoolteacher from the province of Canton."

He admitted his present fund of Cantonese is "Lok yee loy" — here come the police — and other "pleasant chatter."

"I really haven't used it since 1963, other than to the odd Chinese I've met here and there," he said.

This "odd Chinese" thanked him for his time.

There's more than a touch of pathos in defence lawyer Michael Hutchison's statement Monday that there is little or no counselling at the B.C. Pen for his client Danny Cain.

But Cain is talking for the first time about his future, says Hutchison.

What are they doing to rehabilitate Danny?

"They've got him sewing emblems on canvas bags, imprinting Canada Post Office on them . . . using a stencil."

Victoria constituency Socreds apparently weren't too sure that Peter Pollen and Sam Bawlf would be acceptable candidates.

The local Socred executive went on record earlier in the campaign saying that only long-standing Socred members would be considered as candidates for nomination.

It was Socred campaign headquarters in Vancouver that approved the pair's bid for nomination Monday.

At a meeting between the two Socred levels, B.C. Socred League representative Dan Campbell confirmed that Pullen and Bawlf were acceptable, even in light of the fact that they only recently applied for party membership.

The party's constitution says any nomination hopeful can join the Socreds the very day of the nomination meeting.

"But because of an anomaly, he cannot vote for himself unless he's a 30-day member," says Campbell.

Again this year, City Hall has decided to trim the tree — literally.

The former custom of erecting a giant Christmas tree in Centennial Square was abandoned due to rising transportation and labor costs last year, and the situation evidently hasn't improved.

The public works committee blanched today when it was informed that estimated costs for the job — the tree would have to be brought from the Greater Victoria Water District lands — are now $1,300.

Instead aldermen instructed city engineer John Sansom to exercise his imagination a little more frugally . . . perhaps by stringing lights and other decorations around some of the plane trees that are permanent fixtures of the square.

School Report Urges Changes To Save $1.2M

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Closure of Burnside elementary school and a new primary school status for Lampson elementary school has been recommended in a report to the Greater Victoria school board with district-wide implications.

Prepared by Dr. John Wiens, assistant superintendent of administration, the hefty report outlines proposed futures of all schools in the district and recommendations would save an estimated $1.2 million by 1978.

Wiens urges that all parents have an opportunity to study and react to the report before the board makes a decision, although sometimes "it is difficult for parents to be objective in matters which have a direct impact on the education of their children."

"All parts of the district will have to suffer some inconvenience for the sake of economy," says Wiens, but recommendations "will spread the burden of inconvenience throughout the four municipal areas."

The report recommends:

—Moving South Park family co-operative school to Bank Street Sept., 1977, saving $490,000;

—Suspension of plans for construction of Harbor View elementary in Esquimalt;

—Creation of a middle school (Grades 5 to 8) at Arbutus Junior Secondary by 1978, removing the need for planned new school at Edgelow.

—Continuation with opening of Torquay elementary school next year to ease crowding in Gordon Head area;

—Addition of one grade each year to Spectrum school until enrolment reaches kindergarten to Grade 10;

—A suitable site be located on Roy Road for new elementary schools.

Wiens said most of the 11 recommendations are caused by declining birth rate which has dropped by about 4,000 since 1969.

Board administration predicts a further decrease of 600 elementary school students next year, and expectations are the decline will continue until 1970.

Under the proposals Burnside would close in September, 1976, as earlier predicted, raising protests from Burnside parents.

Wiens wants the board that a decision on Burnside will not be easy, but in terms of the economies, closure should be approved.

Parents would be given a choice of other neighboring schools.

Wiens recommends that 150 pupils in kindergarten to grade 3 be enrolled in September 1976 and that boundaries of neighboring schools — Macaulay, Rockheights and Victoria West — be redrawn to accommodate intermediate pupils now at Lampson. He also urges that necessary maintenance and renovation at Lampson be proceeded with and unused space be shared with other agencies.

Dayliner Start Stutters

The 68-passenger Dayliner inaugurated its early morning Victoria to Parksbille run Monday with four passengers on board.

There were five passengers for the return trip to Victoria Monday afternoon.

CP Rail officials said they remain hopeful the new schedule will result in a return to the 50 per cent capacity rate that the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway had in 1974.

In an effort to increase passenger traffic, CP Rail tried a seven-month experiment of changing the schedule to permit up-Islanders to come to Victoria in the morning and to return home in the afternoon. Instead of an increase, however, the average passenger total fell from 50 per cent of capacity to about 25 per cent.

(An additional factor in the passenger decline may have been the shortening of the service with Parksville as the northern terminal rather than Courtenay. The Courtenay portion of the run ended in July when CP Rail said two old trestles north of Parksville were no longer safe and it would not be worth the $1.7 million cost to replace them.)

Now the Dayliner has reverted to its 1974 schedule except the morning run leaves Esquimalt at 8:15 a.m. (instead of 8:30 a.m.), arriving at Parksville at 11:20 a.m.

The new schedule has the return trip leaving Parksville at 2 p.m., arriving at Victoria at 5 p.m.

More Alternatives Planned

Designation of a series of more-structured alternative schools and creation of a high school to handle "Sentinel-type" school graduates are on the drawing boards of planners in the Greater Victoria School District.

A special report to the board prepared by assistant superintendent of administration Dr. John Wiens also urges that enrolment at the school be increased and additional space provided in the form of portables.

Wiens recommends that Sundance be expanded to include Grade 8 or 9 and provision be made for sepcial subject instruction at S. J. Willis Junior Secondary school.

"Present facilities (at Sundance) are among the least adequate of any school in the district," says Wiens, but staff and parents are prepared to remain at the Quadra street school if portables' facilities are provided.

In the more-structured alternative, Sentinel staff and parents feel that the poor quality of facilities and lack of space are major handicaps, says Wiens.

"In the long run it will doubtless become necessary to designate several schools as Sentinel-type schools," he says.

He urged the school be moved to the Dean Height building in June, 1977, that several other district schools be designated Sentinel-type schools by September, 1977, and the current buildings occupied by Sentinel be phased out after June, 1977. Sentinel now includes only Grades 3 to

Under the proposals, Rockheights elementary would be designated a Sentinel-type by September, 1977, as well as Doncaster elementary school.

Burnside elementary, if closed as recommended by September, 1977, would be reopened as a Sentinel-type school.

Wiens also urges that the board confirms the designation of Landsdowne Secondary as the school for graduates of more-structured schools, with the expectation that Grade 11 will be added in September, 1977, and Grade 12 in September, 1978.

In the case of all elementary schools earmarked to take on the new, more-structured approach to education, planning, staffing and other necessary preparation should be undertaken to ensure that such an approach can meet the September deadline, says Wiens.

The recommendations on alternative schools, he said, are a recognition that there is more demand for Sentinel-type schools than the Sundance, less-structured approach.

Saanich Jousts On Police Pact

A policeman's lot is not an 'appy one.

Gilbert and Sullivan might have been thinking about the Saanich police force when they wrote that song.

Tempers flared again at Monday's council meeting over the recent settlement between the municipality and its police force.

Ald. Joseph Bourque tried unsuccessfully to persuade council not to pay the full cost of insuring every married constable for a maximum amount of $40,000 on an interim basis until permanent insurance can be found.

"Paying the full whack of the premium . . . that's something the taxpayer won't stand for," Bourque said.

After giving Saanich police one of the highest wage increases ever, "$2,000 or so to some of the constables", paying the entire premium costs is too much, Bourque said.

Mayor Ed Lum told Bourque the insurance coverage had been agreed upon in the recent settlement and municipal administrator Bill Tremayne said, "This is an interim action to put on $40,000 while it (insurance) is being investigated on how to get the best coverage on a long-time basis."

"I do not think our policemen are overpaid one bit," Ald. John McDonald told Bourque and Ald. Fred Severson pointed out that Victoria police have been given a wage settlement of $1- more than their Saanich counterparts.

"Janitors at (B.C.) Hydro get more than our policemen," Mayor Lum told Bourque.

Trio Checked After Fire

Three occupants of a Glen Lake duplex were checked at hospital for smoke inhalation after fire gutted a bedroom of the house shortly after 9:30 this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Thomas and their small child were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital were Mrs. Thomas was detained.

Colwood RCMP said fire at 2995 Glen Lake was confined to the bedroom, caused apparently by smoking in bed. Firemen said damage was minimal.

BIKEWAY MEET SET

The Regional Bikeway Committee will hold a public meeting on Monday, Nov. 24, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Upper Lounge of the Student Union Building at the University of Victoria.

The meeting is intended to provide an opportunity for the public and representatives of municipal, regional and provincial government to contribute their ideas on the best manner of providing bikeway facilities in the Capital Region.

'Chilling Crime' Preview

A county court jury was told Monday it will hear this week about a "chilling crime" involving the rape of a 26-year-old Colwood mother of two daughters Feb. 2.

Prosecutor David Lisson made the remark at the opening of the trial of Burton Juston Tiffin, 660 Rockingham, who ws arrested Feb.21.

Lisson said the woman was asleep in the early hours of that morning when an intruder came through a window. One of the daughters was also asleep and the other was staying overnight with friends.

The intruder reached under the bed covers and indecently molested her, Lisson said.

"Terrified, she submitted to his will and was raped," he said.

The man had said, Lisson told the jury, that if the woman made a sound the daughter would be killed.

Later, the woman identified Tiffin from a police lineup, he said.

First witnesses were RCMP officers who told the jury and Judge Montague Drake that the woman was hysterical when they first saw her and when she was interviewed at the police station.

Const. Richard Lewis said the lineup consisted of six persons including Tiffin. The others resembled him.

The woman wasn't told there would be a suspect in the lineup and was not shown photos of Tiffin before the lineup, he said.

She wrote on a piece of paper during the lineup, "Yes, I think number 8," referring to the number Tiffin was holding. She also walked to him and touched him on the shoulder to identify him.

Cross-examined by defence counsel Don Farquhar, Lewis conceded it was "quite reasonable" for the woman to expect police would have a suspect in the lineup.

The trial continued today. Lisson is being assisted by Barry Mah Ming and Farquhar is being assisted by Brian MacKenzie.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures tumbled nearly 16 cents a bushel Tuesday on the Board of Trade, setting new lows in all options.

Soybean oil fell the allowable limit for one session—100 points or 1 cent a pound. Oil set several contract lows. New crop wheat also set new contract lows.

Wheat futures were down 10 cents a bushel, corn more than four and oats nearly two. Soybean meal fell $3 a ton. Iced broilers lost ½ cent a pound in a very lightly traded session.

Domestic gold futures had been $1 an ounce lower through most of the session, but closed unchanged to 50 cents an ounce higher as shorts were forced to cover their positions on rising prices before the final bell.

Prices had been mostly irregular on the opening but rather active selling took over when the buying eased. It appeared that when commercial interessts and commission houses began to sell, buyer interest dried up. After 30 minutes of trade, the pace fell considerably.

A dominant influence on the market was the big prodution figure expected in wheat, corn and in soybeans. Final figures in wheat show a record already, and the United States agriculture department expects a record in corn and a near record in beans. With these facts before them, it was difficult for longs to maintain positions.

CALGARY LIVESTOCK

CALGARY (CP) Receipts to 11 a.m. at the Calgary Public Stockyards totalled 2,000 head, mostly slaughter steers, heifers and cows. Trade was slow on steers and heifers and moderately active on cows.

Slaughter steers and heifers met an indifferent demand at prices 50 cents lower. Cows met a fair demand from both local and eastern buyers at barely steady prices. Insufficient bulls were on offer to establish quotations.

Steers, A1, A2: 43.50-44.80. A3: 41-43.

Heifers, A1, A2: 36.50-39. A3: 34.50-36.
